WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The end of the greatest war games ever staged by the American army apparently was only hours off tonight with the Second and Third armies engaged in scattered battles along a 100-mile front running in a wide semi-circle 50 miles from Shreveport.

Competent military sources said, however, the finish to the two weeks of maneuvers might be delayed until late Sunday to give the two forces a chance to engage in at least one major encounter during the week; the problem, which began Wednesday, has been a comparatively calm one—consisting almost entirely of troop movements with little front-line contact outside of skirmishes between reconnaissance outposts.

Lieutenant-General Ben Lear's reorganized Second army found little trouble in holding Shreveport against the Blue, but slower-moving Third army of Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger apparently stalemated by the demolition of bridges through the swamps and marsh lands along the Sabine river valley, the Blue attackers had not penetrated the defensive front seriously at any point.

The only threat considered dangerous was tank columns of the Second armored division driving in from Texas, but even they were not yet across the difficult barrier of the Sabine river.

The biggest battle of the problem and center of activity was a concerted effort by tanks columns of the Second

BATTLE' FOUGHT IN WEST MONROE

Blue Motorcyclist, Chased By Two Red Combat Cars, Escapes

The maneuvers probably will end today, but the Twin Cities will have had one "battle" anyway.

Almost at the deadline, a Blue motorcyclist dashed into West Monroe at 11:20 a.m. yesterday. He was immediately challenged by a couple of Red combat cars, who took up the chase, firing machine guns and otherwise giving the good people of West Monroe a sample of simulated warfare. The Blue, however, outdistanced his pursuers and apparently escaped.

The Blue soldier was first sighted in North Bonham street, and the Reds reported it from the vicinity of Cross-Bayou bridge to a point near the Louisville and Nashville bridge, where they lost sight of him. He apparently came into the city from the Jonesboro road.

There were other Blues on the outskirts of the city but as far as could

DEWEY SAYS PRESS IS CRIME EXPOSER

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Manhattan District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey says the nation's press is the best medium exposing organized crime in the cities of the United States.

In an article published in Editor and Publisher, Dewey declared:

"In city after city we have seen libel and publisher, libel, intimidation and even threats of personal violence as they tore the lid off organized crime in their respective communities."

The leaders of criminal combinations, said Dewey, shun the press "like a plague" and know the consequences the press ultimately will bring. Gangster Al Capone is in prison and led to the murder of Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer.

TWO GIRLS RIDING BICYCLES KILLED

LAFAYETTE, La., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Julien Arnould, 18, and her sister Florence, 16, were killed tonight when struck from the rear by an automobile while riding bicycles near the north city limits.

Police immediately began a search for the driver of the car, which sped on in the direction of Abbeville with damaged headlights. The girls were daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Arnould, who live on a farm near here.

Citizen Jones' Taxes To Go Up Next Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Take the case of Citizen Jones—one of those who will help bear the extra $846,800,000 annual tax burden which will fall next Wednesday on articles ranging from wine to washing machines, from perfume to pianos.

The so-called "nuisance" taxes, provided under the record-breaking $3,553,400,000 revenue bill enacted recently, might affect Citizen Jones this way:

Mr. Jones takes a late vacation and has to pay 5 per cent more on his railroad ticket. He arrives at a resort and is charged 5 per cent extra every time he takes his wife to the roof garden for dancing and drinks.

And, because the liquor tax is increased from $3 to $4 a gallon, he will pay more for the drinks. If he orders wine, he will pay higher taxes, but if he is satisfied with beer there will be no increased tax.

Picking up some trinkets for his wife in the resort novelty shop might cost Mr. Jones a 10 per cent tax on jewelry. If he wanted a tennis racquet or a set of gold clubs that would be another 10 per cent.

Cigarets will not cost him any more, but, because of a two-cents-a-thousand tax on matches, he might have to pay for his lights.

If he decides to buy a new car and drive home he will pay a 7 per cent tax on the car, a levy of 5 cents a pound on the tires and a 9-cent-a-pound impost on the tubes. And a

EXPECT MONROE TO GET PLANTS

C. Of C. Secretary And Mayor Benoit Return From Washington

Government officials have been thoroughly acquainted with the defense production possibilities of this area as the result of five trips by Twin City delegations to the nation's capital and indications are that the area will be considered favorably when the selection of sites for new plants in the defense program is made, George D. Holland, secretary of the Twin City Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday following the return of himself and Mayor H. H. Benoit of Monroe from a week's stay in Washington, D. C.

Although a scarcity of construction materials may delay beginning of the construction of new type plants in the war department's program until the summer of 1942, the selection of sites of the plants is expected within the next few months, Mr. Holland said.

"On our last trip to Washington we presented the war department with a survey prepared by the Chamber of Commerce office here on a certain type of defense plant which is included in the department's program and which will utilize natural resources provided by this area," Mr. Holland said.

"Three types of plants in the war department's defense plans will utilize materials which can be provided by northeast Louisiana," the chamber secretary said, "and we feel certain that the department and the office of production management looks with favor on this section as the site of defense industry as the result of information provided them on the trips to Washington by Mayor Benoit and myself."

2 IN GERMANY GET DEATH FOR HEARING RADIO

Pair Accused Of Listening To Broadcasts Of Other Countries

22 OTHERS EXECUTED IN OTHER PLACES BY NAZIS

Large Number In France And Elsewhere Given Prison Sentences

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Two residents of Germany were sentenced to death today for listening to foreign broadcasts and 22 more persons in German-controlled territory were reported executed for other offenses.

Appointment of Reinhard Heydrich, chief of security in the Reich, as Reichs protector in Bohemia and Moravia to succeed Baron Konstantin von Neurath was announced in Berlin. (The British radio said Heydrich immediately proclaimed a state of emergency, set up courts martial, and ordered death sentences for offenses against order to stifle war industry, "go slow" strikes and railway sabotage in the former Czechoslovak republic.)

"Despite all warnings," said DNB, official news agency, of the two death sentences, "various countrymen still allow themselves to be misled into listening to untrue foreign reports and spreading them.

"They thereby permit themselves to be misused as the cheap tool of enemy agitation, cripple their own powers' resistance and stab the national community in the back by treasonable support of the enemy."

At the same time execution of 20 persons of unnamed nationality was announced in Belgian newspapers.

(Vichy advices said 20 hostages—apparently the same mentioned in the Belgian dispatches—were executed Friday morning at Lille, industrial

RAPS PROPOSED PROFITS LIMIT

Senator George Says Six Per Cent Would Crush Small Businesses

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Taking issue with Secretary Morgenthau, Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the senate finance committee said today that a 6 per cent limitation on corporate profits "would crush and kill small business."

George, whose committee has a yes-or-no power over treasury recommendations, declared in a statement that congressional committees were ready to impose "high rates on true excess profits." But he added that "a fair yardstick" for determining excess profits should be laid down first.

In testimony before the house banking committee, Morgenthau suggested that corporate profits be held to 6 per cent on invested capital during the emergency. He asserted later that treasury experts were working on legislation to carry out the idea. Present excess profits provisions permit corporations to figure such income either on the basis of invested capital or their average earnings for the years 1936-39 inclusive.

Riding Dive Bomber Like Grabbing Tail Of Comet

Monroe Newspaperman Given Unexpected 'Pleasure' In Maneuvers

By George V. Lofton

Imagine a roller coaster 9,000 feet high, multiply the speed of the car by 25 and increase the degree of descent by three or four. Better still, imagine grabbing a comet by the tail and holding on for several minutes. That will give you a rough—very rough—idea of the sensation you get when a dive bomber goes into action.

Major-General Harmon had telegraphed permission for me to "go on a mission" with the Eighth Bombardment squadron, stationed at Selman field, and late Friday afternoon I was lolling around the communications tent, talking to some of the pilots who had just returned from a foray into east Texas, where the Blues were attempting to surprise the Reds with a flanking attack out of Texas, when the teletype suddenly gave forth the information that "a convoy of Blue trucks has been sighted on the Natchitoches-Natchez road" and an order immediately followed to the effect that the Eighth must take off at once and attempt to "bomb" the Blue convoy out of existence.

That didn't mean a great deal to me except that a flight would start out from Selman field to intercept the Blue movement and blast them off the highway, if possible. But when a sergeant grabbed me by the arm and said, "Here's your flight," I realized that here I was in the midst of something I undoubtedly had asked for, but that either I or the gentlemen in charge of the squadron had misunderstood my mission. Frankly, I wasn't looking for a battle.

Lieutenant H. A. Reynolds, the ever-smiling (I wasn't) public relations officer at the field, rushed up and introduced me to Lieutenant V. A. Schwab, a graduate of West Point and an expert pilot.

"Here's your pilot," Lieutenant Reynolds said. "He's tops."

That was reassuring but I had no time to think of minor details as we rushed into a car and moved to the far south end of the field where

KELLOGG NAMED TO LEAD DRIVE

Local Man Will Be Chairman Of Community Chest Campaign

W. W. Kellogg, prominent in local business circles and civic affairs, has been named by President M. S. Biedenharn of the Twin City Community Chest as campaign chairman for the chest. The drive will begin October 12.

Mr. Kellogg was appointed to the board of directors last August and his selection is believed to have been an excellent one for the directing of the 1941 campaign. Mr. Biedenharn said he was satisfied that Mr. Kellogg will sacrifice sufficient time from business to direct the work of the chest next month.

An ardent baseball fan who was associated with the Monroe team the past season to which he lent steadfast and substantial support, Mr. Kellogg also is active in U. S. O. work.

"Mr. Kellogg is a person to throw the entire force of his personality and resources into any worthwhile project that he is connected with. It is this very characteristic that makes his selection as Community Chest campaign manager one that meets with general approval and gives every assurance for success in a substantial manner," stated Mr. Biedenharn.

Mr. Biedenharn also made known Saturday the personnel of the campaign advisory committee as follows: Mr. Kellogg, C. D. Oakley, D. C. Silverstein, Sam Rubin, J. G. Hicks, R. D. Kellogg, R. L. Davis, A. Blumenthal, Ben Downing, H. A. McDonald, M. C. McDonald, T. W. Davenport, Clyde Brown, C. M. Strauss, Ira Cagle, Fagan Cox, John Gordan, John Shumaker, J. L. Keenan, R. A. Wisenbaker, Murrey Hudson, P. E. Massey. Mr. Biedenharn is ex-officio member of this group.

DOXEY CERTIFIED FOR SENATE POST

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Secretary of State Walker Wood today certified Representative Wall Doxey, 39, of Holly Springs, as the winner of Tuesday's close senatorial election over Representative Ross Collins of Meridian, and his credentials were mailed to Washington.

The official returns tabulated in the secretary of state's office gave Doxey 59,356 votes to 58,758 for Collins, or a lead of 818 votes.

Immediately after the count the papers were dispatched to Governor Paul B. Johnson, who signed them at Pascagoula, where he was participating in a ship launching.

Doxey plans to take the oath of office in Washington Monday as successor of Senator James Eastland, serving interim since the death of the late Pat Harrison last June. The term has 15 months to run.

After Doxey is sworn in, a vacancy will exist automatically in the Second congressional district, which will be filled in a special election to be called by Governor Johnson.

Late in the afternoon, Representative Collins, who remained at his headquarters here during the official counting, conceded the election of Doxey, but said in a written statement that if he received evidence sustaining "many reports of irregularities," he would "take such appropriate action as may be necessary." He was represented at the count by J. B. Snyder, Clarksdale publisher and former lieutenant governor.

14 NEW VESSELS SENT DOWN WAYS IN U. S. PORTS

Vital Span Put In 'Bridge Of Ships' Aimed At Hitler's Downfall

PRESIDENT'S TRANSCRIBED TALK PART OF PROGRAMS

Roosevelt Tells Nation's Shipworkers They Are Doing Great Job

(By Associated Press)

With 14 new cargo ships sliding down the ways, America put a vital span yesterday into the "bridge of ships," by which this government expects to contribute to the downfall of Adolf Hitler.

It was the largest mass launching since World war days, and was notable, too, because among the vessels which hit the salt tides were three of the new "liberty ships," designed for mass production. The launching took place on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and on the Gulf of Mexico as well.

President Roosevelt signalized the occasion with the unusual device of an electrically transcribed speech, heard at all the launching ceremonies, in which he called the event a 'telling blow at the menace to our nation."

He told the shipworkers of America they were doing "a great job" and had "caught the true spirit with which all this nation must be imbued if Hitler and other aggressors of his ilk are to be prevented from crushing us."

"With every new ship," he said, "they are striking a telling blow at the menace to our nation and the liberty of the free peoples of the world. They struck fourteen such blows today."

And, he reiterated this nation's insistence upon maintaining the freedom of the seas in the face of Axis submarines and raiders with an assertion

JAPAN REPORTS CHANGSHA TAKEN

Nation Quietly Observes Anniversary Of Pact With Axis Powers

TOKYO, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The first anniversary of Japan's signing of the three-power pact with Germany and Italy was observed quietly today while the Tokyo press expressed jubilation over the reported Japanese capture of Changsha, important capital of central China's province of Hunan.

(Later reports, however, indicated the announcement may have been premature.)

The Times and Advertiser, controlled by the foreign office, said that "the Hunan campaign is driving home to Chungking that Japan is not leaving settlement of the China affair to any diplomacy or attrition."

The paper claimed that the Japanese have encircled half a million Chinese troops in central Hunan, and it said the reported capture of Changsha meant that the Chiang Kai-Shek regime had now lost Hunan's food supplies and thus would be deprived of important agricultural reserves.

"The Changsha campaign," the paper said, "comes at a time when an American military mission is either

Orleans Trunk Murder Bared, Suspect Held

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Police Captain Fred Williams said he had filed a charge of murder tonight against Charles N. Ney, 55, also known as James C. Hayden, after the man had identified the naked body of a woman stuffed in a trunk with a rope around her throat as that of his wife.

Williams said Ney offered no explanation of the wife's death in the fashionable uptown residence where they had rented an apartment Wednesday, but merely said, "if I did it, I must have been out of my mind."

The body was discovered this afternoon when Ney asked the owner of the apartment house, Frank Aldige, to help him carry the trunk downstairs.

"Aldige noticed blood dripping from the trunk," Williams said, "and notified police." The coroner, Dr. C. Grenes Cole, said the time of death apparently was late Thursday, and that the cause was a skull fracture.

Williams said Ney, who told police he was born in Paris, France, studied medicine at Heidelberg university in Germany, and had been for a time in an Alabama mental hospital, could give no coherent account of how the woman came to her death. The police captain quoted him as saying he believed the body at first to be that of

NEUTRALITY ACT REPEAL FOUGHT

'Non-Interventionist Bloc' Lining Up To Resist Any Changes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Opponents of administration foreign policy were organizing today for a fight against revision of the neutrality act, and Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, made it clear that opposition senators would resist any changes.

President Roosevelt is expected to confer with his congressional lieutenants Monday and to decide then what recommendations to make in a formal message to congress later in the week.

"I am opposed to either repeal or modification of the neutrality act," La Follette told reporters. "Either proposal would be another step toward actual participation in the war. Therefore, either would be violative of the pledges President Roosevelt made in the 1940 campaign."

Saying that the administration had not yet given a clear-cut outline of what changes were wanted in the neutrality act, La Follette added that "apparently they are trying to decide whether to bury it completely or to leave a skeleton hanging up."

Another administration opponent, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, will return here early next week and, other senators said, is expected to call a meeting of the "non-interventionist bloc" immediately after Mr. Roosevelt announces his recommendations.

Johnson is ranking minority member of the senate foreign relations committee and has been in the forefront of the congressional battles against Mr. Roosevelt's international policies.

The present neutrality law, enacted in 1939, forbids the arming of American merchant ships and prevents them from entering belligerent ports or combat areas fixed by the president. In addition, it prohibits Americans

Russian Army Tells Of Several Successes On More Modest Scale

(By Associated Press)

The first anniversary of the German-Japanese-Italian tripartite pact was marked yesterday by German announcement that five Soviet armies had been annihilated east of Kiev in an "unparalleled" victory; Japanese claims to capture of Changsha, stubborn capital of the Chinese province of Hunan, and Italian decision to ration bread, raise taxes and weed out lukewarm Fascists.

The gigantic German claims overshadowed all others, official Nazis heralding this as the turning point of the entire continent-wide conflict, which has been in progress for 14 weeks.

The Red army told of successes on a more modest scale on the central front and before Leningrad, which a Russian spokesman said never would be taken, no matter how many tens of thousands of Germans fell there.

London saw increasing indications that British forces were moving to help defend the Caucasus in the south.

Official Berlin sources, however, contended British and American help for Russia already was too late because the Soviet Union had been all but knocked out, basing their assertions on this special communique from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters:

"The big battle near Kiev is finished. In a two-sided encirclement of a tremendous region we succeeded in uprooting the Dnieper defense, destroying five Soviet armies with-

U. S. OFFICERS PRAISE MONROE

Colonel Aldrich And Others Extend Thanks For Local Cooperation

That Monroe is "tops" when it comes to showing the spirit of true southern hospitality was voiced in a letter to Miss Lucyle Godwin, Monroe recreation director, written by Colonel Warren Aldrich. He asked that through the press the appreciation of the army be extended to all who in any way aided in making the soldiers' stay pleasant while here on maneuvers. The colonel was in command of the Second army supply depot headquarters here.

He said that no city could have done more for the soldiers than was done here and that Monroe has become recognized nationwide for her efforts, which he said were such as to build up army morale. He said that each and every soldier now knew full well that the people hereabouts are 100 per cent behind them in their efforts for national defense.

A similar sentiment was voiced in letters received from R. C. Morrison, field recreational representative of the FSA, and from Major Jones, chaplain of the 106th artillery.

COLONEL CAUGHT WITH PANTS OFF

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Lieutenant-Colonel Reamon Walters, Kansas state senate Republican, attached as a reservist to the 35th Division, got caught with his pants off today—both figuratively and literally.

He ripped out the seat of his army slacks in climbing through a barbed wire fence during the army maneuvers and persuaded the wife of a roadside stand proprietor to mend his pants.

"Come here, colonel," said the general.

"I can't, sir," stammered Walters.

"I said come here!"

Colonel Walters reluctantly swung his bare legs from the jeep, marched his polka-dotted shorts to the general's car and saluted.

"Where's the bridge," demanded the general. Then he spotted the polka dots.

"Those spots should be red, not blue," he said with the slightest trace of a smile. "We're in the Red army, you know."

Colonel Walters was just starting to smile himself, when the car drove off. He was too embarrassed to ask the general's name, he said.

By Kirke L. Simpson

Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

The astonishing thing about Germany's swift conquest of Kiev just over a week ago is that within that brief time and despite unquestionably terrible losses the Russians have rallied effectively.

Within those few days they have achieved a new defense set-up nearly 200 miles eastward of their former Dnieper front about Kiev. There is ample Nazi testimony that it is a front well implemented with guns and tanks as well as men.

And it has balked at least temporarily Nazi efforts to punch off Kharkov, last great Ukrainian city except Odessa still in Russian hands. It is clear that the Nazi high command had expected quickly to drive wide-sweep pincer arms around Kharkov from the north and south as they did about Kiev, then take it from the rear as Kiev fell.

German strategy counted heavily on the expected confusion and disorganization resulting in a wide gap in Russian ranks due to the fall of Kiev and capture or destruction of Russian armies caught in the Kiev trap. This would have paved the way for an even swifter dash into the Donets basin. The week-long stand of Red forces east of Kiev has upset those German calculations.

The explanation probably is that Russian leadership was well aware of the impending stroke on the Kiev front long before it came. It took time for the Germans, with fantastically long and difficult communications lines, to assemble sufficient forces for the drive about Kiev.

They had to have not only the powerful shock-troop units built about panzer technique to break through Russian lines on both sides of Kiev in a converging sweep that leaped 125 miles east of the city to a junction, but close-up masses of infantry for the follow-up. Holding the ground taken and laying siege to encircled and hard-fighting Russian forces caught in the trap was the business of the foot troops following up the armored divisions. The latter units were to plunge ahead and hoped to engulf Kharkov also in their stride.

But assembling so vast a force as the Germans required took time and needed some secrecy. In hostile territory where grapevine Russian communications must be the order of the day, the possibilities of surprise were strictly limited. The Russians knew what was coming.

Following Nazi seizure of Chernigov on the Desna above Kiev and Kremenchug east of the Dnieper, part of Russian reserves eastward of Kiev were withdrawn, it now seems probable, even before the Nazis lashed out in their vast and quickly executed pincer envelopment of Kiev. It is also reasonably clear that powerful reinforcements were sent from the Moscow defense hub to bolster the probable gap through which the Germans would drive on toward Kharkov.

The fact that for a week after the fall of Kiev the Nazis cited no specific advances beyond the Poltava to the south or Glukova to the north (the gateposts of that 100 mile gap), nor claimed seizure of new towns in the center bears witness to Russian army staff skill in a terrific emergency.

Whether the Red army can hold the indicated Kharkov front remains to be seen.

The Nazi high command can not delay long if it is to glean the full possible fruits of the Kiev victory, however. Failing complete Russian collapse, they must strike eastward anew without delay for every day probably sees Russian defenses strengthened both directly in front of Kharkov and along the south flank of the line to the sea of Azov protecting even more strategically important Rostov. The developing battle of the Crimea illustrates the point.

It is the lesson of all military history that the first blow of a major attack is always the hardest. Succeeding blows, once the initial thrust is halted, come with waning force. Nazi failure to press forward toward Kharkov and Rostov promptly might mean an indecisive winter stalemate in the East—the thing Hitler clearly hoped to avert by a smashing, quick breakthrough in the Kiev battle.

Last Season's Top Elevens Lose Their Opening Games

By Herb Barker

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Boston college and Lafayette, sole eastern teams to escape defeat or tie a year ago, went down to crushing defeat today as the 1941 football season made its official bow.

Boston college, conqueror of Tennessee in the last Sugar Bowl game and tied with Minnesota and Stanford at the top of the 1940 heap, found itself badly overmatched in its tussle with Tulane at New Orleans and took a 21-7 beating for its pains.

A crowd of 45,000 saw Tulane unleash a crushing offensive to score three touchdowns in the first half and hold the visiting Eagles firmly in check except for a brief tune in the third period.

Lafayette, a fine defensive array not quite in the top-flight class a year ago, was soundly trounced by Virginia's Cavaliers, 25-0, as elusive Bill Dudley scored two touchdowns, one on an 89-yard gallop.

Out on the west coast, where an all-major schedule was unfolded, Minnesota's Gophers, picking up where they left off a year ago, handed Washington's Huskies a 14-6 beating with Bruce Smith scoring both Gopher touchdowns. Stanford's Rose Bowl champions, paced by the all-American quarterback, Frankie Albert, overcame stubborn Oregon, 19-13, after a bitter fight.

Southern California, scoring on a pass in the final seconds of play, turned back Oregon State, 12-7. California ripped through St. Mary's Gaels, 31-0. Idaho, coached by Francis Schmidt, erstwhile Ohio State leader, was trounced by Utah, 26-7.

One major upset saw the defeat of North Carolina, normally a Southern conference power, by the Gamecocks of South Carolina, 13-7, thanks to a fourth quarter 66-yard run by Sophomore Stan Stasica.

There were a few other moderate surprises on the opening day, notably Purdue's defeat by Vanderbilt, 7-0, on a first period field goal by Jack Jenkins; Indiana's setback by Detroit 14-7, on a fourth-quarter touchdown pass from Elmer Madarek to Charley Ruth, and de-emphasized Carnegie Tech's 19-13 beating by Westminster.

But mainly the results ran true to form—if there is such a thing at this early stage of the campaign. Navy, touted as an eastern power, gave Williams and Mary a thorough going-over, 34-0, with Bill Busik one of the Tars' major operatives. Notre Dame, making planes were being warmed up for our flight. During the ride I managed to gain the information that the planes we were using were A-24 dive bombers, that we were going to Natchitoches and then comb the highway between that town and points southeast to find a string of Blue army trucks which were reported moving along the highway.

After a member of the ground crew had tucked me in, fastening my safety belt after I had crawled into the gunner's seat, and telling me how to open the hatch above me "if necessary" and adjusting my parachute, we took off. The amiable young man who saw that I was "comfortably" seated asked me if I had ever worn a parachute of that style and model. I assured him that I had, and he closed the hatch. That was lie No. 1.

There were six planes in the flight, and we struck out over West Monroe and continued on a direct line toward Natchitoches. We flew at an altitude of about 900 feet most of the way but as we approached our objective, I saw the altimeter steadily climbing. I looked out, and the landscape was rapidly disappearing from view. Climbing so steadily and so fast without apparent effort that before I knew it the Red river, which lay below us, looked like a birdseye view of a crack in the sidewalk from the top of the Ouachita National bank building.

Up, up, up and up we went, and then it happened.

Suddenly, some 20 or 30 miles southeast of Natchitoches, we dived. I later learned that we dived from approximately 9,000 feet and that our speed was about 250 miles an hour. Frankly I wouldn't know, because the moment Lieutenant Schwab nosed her down, I was hardly capable of noting the details. The sudden movement threw me forward and, so help me, I couldn't push myself back into my seat in an upright position if my life had depended upon it. I sprawled over the railing where a machine gun is ordinarily mounted until we almost reached the "bottom" and then I managed to push back up where I could see the earth rushing up to meet us.

And when he leveled off! That was something. I didn't "blackout" as most persons not used to that sort of thing do, but my back will never be the same.

The diving was done individually, and not in formation, and from that point we went on toward Natchez. At Winnfield the planes joined again in formation, and we combed the highways and byways in that area for further evidence of Blue troops. Once we saw another convoy, but the Blue soldiers immediately scattered for cover and we didn't have another opportunity to dive on 'em.

However, we were credited with destroying the Blue trucks and troops near Natchitoches, and it was another victory for the Reds.

We've all seen formation flying in the movies and from the ground, but the precision of it "on the scene" is a once-in-a-lifetime privilege. At first, it's a bit disconcerting when the planes fly wing-to-wing, but under the expert piloting of Lieutenant Schwab and his mates, there wasn't a bobble. At times it seemed that a person could step from the wing of one plane to another, but not once was there the slightest danger of a collision, so expertly did the pilots maneuver their craft.

The speed of these army planes is best told in the following "log". We left Selman field at approximately 5 o'clock. We went to Natchitoches, then out southeast toward Natchez. We returned via Winnfield and then proceeded to our home field, arriving before 6:15. In other words, we covered almost all of north Louisiana in a few minutes more than an hour.

When we landed, Lieutenant Schwab remarked:

"You should have been with me yesterday. We met some of the Blues' air force and had a real dog fight. We really had some fun."

"Gee," I smiled. "I'm sorry I wasn't with you."

PUBLIC FORUM

IN APPRECIATION

Maneuver headquarters,
Eighth bombardment squadron,
Selman Field,
Monroe, Louisiana

To the people of Monroe:

Through this informal letter, every officer and enlisted man of the eighth bombardment squadron takes opportunity to express sincere appreciation for the friendly reception extended to us by the citizens of Monroe. There are so very many kindnesses we feel grateful for that not all of them can be mentioned:

When we say this, we are thinking of the courtesy of the business people of Monroe; the frequent dances conducted for the enjoyment of the officers and soldiers; of the delicious dinners eaten at private homes; of the cordial invitations to attend church services; of the friendly interest shown by the townspeople toward the men in the service; of the co-operative spirit practiced at the U. S. O. . . . No, we just can't say enough!

We know there are innumerable outstanding people who worked hard and cheerfully to "make the boys feel at home." We regret that each of you can not be commended personally. But let your reward be found in these final words:

You, too, have performed a true service for your government by giving happiness and encouragement to the boys who stand ready to fight in defense of the country all of us love.

Sincerely,
Eighth Bombardment Squadron, Dive Bombers

'BATTLE' FOUGHT IN WEST MONROE

be learned, they didn't enter West Monroe. A World reporter, receiving the tip that the Blues—or an advance guard of them—were nearing the city, rushed out to investigate. He found three Blues on foot in the woods southwest of the Brown Paper Mill but they refused to talk and would not allow the reporter to proceed up a side road where he discovered them. Whether or not a larger force of the "invaders" was present could not be learned, but no more activity was reported during the day.

BOY, 5, FALLS IN WELL, CLIMBS OUT

WICHITA, Kas., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Five-year-old Donnie Maixner fell into a 30-foot well holding six feet of water and despite a gash on his head, extricated himself.

As near as his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Maixner, can reconstruct the incident, Donnie pulled himself out of the water by hanging onto the stones lining the well, rested a moment and then, removing his shoes, began a torturous climb up the rock-lined pit.

When nearly to the top he yelled for his mother to help him over the last few feet of concrete.

ORLEANS TRUNK MURDER BARED

another woman, insisting his wife had left Thursday night for Boston.

The nude form was covered with a towel, the legs doubled up and bound with a heavy sash cord. Salt was strewn inside the trunk.

Williams said Ney related he was going to drive the trunk and its grisly burden to Talladega, Ala., where he had lived as James C. Hayden, and turn the body over to police there.

Captain Williams gave the following account of his investigation:

Ney, a gray haired, spare man wearing glasses, who had a pension as a retired rural mail carrier at Talladega, met a Mrs. Edith B. Lane, about 60 last April in St. Petersburg, Fla., and married her in June in Miami, apparently by proxy while she was in Boston, Mass.

They stayed here briefly last June, went back to Florida, and drove back to New Orleans, arriving here Wednesday.

Today Ney notified Mr. and Mrs. Aldige he was leaving the apartment. Aldige became suspicious as he helped carry the trunk downstairs to Ney's automobile at Ney's request.

Aldige told his wife to telephone police, and when a patrolman arrived, Ney refused to open the trunk. The policeman forced it open and made his grim find.

Officers found on Ney's person money orders totalling $700 made out to "Edith Ney" and $335 in cash. He also was wearing the woman's diamond rings.

In his belongings also were found deposit slips of a bank in Chattanooga, Tenn., in the name of "Edith B. Ney," and a receipt for a mink coat sold to a Mrs. A. L. Lane, No. 62 Lynhurst street, Dorchester Center, Boston.

Where the woman's funds came from was a mystery to local police, who were checking with Boston authorities.

In the man's possessions were cards reading "Charles N. Ney, M. D.," but he told police he never had practiced medicine after studying at Heidelberg. He gave his occupation as that of Jeweler when he rented the apartment.

He told Williams he had been married previously, had two sons and a daughter, and was divorced in 1938 from his former wife.

"The war department is of necessity moving slowly in beginning construction of new defense plants because of the difficulty in obtaining materials for construction," he said, "and emphasis in the past has been on securing full use of existing industrial facilities for defense production."

"However," he said, "construction of new plants is definitely a part of the government's defense program and we have every reason to believe that this area will be included in the selection of sites for plants in the building program."

18 NEW TEACHERS NAMED AT TECH

President Cottingham Announces Changes In Teaching Staff

RUSTON, La., Sept. 27.—(Special)—Appointments of nine new members of the teaching staff of Louisiana Tech, effective with the opening of the fall semester on Thursday, October 2, have been announced by President Claybrook Cottingham.

Miss Ouida Davis of Lubbock, Tex., will replace Miss Charline Lane, resigned, as instructor in physical education. Miss Davis holds the degree of bachelor of education from the University of California and the master of education degree from the University of Texas. She has taught in elementary and secondary schools and is college.

Miss Barbara Thomas of Jacksonville, Fla., has been added to the faculty of the women's physical education department. She has the B. S. degree from the Florida State College for Women and has recently been working toward the master's degree at the Bennington (Vermont) School of Arts, with dancing as her major field. She has been director of physical education at the Robert E. Lee High school at Jacksonville, Fla., and served as student assistant in dancing at the Florida State College for Women.

Richard L. Flowers of Denton, Tex., will be acting assistant professor of speech, substituting this year for Hayes A. Newby, who is on leave for advanced study at the University of Iowa. Mr. Flowers received the B. S. from North Texas State Teachers College and the M. A. from Louisiana State University. His experience includes teaching at McMurray College, Abilene, Tex., and at the Texas School of Technology, Luddock, Tex. He also has done some work in speech and educational service with the Columbia Broadcasting System of New York City.

Harold Smolinski of Minden will be an instructor in accounting, replacing Aubrey Phillips, resigned. He is a graduate of Louisiana State Normal College and received the degree of master of business administration from Louisiana State University. He has been instructor in business and assistant coach at Northern Montana College the past school year.

Miss Marjorie Harp of Baton Rouge will be assistant professor of music, succeeding Mrs. Mike Wells, resigned. Miss Harp formerly was a parish school supervisor of music and has taught at L. S. U. She received the bachelor's degree in music from L. S. U. and has done advanced work in music at Columbia University.

Miss Miriam Larson of Saline, Kan., will be assistant dietitian and manager of the cafeteria, replacing Miss Fern Geyer, resigned. Miss Larson holds the B. S. from Marymont College in Kansas and has had advanced training in dietetics at Oklahoma A. and M.

Jesse W. Rabb of Grand Cane has been added to the staff of the engineering school as assistant professor of mechanical engineering. He is an engineering graduate of Louisiana Tech and received the M. S. degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Howard Ikerd of Oak Grove will be acting assistant professor of electrical engineering, substituting for H. B. Yarbrough, on leave for military service. Mr. Ikerd graduated from Louisiana Tech and has completed residence requirements for the degree of master of electrical engineering at Iowa State College.

John S. Green, of Bastrop, will be assistant professor of agriculture, succeeding J. W. Nelson, resigned. He has the B. S. from L. S. U. and the M. S. from Texas A. and M. He worked three years in the L. S. U. dairy and one year in the university creamery.

FAILS EXAM BUT IS GOOD SLEUTH

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Hugh Spondor, who failed the examination for the state police force, talked up a perfect score as an amateur sleuth.

An electric clock was stolen from a private office. "I knew the thief didn't want it," Spondor said, "so I went to a pawn shop and got it."

Later Spondor saw a courthouse loiterer whose description fitted the owner. Borrowing the man's pocket knife, he observed burrs on the blade. The man admitted the theft and pleaded guilty in county court.

"The burrs," Spondor said, "were caught when the wires leading to the electric clock were severed."

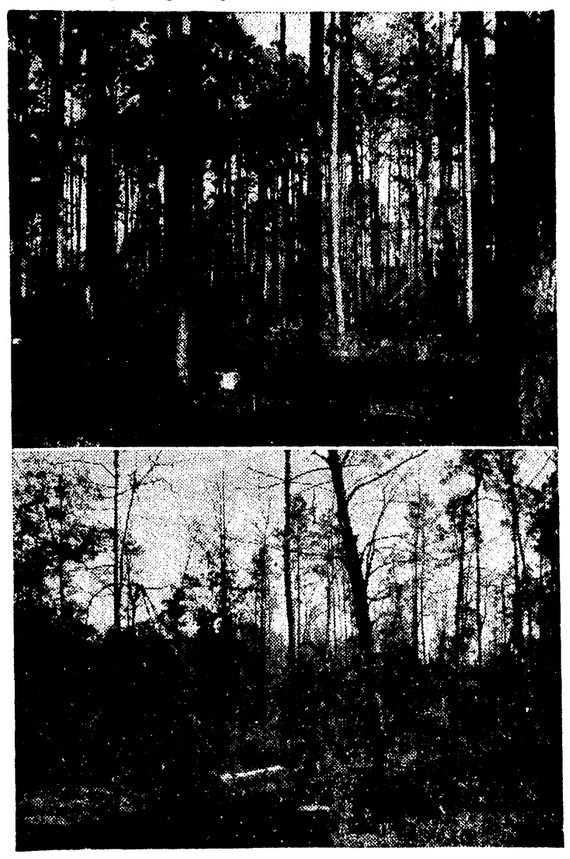
VALUE OF SELECTIVE CUTTING



Here is a striking contrast of a woodland properly managed and cut and a woodland virtually ruined by over-cutting and poor management. The upper picture was taken in a 20-acre woodland after $435 worth of sawlogs had been cut and harvested. The owner had been offered $400 for all the timber. Selective cutting left this excellent stand of healthy growing trees and earned more than the offer for clear cutting. The trees and the ground litter protect the land from erosion. In the lower picture, an overcut woodland is shown. Many years will be required to grow sawlogs here. In the meantime, erosion is damaging the land.

Woodlands Must Be Kept Productive, Farmers Told

District Conservation Officials Urge Proper Methods In Cutting

The future of the farm woodland is at stake when the farmer begins cutting trees for market, according to S. O. Henry, supervisor of the d'Arbonne soil conservation district, with headquarters in Farmerville.

"If the woodland is properly cut, the forest will continue to produce timber and timber products," the supervisor said yesterday. "On the other hand, improper cutting, overcutting and clear-cutting can ruin the woodland for a life-time."

"Depletion of millions of acres of farm woodlands likewise weakens us as a nation," Mr. Henry said. "Although many farmers are taking advantage of good timber prices at this time, they should remember that we must keep our woodland productive so that we can meet any future need for timber and timber products."

John F. Boughton, work unit leader assigned to the district by the United States department of agriculture soil conservation service, pointed out that the first step in marketing of timber is to make an inventory of the woodland. The farmer can learn to inventory the various kinds and sizes of trees and to decide the market in which these trees will be offered. Such a practice will eliminate the mistake of using a tall, straight pine for sawlogs or pulpwood when it would be worth much more if sold as a pole, or the mistake of cutting a large, good quality pine or oak for firewood when it has a high cash value for commercial products, he said.

During this appraisal of the woodland, an estimate may be made of the amount of salable pulpwood, sawlogs and poles, Mr. Boughton said. The owner then may supply this information to as many buyers as possible in order to obtain the best possible price, he stated.

Mr. Boughton suggested that the farmer, if he is not going to harvest the timber himself, should mark the trees to be cut and then enter into a simple, written contract with the purchaser. This contract, he said, should specify: (1) The period in which the buyer has to remove the timber; (2) the price and time of payment; (3) what shall be cut; (4) a penalty for cutting trees the owner wishes to keep growing; and (5) a pledge by the buyer to keep fires out of the woodland and to use careful logging methods.

"By following these steps of seeking expert advice, determining what he has to sell, obtaining competitive bids and of selling by contract, the woods owner will keep his forest permanently productive," Mr. Boughton said. "By carefully selecting the poorer trees to be cut and by leaving the better, rapidly growing high quality trees, the owner is improving his woodland and placing it in better shape to produce even greater returns."

An increased number of sawmill operators is encouraging farmers to use selective cutting and wise woodland management practices, it was pointed out. These operators will mark woodlands for selective cutting and assist the farmer in developing a management program.

Many examples were cited concerning the value of properly cutting and marketing timber, including the case of Dewey Evans of Bernice.

Mr. Evans, according to Mr. Boughton, has 28 acres of woods on his 80-acre farm but only 11 acres of old field pine had any merchantable trees. The best offer made to Mr. Evans was seven dollars per acre on a clear-cut basis. The farm forester marked the stand for a light cutting and assisted Mr. Evans in obtaining a favorable market. After expenses were paid, Mr. Evans received approximately $10 per acre net and his timber was in a better growing condition than before cutting.

The protection and improvement of woodlands, it was explained, is one part of the complete soil and water conservation program being followed by cooperators with the D'Arbonne soil conservation district.

SCIENCE INSTRUCTOR AT N. J. C. IS NAMED

John M. Chilton of Baton Rouge, has been added to the science department of Northeast Junior college, Dean C. C. Colvert announced yesterday. He began work last week as instructor in physics, mechanical drawing, and engineering survey.

Mr. Chilton received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Louisiana State university. In addition, he did work at the University of Chicago, George Washington university, and the University of Colorado.

While engaged in graduate study at L. S. U., he held a fellowship in the physics department. Later he was a graduate assistant in laboratory teaching.

Mr. Chilton is a radio enthusiast with a wide field of practical experience. He has a radio amateur operation's license, class A, and was for five years operator of amateur radio station W5YW, Louisiana State university. He is experienced in designing and repairing radio transmitters and receivers and high fidelity amplifiers.

Mr. Chilton is a member of Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Eta Sigma, national scholastic honor society and Sigma Xi, science fraternity.

LOCAL MAN RECEIVES NATIONAL RECOGNITION

Sergeant At Local Air Base Trained In Technical Field

Herchell Wheat Also In Charge Of Crash Crews With Army Corps Here

A graduate of three air corps technical schools and a light heavyweight boxing champion while at Panama, Staff Sergeant Herchell M. Wheat is now acting first sergeant for headquarters of the first provisional group of dive bombers at Selman field.

He was graduated from the engine and repair section and two technical courses in aircraft mechanics. Following graduation he served two years in Panama, where he was active in the engineering section. He played on the Allbrook baseball team besides holding the light heavy boxing crown.

On his return to the States Sergeant Wheat was stationed at Barksdale field. He remained there, with time out to attend technical schools, until his transfer to Savannah, Ga., last October.

The acting first sergeant made the all-state football team as a halfback. He also figured in football at Southwestern university, where he studied electrical engineering for two years.

Before his enlistment Wheat worked as an electrical and mechanical engineer. Interested in flying, he joined a flying club and earned his pilot's license. He has added quite a few flying hours on his log since he became a pilot.

A good golfer, a boxer, an expert on both roller and ice skates, Wheat is also an excellent dancer.

Sergeant Wheat has served the army both in the engineering department and as a crew chief. He is qualified to take charge of several different types of aircraft and is proficient with the several types of armament they carry.

At Selman field, where he is acting first sergeant, it appears that he will be a technical sergeant in the near future. Along with his other duties, he is in charge of the crash crews which are always on the alert in case of an accident or crash.

Luckily, during the maneuvers so far, the crews have had no duties except remaining alert and ready in case they are needed.

LEAR COMMENDS SIXTH DIVISION

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Sixth division from Fort Leonard, Mo., a regular army unit with 75 per cent selectees, was commended today by Lieutenant-General Ben Lear, Second army commander, "for their soldierly spirit and exemplary conduct in the action of September 18-19."

The division was charged with the defense of its own sector and with the protection of the east flank of the Seventh army corps.

"During this period this division, while subjected to repeated attacks by dive bombers, stubbornly resisted the advance of greatly superior forces and successfully executed a most difficult mission," Lear declared.

FRANCE WANTS NO HELP, DEAT SAYS

Editor Asserts United States Laboring Under Three Misconceptions

PARIS, occupied France, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Marcel Deat, newspaper editor and one of the leading advocates of collaboration between France and Germany, said yesterday in a statement for Americans that France, contrary to American belief, wants no help.

Deat, who was wounded by a would-be assassin on August 28 along with Pierre Laval, former vice-premier of the Vichy government, declared the United States labors under three misconceptions toward France and in turn asked America three questions.

"The first misunderstanding is the American idea that France wants help," Deat said. "We have finally learned we must become strong enough to help ourselves.

"The second misunderstanding is the ludicrous idea that we are enslaved or tortured. The fact is we were beaten militarily exactly as we deserved to be after 20 years of confusion and weakness.

"A third American misunderstanding is that we want someone to occupy our empire for us. We do not. We succeeded in defending Dakar and we nearly succeeded with Syria. We are now strong enough to do the job ourselves and we are going to do it."

Deat said Frenchmen want America to answer three questions: Why the United States regards herself as threatened? Why the United States, which two years ago pursued an independent policy, is now apparently absorbed in European, Russian and oriental problems? Who dominates British-American relationships, the United States or Britain?

American Press Is Free

National Newspaper week will be observed from October 1 to October 6. The idea is to remind people that daily newspapers play an important part in their lives.

The newspaper is the vitalizing instrument of what many persons regard as the cardinal liberty guaranteed by the American constitution. Freedom of speech and of assembly are important. But freedom of the press in modern times has been pre-eminently so, being an essential of modern democratic government and thus a bulwark of all liberty.

The newspaper's essential role is that of a purveyor of information. A newspaper's opinions are not so important—they may be right or wrong, wise or foolish, like those of any person. But the news the papers purvey is all-important. Modern democracy cannot deal with the complex problems that beset it, except as the people are given facts on which to base their collective judgment.

Democracy could not survive without this service. The first act of any dictatorship is to suppress and harness the newspapers.

That is because an uninformed public cannot think for himself. The dictator can enforce the physical obedience of his subjects. But he never feels wholly safe while thought is free. Therefore he censors the press, determining what people shall read and know, and thus holds public opinion to his desires.

In a democracy, nobody can mold public opinion. Propagandists and politicians try, but, as long as facts are free, thought is free. The truth, if facts are available to the public, sooner or later will overcome any effort to pervert it for anybody's selfish ends.

The reporters' function, the furnishing of facts, is the one in which newspapers take the greatest pride. Their code of ethics as to accuracy and objectivity in presenting the news is high and most of them live up to it. Yet the people do not have to rely on any code for the purity of their news. Competition is fierce in the newspaper trade—with modern circulation methods speeding scores of newspapers to a continually widening area—and those who attempt to deceive the people seldom last long at it. A discerning public usually takes care of that.

The United States, now that war has overrun much of the world, is one of pitifully few countries where news and opinion are free. The American people should be glad that American newspapers still are free to serve them.

CRYPTOGRAPHIC SLANG

Reports that the United States army is using "soldier slang" for sending military messages by radio or field telephone, instead of code, may be accepted with reservations. It is known, of course, that no code was ever invented which could not be unscrambled and that a weakness of any code is that its dictionary may be captured, stolen or copied by spies. And it must be granted that the enemy might find it difficult to guess that "John is going to get his belly wet" means that the Fifteenth Infantry is about to ford a stream in full force.

The use of slang was not an infallible method of getting past the Nazi censor in foreign lands, when employed by American reporters. The Germans soon put watchdogs on the job who knew the special language of American slang. And there might be somebody in an enemy listening post, perhaps a former waiter in an American restaurant, who would know at once that the "gent in the mustard-colored shirt" is the commander of the umpty-teenth division.

Those who have listened to the chatter of juvenile rug-cutters, to the shop talk of television engineers or airplane pilots, to the linguistic short cuts of craftsmen in almost any trade, can believe that soldiers speak a special language of their own. Lieutenant Colonel Raymond C. Lehman, intelligence officer of the Ninth Army Corps, says its use for secret messages was proven in the recent Pacific northwest war maneuvers and calls it "modern cryptography."

The use of "modern cryptography" may enliven the routines of the war games, but few persons would care to trust the fate of the nation to it.

People building new homes have been asked not to install oil burners that cannot be converted to coal. Those who fear a coal shortage may develop should build in the woods.

New armament estimate for the United Sates is $40,000,000,000 a year, or about half the national income. There will be butter, too, but it may be spread thin.

Some doctors are reported becoming skeptical about spinach. Perhaps it may develop that the spinach fad was just so much spinach.

Finland appears to be in the position of having to choose between Germany and Russia and what a dilemna that is.

With defense funds pouring out in a flood, there is some concern now lest the pump be primed too liberally.

JIMMIE FIDLER In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27.—Looking through a file of National Geographic Magazines the other day, I noted how many of the locales pictured there have been used by Hollywood, even more graphically, as movie backgrounds—and I was impressed by the meticulous accuracy of the studio workmen.

The picture industry focuses its spotlight on stars, directors and producers, meanwhile brushing off its technicians and research experts with a one-line mention of credit titles that few fans bother to read. Yet those obscure workers deserve plenty of praise, for they carry much responsibility. Because their jobs are performed well, the screen has become, today, more valuable than school text-books in teaching geography and acquainting the people of one country with those of other nations.

Every theater-goer has seen Trafalgar Square, the Eiffel Tower, Yosemite, New York's Broadway, the Lindenstrasse and St. Peter's in Rome. He knows the characteristics of the New England coast, the beauties of Alaska's glacial valleys, the chief features of Hawaii and the physical appearance of the South African veldt. And he knows, from actual film shot there, how John and Jane Public in a hundred different lands dress and act and eat and work.

Next time you see a picture, pay especial attention to those thousands of details which combine to furnish background. And forget your star-worship long enough to give a cheer for the humbler people in Hollywood who bring the whole world to your doorsteps.

Idol Chatter: The beauty of Hollywood's long established femme stars should be consolation for women who dread their 'thirties. . . . Smile-alikes: John Wayne and Tom (gridstar) Harmon. . . . Maybe screen funny men wouldn't be so comical if they failed to keep their wits about them. . . . Epitaph to an overlong movie kiss: Lost in the Hays. . . . Before completing her new all-glass mansion, Arline Judge should have the property combed for rocks. . . . Nominated for the most-modest-actor award: Donald Woods. . . . Ben Blue thinks Hollywood might be perfect—if only the climate didn't agree with so many relatives. . . . Add fire-truck chasers: Rosalind Russell. . . . Looks like 20th Century underestimated George Montgomery's romantic prowess in titling his first picture—it should have been "The Ladies and the Cowboy." . . .

W. C. Fields isn't a seafarer—but few sailors have seen more schooners cross the bar. . . . Windy name: Gale Storm.

Fidlings:

Scoff if you will at John Barrymore,
Sneer at his vows not to marrymore,
Yet, in spite of his antics,
I defy you pedantics,
To show me a man who can carrymore.

What's news: The fact that Lou Costello was wearning a parachute pack, when he was hit by a taxi-ing plane during nite scenes for Universal's "Keep 'Em Flying," probably saved his life. As it was, he suffered a fractured rib. . . . Edmund Lowe, rumored verging on matrimony with Thelma (socialite) Furness, is sending orchids to Gail Patrick. . . . Hottest talent hunt in town is underway at RKO, with six new contract players inked in one day last week. . . . Renee (just divorced) De Marco and Bill Gerard, once wed to Helen Kane, are dancing cheek to cheek. . . . Mabel Todd is all smiles because hubby Maury Amsterdam, long "on the road," has been signed for an indefinite engagement at the Hollywood Bandbox. . . . Mae West is mulling a Bdwy offer big enough to make you gasp. . . . Wotzis about Eddie Norris, with his hair newly dyed black, paying daily visits to Mary Beth Hughes at MGM? . . . Don't worry about that Loretta Young-Tom Lewis marriage; they're still celebrating each monthly anniversary. . . . Arizona Chambers of Commerce are burning because RKO is filming "Valley of The Sun," an Arizona story, in New Mexico.

Intimate notes: An amateur astronomer in Chicago asks: "Don't you think that in Hollywood, where the sun shines so much, sun spots may have something to do with current hysteria?" Could be, but since so many Hollywoodites are in a perpetual fog, it doesn't seem quite fair to blame the sun. Let's just blame the stars. . . . From a Louisvillain: "With that waistline, why do they cast Jack Oakie as a college freshman?" Might be a matter of logic. A collegian (in the movies) always plays football. A football has to take it on the chin—and Jack developed his chin mightily with that recent performance as Mussolini. . . . A loyal Floridan wants to know why so many Hollywood people vacation in Alaska? Well, it sounds like a swell place to cool off. I'm thinking of taking a trip there myself!

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

"I've come in to see that Rudy gets a new teacher."

"What's wrong? Rudy has a good teacher. None better."

"He has a string of D's on his card this first month. He will never get a good mark with that teacher. Give him a new one and he will do much better. You'll see how smart he will be with another teacher. A man teacher who will make him work."

"He doesn't work much now, does he?"

"He never does any homework never studies a thing, always he says he did it in school."

"But his teacher talked to you and gave you his lessons for a week and still he did none. Couldn't you see that he did his homework?"

'He wouldn't do it. He needs a man teacher. A strict one. Then he will work."

"I doubt it. He is the one boy in the class who has done nothing and we think that it is because he cannot do the work. Did he get good marks in his old school? Before he came here?"

"Not exactly good; not exactly bad. He wasn't so good either. But you give him a man teacher—"

"He has the best teacher in town right now. We think that Rudy is not able to do this work. He cannot read, spell, do arithmetic, or any other subject in the grade. We are going to examine him carefully, have the specialists see him, and give him work he can do."

"Don't you put him back. Remember. Don't put him back. I'll make him work. His father will make him work. You give him to a man teacher and he will make him work. Don't put him back. He must get smart and go through college. If he stays until he votes he must graduate."

Every teacher knows that story. Every school administrator knows it in terms of holdover pupils, extra costs, special classes and the other adjustments that are made for the backward, failing pupils. Always their parents cling to the hope that they will be smart and graduated from college. Few among them seem to realize that all men and women are not college graduates, and that some children are not able to take schooling beyond the first few grades.

If the child is healthy and in control of his body, he can find a place in life that will offer him happiness and content because he feels useful and wanted. The schools could do a great deal toward that by selecting those pupils early in their careers and heading them toward usefulness in other fields.

Some day the educational authorities will be intelligent enough about this problem to establish school colonies close to big cities, where those who are not bookish can be reared to usefulness. They will establish school colonies whose certificates will gratify the ambition of these otherwise helpless children and afford them an entry into active life without the usual blight that falls on them in special classes.

Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School Lesson For Oct. 5
Text: Genesis 1:26-28; Matthew 6:24-33
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The foundation of a great religion was laid when man dared to conceive of himself as made in the image and likeness of the God who made him. Here was spiritual insight, clear, true, and sound, the full significance of which we can appreciate when in contrast we see the type of religion that had man cowering before the forces of nature, or bowing down to grotesque idols.

The writer of Genesis saw man in God's image, with dominion over lesser creatures and with dominion over his world. It is this view of man that is amply demonstrated throughout the centuries of human history. Man, like God the Creator, is himself a creator.

He has conquered seas and oceans; he has bridged great rivers and chasms; he has ascended high mountains and delved far into the depths of the earth. We see man, in spite of the short span of human life and the limitations of human weakness, as exercising dominion.

On the other side of the picture, we see man with his great capacity and high estate, spurning his nobility and power to act more like a devil than like the good God who made him, and even perverting his great powers and capacities at their highest to evil and destructive ends.

It is man in these two capacities of character and with the power of choice, that is set before us in the second portion of our lesson from the words of Jesus. The quality of human life, Jesus says, depends upon choice, and there are masters in rivalry for human choice that are utterly at variance.

No man can serve two masters. Thus was the distinctive message of Jesus—that true life and true religion were based upon commanding will and decision, by which a man gave himself and all that he had wholeheartedly and unreservedly to the side of right and love and truth. Anything less than this means crucial shortcoming and weakness. If lives fail to measure up to this standard, it is to the loss of these lives. The standard of Christian living is always commanding and exacting.

God who created man is on the side of man to help and strengthen him. Man who has consecrated his life to God may live a life of faith above fear and anxiety. To seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness is to establish all of life upon a sound and unshakable foundation.

It is the tragedy of our times that God-like man should choose to make himself so devil-like, ruining and destroying where the whole purpose of God and of man at his best is to create and build.

Can we restore to man the vision of himself as the privileged child of God? The Bible is a great revelation of what man and human society could be, if men fulfilled the character and destiny for which God made them.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(World Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Under its new chairman, the Honorable Clarence Cannon, B. S., A. B., A. M., LL. B., LL.D., of Elsberry, Mo., the appropriations committee of the House of Representatives is currently holding hearings to see about appropriating some more money.

If you had any vague ideas that they would be meeting to see about appropriating less money, be yourself and stop clowning. The approach in Washington these days isn't to see how much cannot be appropriated, but to appropriate whatever is necessary for the national defense. But everything is called national defense these days, and whenever anyone goes up to a statesman and asks how about cutting a couple of billion dollars off the appropriations, as Albert W. Hawkes, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and others have suggested, the usual answer is, "That's an interesting idea—what would you suggest we cut? We're always open to proposals for economy."

So it isn't just the $5,985,000,000 second lease-lend request that the appropriations committee is considering now with dead pan seriousness, but 17 other items totaling $219,832,484.39. These are requests from various government departments that have accumulated with the appropriations committee since the new fiscal year began July 1.

17 In The Red

The sad fact is that 17 government departments have already run behind on their estimates for the current year and they want more dough. So the appropriations committee has figured it will tack these $219 million on to the $5,985 million lease-lend request and pass the whole thing as one bill. And why not? For why worry about such a little thing as $219 million for domestic use when you're appropriating nearly $6 billion for lease-lend?

Chairman Cannon gives every assurance that the appropriations committee is fully aware of its responsibility to scrutinize every item on every bill. The $5,985 million lease-lend bill, you are assured, has already been cut twice—cut to the bone. The concept of any appropriation, no matter how astronomical it was in the first place, being cut to the bone and still having only $15 million less than $6 billion remaining as the bone rather staggers your imagination.

As for the $219 million-plus being requisitioned for domestic use and tacked onto the lease-lend appropriation bill just to get it passed, there are some interesting items.

Needs Shooting Irons

Biggest item is a request of $120,000,000 from the navy for ordnance and ordnance stores. Well, if the navy is to shoot on sight, it probably needs something to shoot with.

Then the Tennessee Valley Authority wants $40 million for its big dam deal, so it can make more electricity to make more aluminum.

The treasury wants $25 million for the coast guard, and the office of scientific research and development wants just under $17 million for the purposes best stated in their respective names. Since both of these are defense measures, they'll probably go through without question.

Next in size on the list is a request for an appropriation for sundry items—you know, needles, pins, maybe a new broom or dustpan to keep house with. This request comes from Harold Ickes' department of the interior, and for these sundry items all that is requested is $2,283,749.39. Mr. Ickes, you can make a note to forget to buy his wife what Harold wants that 39 cents for. Here certainly, is one item that can be cut.

This sundry item business even goes over into the sedate state department, usually one of the most frugal of all federal offices, but which must now have an additional $3,032,300—for sundry items.

The smallest item on the list is a request for a paltry $14,385 for the national mediation board, the outfit on which rests the responsibility for preventing a railroad strike that, if permitted to come off, would tie the defense effort and the whole country in 14,385 different kind of knots.

In view of all the billions and millions that are being asked for in this appropriation bill, don't you suppose, if you wrote your congressmen real hard, he'd vote another $15 for a few boxes of cigars for the national mediation board, just to make their appropriation come out even at $14,400?

STAMP NEWS

Father Leaves George VI Famous Stamp Collection

LIKE President Roosevelt, King George VI of England is a philatelist. His father left him one of the finest stamp collections in the world, and he has maintained it ever since his death.

Canada, as a part of the British Commonwealth of Nations, shares the mother country's fierce devotion to its king. This was clearly shown by the enthusiastic reception given to King George and Queen Elizabeth on their 1939 visit to the dominion.

The 1937 portrait stamp above, was one of the British empire's coronation series.

George VI, third of the House of Windsor, was born Dec. 14, 1895, son of the late George V and Queen Mary. He succeeded to the throne Dec. 10, 1936, after his brother, Edward VIII, abdicated to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, an American.

The king is as conservative in dress as Edward was daring. Along with philately, his hobbies are gardening, tennis, golf and hunting.

KIWANIS CLUB IS PRAISED IN TALK

Seventy or more Kiwanis club members and their wives attended the barbecue supper served by the Logtown Home Demonstration club, on the campus of the school there, on Thursday night. An outstanding feature of the evening was a talk by R. C. Morrison, field recreational representative of the farm security agency, who paid eloquent tribute to the work that the Kiwanians are doing in bringing residents of the city and country together.

A bounteous meal was served on the school campus, after which pictures of native flowers of Louisiana were shown in films in the school gymnasium by C. W. Davis, district agricultural agent.

After this, Mr. Morrison was introduced. He gave unstinted praise to the hospitable spirit shown in Monroe in the treatment afforded the soldiers on maneuvers here and he said that it takes more than tanks and guns to win a war; that it is the morale of the people back of it all that really makes for success or failure.

He said that the Kiwanis club is doing an amazing work in connection with its agricultural committee, and that the farmer is all important at a crucial time like this, as food will play an important role in winning the war.

New York Day by Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

FALMOUTH, Mass.—Diary: For weeks I've been feeling the urge to get away from the City for one of my un-Broadwaying expeditions, so when the clock struck Monday morning, I took a train on the old, familiar trail to Providence . . . At the same time, I saw Daughter Mary off to her first newspaper job, at the Yonkers Statesman . . . and what memories the morning awoke, of my own first newspaper job, while I was still in school, and of how frightened I was that I might be fired for my incompetence the first week! . . . Well, school is long and pleasant, but so is work, and I hope the youngster may have as much joy out of her first newspaper job as I had from mine . . . And Daughter Pat, too, off on her first job, as secretary in the office of Dean Carl Ackerman, of the Graduate School of Journalism, at Columbia university . . . The girls are growing up, all right, exchanging the golden days of childhood for the brave years of youth.

Entering Providence, it seemed natural to see the student welcoming committee at the railroad station, greeting the prospective freshmen for Brown university. They've been doing that since the railroad was built, and long before that the welcoming committees used to go down the road to meet the prospects who were returning, on horseback, from the Revolutionary War, to take up their interrupted school work.

On a certain night, the governor burned the bonds wherewith the beautiful marble capitol was built. The ceremony took place on the front steps of the capitol, and was broadcast. Hotelman Charles Cyrus and I sat in a room, high up in the Biltmore, a mile or so away, and watched the ceremony through binoculars, while listening to it on the radio. We could see the speaker's lips move in pronouncing the words, and hear the words at the same instant, and we marveled at these scientific wonders to which we have become accustomed.

The dome of the Rhode Island capitol building is all of marble, and they tell me that it is one of the four great marble domes of the world. One is at the Cathedral of St. Peter, in Rome. One is that of Taj Mahal, in India, and I believe the other is the stately crown of the Cathedral in St. Paul, Minn.

Instead of a Greek god or goddess, a figure entitled The Independent Man crowns the dome of this capitol. Rhode Islanders make much of their independence. Historically, they have always refused to knuckle under to tyrants. The first shot of the Revolutionary War was fired right out here in Narragansett Bay by old Sheriff Whipple, and struck the Captain of His Majesty's ship "Gaspee."

In the hotel dining room, I met old friends, including one of Mary's classmates, Miss Ann Crowley, who told me that she, too, had that day done her first work for a salary, and had had a good ease of beginner's jitters.

A tale that made me laugh was told by Mr. Frank Weston. He graduated from Lafayette college, in Easton, Pa., in 1919, and afterward went to work in Boston. There he headed the local alumni association of his alma hater. At a reunion last spring, he was invited to make a speech.

Press of work kept Weston from thinking about his speech until he was back on the campus. There, looking over the list of honorary degrees that have been conferred by Lafayette, he noted the name of Winston Churchill as the recipient of such an honor.

So our hero built his address around this item. He told how he had had the good fortune to witness the conferring of that degree, described the noble carriage of that distinguished English man as he marched in the academic procession, and congratulated his alma mater upon the foresight that caused her thus to honor a man who was destined to stand as a bulwark for liberty in a time of chaos.

After the dinner, it was voted by a small group, headed by Weston, to send a cable of congratulation to the British Prime Minister, reminding him of his honorary degree and letting him know that his fellow alumni at Lafayette were still for him.

Next day the president of the college congratulated Weston upon his great speech.

"Unfortunately," he added, "the degree you talked of was never granted to the English statesman, but to the distinguished American writer of the same name."

The alumni never had any response to their cable.

So I'm writing this beside the sea, out on glorious Cape Cod, within sight of Martha's Vinyard.

I sit on the sunny porch of the summer home of Mr. Peter Boggs, the dog writer. Beside me is Chance, a fine pointer who has become my fast friend. Pal, the other pointer, sits with his master, who is writing in another part of the house.

SAWICKI GIVEN DEATH SENTENCE

Slayer Of Four Pleased Over Winning Package Of Cigarets

CHICAGO, Sept 27.—(AP)—Bernard (Knifey) Sawicki got the electric chair and a package of cigarets and, consistent with the casual way in which he boasted of killing four persons, was more interested in the smokes than life and death.

"You lose," the 19-year-old orphan grinned at a bailiff as a jury convicted him last night of murdering a park policeman. "You said I wouldn't get the chair. You owe me. Gimme a pack of cigarets."

As he was led from the courtroom he leered at the chief prosecutor, Richard Devine, and muttered:

"There's a guy I'd like to get a pot shot at."

"I ain't sore at nobody," he laughed later as he walked about his cell. "I said I'd roast, didn't I?"

The jury of seven women and five men took an hour and ten minutes to convict him of murdering Officer Charles Speaker. Four ballots were taken before agreement on the extreme penalty.

Insanity was the defense plea of Morton Anderson, public defender, who told how the "neglected, motherless boy" had been found on the doorstep of the Sawicki home in Hart, Mich., when he was three days old.

His other victims, all slain within 72 hours in June, with Sawicki's comments in his confession to Police Captain Hugh McCarthy, were:

Henry Alisin, 72, farmer who had Sawicki sent to the Illinois training school for boys: "Put the finger on me, the stinking squealer. I hate squealers."

John J. Miller, 19, who with a woman companion was held up in a park: "I tell this guy it's a stickup. He gets wise and starts scrapping and the dame scratches me. So I shoot the guy."

Charles Kwasinski, 17, a fellow inmate of the training school: "The squealing sneak. I wanted him to hold up a hotel with me and he gets yellow. So I shot him twice."

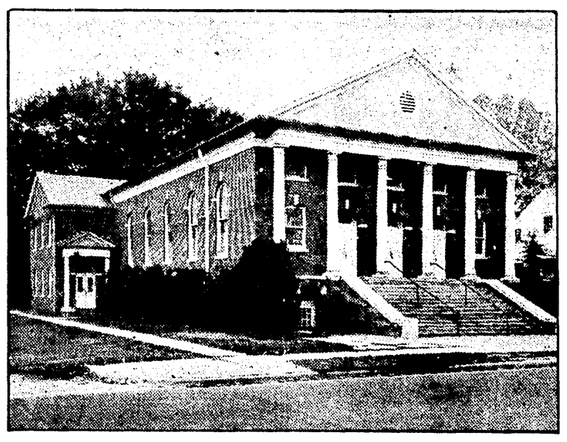
When he was seized by [illegible] Sawicki was carrying the death weapon in a chamois bag. [illegible] arm was a box of chocolates for his foster mother.

COTTON EXCHANGE TO SAVE INTEREST

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The New Orleans cotton exchange will refund its mortgage debt at a saving of 33 1-3 per cent in interest charges per year, it was announced today.

The decision was made at a meeting of the membership yesterday at which a unanimous vote was cast to support the directors' proposal to pay off $25,000 of the current bonded debt of $400,000 bearing 6 per cent interest and refund the remaining $375,000 mortgage loans bearing 4 per cent. The loans will rest on the exchange building which was appraised this year at $807,500.

HANDSOME EDIFICE DEBT-FREE



The First Methodist church of West Monroe will be formally dedicated this morning at 11 a.m. by Bishop A. Frank Smith, Houston, Tex., marking the first time in two decades that the property has been completely debt-free.

Methodist Congregation To Dedicate Church Building

West Monroe Edifice Now Out Of Debt; Growth Has Been Rapid

The First Methodist Church of West Monroe will be formally dedicated in impressive exercises to be held there this morning at 11 o'clock. The sermon will be delivered by A. Frank Smith, Houston, Tex., presiding officer of the Louisiana conference.

Dr. C. Karlos Smith, who is now serving his fourth year as pastor, initiated a campaign for the payment of all indebtedness on the church property, and under his leadership the members have succeeded in liquidating every dollar of indebtedness. Now, for the first time in more than 20 years, the church is free of debt, which includes both building cost and assessments for sidewalks and street paving.

In the impressive ceremony that is planned today and in which the mortgage will be formally burned, a number of former pastors will participate. These will include Rev. Martin Hebert, Rev. Louis Hoffpauir, Rev. H. N. Brown, Rev. F. J. McCoy, and Rev. J. R. Roy. The altar and chancel of the church will be elaborately decorated for the occasion and it is expected that so many people will desire to participate that the edifice will prove all too small to accommodate the day's congregation.

Members of the board of stewards stated that the church, directed by Dr. Smith, has made unusual progress in every department in the past four years. There have been 400 new names added to the church membership, and physical improvements on the building and grounds have been extensive, together with the raising of $15,000 in the various church departments and the liquidating of the church debt of many years standing.

All this has been accomplished through the united sacrifices and unswerving devotion of the membership, stewards stated.

The original church was erected in Old Trenton before the War Between the States. About 1885, during the pastorate of Rev. William Hart, the church was moved to its present location. The present church edifice was built during 1919 and 1920 under the pastorates of Rev. J. R. Roy and Rev. H. W. Ledbetter, and some difficulty was experienced in the financing of the rather elaborate edifice for that time. In 1925, $13,000 was borrowed and before the loan was completely paid out, the church had paid in principal and interest a total of nearly $23,600, or almost twice the amount of the original loan.

Dr. Smith in commenting on the never-tiring efforts of his membership, stated: "The heroic, sacrificial effort on the part of the membership of this church deserves the admiration of every Christian man and woman in the Twin Cities."

The flowers that will serve as an outstanding feature of the morning service will be placed at the altar in memory of deceased members of the church. Their names are given as follows:

Dr. J. R. Henry, Mrs. Leeta Rills McClendon, Mrs. J. D. Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hunt, Grandma Hunt, Mrs. E. S. Harper, Sr., I. H. Hamilton, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cummings, Joe Brownlee, Lula Inabnet Riggin, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sutcliff, Bob Mitchell, L. M. Hearn, Dr. W. J. Hodge, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Cason, Mrs. R. B. Stellwagon, Mrs. Annie Lent, Dr. T. L. Hood, Captain and Mrs. W. L. Morris, Mrs. Emma Catlett, Mrs. Mary Albright, Mrs. Charles Breazeale, Mrs. P. H. Vernon, J. A. Peck, Ella Sinatt Peck, John M. McKee, Natalie McKee Weightman, Miss Lou Sinatt, Rev. C. T. Munholland, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Kirkpatrick, T. T. Howe and Mrs. L. I. Hatton.

DR. WILL DURANT TO SPEAK HERE

Noted Philosopher To Appear On Town Hall Program October 20

Dr. Will Durant, outstanding philosopher-historian and lecturer, will appear on the next Town Hall program at the Northeast Junior college, October 20 at 8 p.m. He will take for his theme "The World Revolution."

This distinguished philosopher and speaker will analyze the underlying causes of the most extensive social disturbance in history, now holding the world in its grip.

Durant first came to the public's attention with the publication of his "Story of Philosophy," the sale of which ran to nearly three million copies and made literary history. The book was translated into 12 languages and is generally regarded as a classic. Then came "Transition," "The Mansions of Philosophy," and "Adventures of Genius."

He is now at work on his great "Story of Civilization," of which part 1 "Our Oriental Heritage," and part 2, "The Life of Greece," already have appeared. Part 3, "Caesar and Christ," will appear in 1945 and he has already projected two additional volumes, "The Age of Faith," depicting the middle ages, and "The Age of Reason," dealing with the modern era.

Dr. Durant has supplemented his extensive study and research in America by many visits to Europe and two trips around the world. He has traveled across the United States some 30 times. In the years following study at Columbia university, where he received his Ph.D. degree, he learned the art of making difficult subjects intelligible to popular audiences. He began his literary career as writer of pocket treaties on philosophy, history, and literature.

While the present war raises many doubts in his mind concerning much that the world has termed progress during the past century, Dr. Durant has been quoted as voicing the belief that, while the present generations may be called upon to endure crucial days, our children's children will have happier and more serene lives than any history has yet known for whole peoples. The present horror and destruction will, he believes, ultimately lead to a better adjustment and saner mode of living.

MRS. KENT AIDS IN EDITING BOOKLET

Mrs. Dallas Petagna Kent, daughter of J. R. Petagna, of Monroe, who is now educational news editor for the Louisiana state department of education, Baton Rouge, has assisted in the preparation of an illustrated booklet entitled "Louisiana for Defense" which shows training programs in the state, issued from the office of Superintendent John E. Coxe.

Program No. 1 is trade and industrial; other programs are for out-of-school rural and non-rural youth, and there is a program for youth employed on NYA work projects.

The booklet also contains a breakdown of the three national defense training programs as they are operated by the state vocational sections of trade and industrial education, agriculture, home economics and distributive education.

Mrs. Kent has many friends here, where she lived for many years. She is a graduate of Louisiana State University school of journalism.

GLOBE TROTTER

Del Harter, world traveler and a graduate of the University of California, who will deliver a public lecture at Northeast Junior college at 11:30 Tuesday morning.

IN HAIFA IN 1940, NOW PUPILS HERE

Principal Paul Neal of Neville High school ran into a somewhat unusual and interesting experience in connection with registering students for the school the past week. A young woman sought to register and when she was asked where she last attended school, she said at Haifa, Palestine. The principal in surprise asked how she came to go to school there and she replied that her father is an army officer and was stationed there last year.

A little later the same day, a young man appeared also to go through the form of registering. When he was asked as to where he last attended school he replied that it was at Haifa, Palestine. His father also was an army officer and both of these prospective students were in no way related and only by chance will attend the Neville High school together this fall, and last fall they attended the same school in Palestine.

The young woman's name is Gladys Stevenson and the young man's is Jack Peterson.

Registrations at Neville, including grade 7, will close this week, Mr. Neal said.

Federal gasoline tax collections for the first six months of 1941 were $169,127,079, or 55½ per cent higher than during the first half of 1940.

WORLD TRAVELER TO SPEAK HERE

Del Harter Will Be Presented At Junior College Tuesday Morning

Del Harter, world traveler, will be presented at the Northeast Junior college auditorium Tuesday at 11:30 a.m., Fred G. Thatcher, chairman of the college assemblies committee, announced yesterday. The public is invited.

The University of California had become an immense educational institution before Delbert Harter entered it a few years ago, but he made the football team. He was also prominent in social and school government activities.

As the result of an insurmountable urge to travel, young Harter made three trips around the world, the last just after graduating from the university.

This urge was a keen interest to know what folks in other parts of the world were doing and thinking. Del Harter wanted to find out for himself rather than read second hand reports from foreign correspondents. To be practical, his work at the university was outlined, so he took the courses which would be of value to him in not only helping him get around the world but in having a background to understand what he was seeing.

In working his way through U. C. L. A. he sang with a dance orchestra—later he earned meals singing in Egypt; he did commercial deep-sea diving on the Frisco bay bridge construction; he piloted a plane for dusting farm crops before he was offered a job flying in the Spanish army which he declined; he even tried a parachute jump at the Sacramento airport. An all-round athlete, he played football, boxed, rowed on the crew, and was a high-jumper on the track and field team.

Delbert Harter has been in 58 foreign countries and possessions during two and a half historical years. He saw Christmas in Bethlehem; watched Schuschnigg's historic meeting with Mussolini in Venice; saw the Ethiopian expeditionary forces return from Africa; witnessed the coronation of King George VI in London; traveled 2,500 miles across Russia; witnessed weird rites in India; saw the famous ruins of Angkor-Vat; was on a train which was bombed going into Hongkong, and had a thousand other thrilling experiences which he interprets into an understanding of the kinship of all men.

The Little Boy who wasn't there-

How Many Monroe and West Monroe Children Will Meet This Fate?

It was nine o'clock in the morning, the opening day of school. The teacher called the roll and everybody answered by holding up his hand. Everybody, that is, except little Frank Wallace. He wasn't there.

Frank was in the hospital with his little body mangled. His head hung at an unnatural angle. Both his legs were broken and he was coughing blood. The doctor shook his head. Mrs. Wallace stood there, sobbing quietly, and Mr. Wallace clenched and opened his fists—

YOU KILLED FRANK WALLACE! You drivers who relied on your horn, rather than on your brakes, on good luck rather than on good sense. You took that little boy out of a classroom where he belonged, and put him into a cold, damp grave.

Drivers, be careful! Little children don't always stop to think before running into the street. We who are older must think for them. We must have our cars in good condition so that we can stop when we have to. We must go slowly in school zones, obey the traffic warnings and the schoolboy safety patrol.

We must save lives, not squander them.

Because—your own children go back to school today. Are they safe?

YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR HIM

IF you haven't seen to it that your car is in good condition, with the brakes, lights, and steering all functioning perfectly.

IF you don't drive slowly enough to bring your car to a complete stop within 2 feet in a school zone, or if you disobey any warning or traffic signs or signals or the directions of the schoolboy safety patrol.

IF you do not at all times do your duty as a citizen by respecting the rights of others, whether they are fellow drivers or unsuspecting children, and by safeguarding those rights as you would safeguard your own.

CITIZEN JONES' TAXES TO GO UP

5 annual use tax on the car will go into effect next February.

Deciding on his return home that he needs a new radio and refrigerator, Mr. Jones will pay a 10 per cent tax on each. Should he want to buy his wife a piano, a bottle of perfume or piece of luggage he will pay 10 per cent tax also on them.

When visitors come for a game of pinoche, he will pay a levy of 13 cents a pack for cards. When he wants to take a picture of his family there will be the 10 per cent on photograpnic apparatus.

The telephone bill will go up—5 per cent on local bills and 10 per cent on most long distance calls—and a new typewriter will invoke the 10 per cent tax on business machines.

If Mr. Jones is a laundry operator he will have to pay 10 per cent more for his washing machines, but he could buy one for his home without tax.

Keeping a safe deposit box will cost him 20 per cent of the rental price, and belonging to his club might bring on the 10 per cent levy on club dues of more than $10 annually.

The movies will cost more, too, because the new bill puts an approximate 10 per cent tax on all admissions costing 10 cents and more. If Mr. Jones shoots a game of pool or spends a half-hour in a bowling alley he might pay a trifle more because of the annual $15 tax on bowling alleys, billiard and pool tables.

ASSERTS U. S. TAXED HEAVIER THAN BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce said today that the new tax bill would bring the tax burden of the United States above that of Great Britain, whether measured on a per capita basis or as a percentage of national income.

Commenting that there was a general "erroneous belief" that the tax burden is higher in Britain, the chamber, in its periodical Washington review, said a "conservative estimate" for federal, state and local taxes approximated $22,500,000,000 or a per capita figure of $168 for the current fiscal year and that the per capita burden was likely to reach $180 for a full year of new taxes.

The per capita tax in Britain for the current period is $165 and after a full year of operation of new taxes will be about $173, the chamber said.

On per capita basis of national incomes, the chamber said, United States taxes would take 25 per cent and British taxes 22 per cent.

WORKERS VOTE TO CLOSE STEEL MILLS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Steel Workers Organizing Committee (C. I. O.) voted by acclamation tonight to close the vast steel mills of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company in the Birmingham district at 12 p.m., central daylight time.

This action was taken at a mass meeting at the Fairfield C. I. O. hall and followed the reading of a telegram from Governor Dixon in which the governor refused to withdraw state guard troops stationed earlier today at the entance to the Ensley works.

In his telegram, Dixon declared "the state guard was sent to Ensley to prevent bloodshed and preserve order and will be kept there until these results are assured."

The number of dairy cows in New York stat has changed only slightly in the past 10 years, but total milk production has almost doubled.

SCENES AT BEAUTIFUL CHEMIN-A-HAUT STATE PARK NEAR BASTROP

FREE METHODIST PASTORS NAMED

The annual conference of the Free Methodist church of Louisiana has officially recognized the recently organized Free Methodist Church in West Monroe and has named as pastors Miss Anne Keil and Mrs. M. Arnold. They are instructed to proceed with the building project now well under way.

Damages inflicted by the recent storm to the tent at Fifth and Filhiol streets in West Monroe have been repaired. Services to which the public is invited will be held today with Sunday school at 10 a.m. and preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:45 p.m.

A new series of children's services will start Monday from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. and will continue through Friday. There will be special awards made to the children who have attendance records.

TRAVELS FAR BUT FINDS DOCTOR DEAD

NILES, Mich., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A Royal air force pilot, blinded in an air battle over Northern England, journeyed 3,600 miles from England in hopes that Dr. Fred N. Bonine, noted eye specialist, could restore his sight.

Today the sightless flier, 37-year-old Vernon C. Willard, learned upon his arrival that Dr. Bonine had died last August 22.

"He was my last hope for all the other doctors have said the most it would be impossible to restore even partial sight," Willard said.

The former pilot, a native of South Bend, Ind., was accompanied here by "Ace," an 11-year-old dog that was trained to become his "eyes" after the final flight over Ireland.

Although saddened by the news that his search for Dr. Bonine had failed, Willard said he probably would visit the State School for Blind at Lansing, Mich., and begin to adjust himself to a new way of life.

Willard was orphanaged at the age of six and five years later was adopted by a family at Niles. When he came of age he went to California and decided to make aviation a career. Later he went to England as a test pilot.

"My service in the war was short," he said, "I was shot down four times in three months. The fourth was the last because splinters from the plane tore out three of my ribs and also caused my blindness."

Chemin-A-Haut Provides Ideal Spot For An Outing

New State Park Near Bastrop Natural Beauties And Conviences

Chemin-A-Haut, a state park recently constructed by the Louisiana Department of Conservation, is a little publicized but nonetheless beautiful recreation spot which was created for the recreational enjoyment of residents of northeast Louisiana.

Relatively few persons in Monroe and surrounding area know that within an hour's driving time, a perfect setting for a two-hours' picnic or a week-end vacation is available with all the beauties which nature has endowed this section of the state, and with all the conveniences of the 1941 way of living.

Chemin-A-Haut State park is located in Morehouse parish on State Highway 204, less than one-half mile north of the intersection of State Highways 204 and 133. That's just ten miles north of Bastrop, and makes the area accessible over hard-surfaced roads from all sections of the state. Monroe, for instance, is only 35 miles south of the park.

The latest recreational facilities are provided, and families may rent a cabin for a week-end jaunt at a very nominal cost. And activities won't cease with the advent of winter. Superintendent Edwin M. Conder recently announced that butane gas will be installed to furnish additional comfort for those who wish to take advantage of the park's facilities during the colder period.

The park contains 522 acres of well-wooded lands lying at the intersections of Bayou Chemin-A-Haut and Bartholomew. The Crossett Timber and Development company donated to the state 405 acres and the remaining 117 were purchased by the Morehouse Parish Police jury and transferred to the State Park commission. The Civilian Conservation corps and the National Park service in cooperation with the State Park commission undertook development of the area in January, 1936. The CCC camp remained on the area until March, 1938. A WPA project sponsored by the State Park commission is now engaged in providing additional facilities which should be completed by December, 1941.

As is the case with all state parks, Chemin-A-Haut is an area preserved in its natural state, and so located that a pleasing visit and communion with the great outdoors are assured, and it is readily accessible to nearby towns and cities by good hard-surfaced roads. Facilities have been provided for park users whether they spend an hour, or a week or more at the park.

For the vacationist or overnight guest, cabins and lodge built in 1937 have recently been completely furnished and are now in full use. Each cabin is provided with an outdoor cook and fireplace for the custom and serving of meals in the open when the weather permits. Ice boxes and indoor stoves are of course included in the cabin equipment.

In the day use section new picnic ovens and tables have been installed and a picnic shelter with a large outdoor barbecue pit is now under construction.

Over and above the fishing in Bayou Bartholomew and the hiking trails, additional recreational facilities are available. The small games area near the lodge contains shuffle board, badminton, horseshoe and volley ball courts. The lodge provides dancing, small games, ping pong, and an educational wild life exhibit of Louisiana birds and animals. The play field provides for soft ball, croquet and similar activities.

Of special interest to the cabin visitors and the local schools, clubs, groups or organizations is the small rustic outdoor campfire circle with stage available for meetings, band concerts, plays, campfire programs and the like.

Chemin-A-Haut is a public park maintained and operated by the State Park division of the Department of Conservation of Louisiana, for the purpose of providing adequate naturalistic recreational facilities for its people and the tourists of the state. It is the public's park, and no one needs an invitation to visit it.

3 KILLED, 4 HURT IN CRUISER BLAST

GEORGETOWN, Md., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Three persons were killed and seven injured tonight in the explosion of the 80-foot cruiser Koonyung in the Sassafras river off Georgetown.

The yacht was owned by Dr. Charles Pancoast of Philadelphia. Sheriff Robert E. Lee of Kent count, said, and seven or eight other persons were aboard.

Lee said the dead were

Dr. Dorothy Childs, 50, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Dorothy Berk Helms, 40, Chester, Pa.

FIRE AT STEAM LAUNDRY CAUSES SLIGHT DAMAGE

Little or no damage resulted at the Monroe Steam laundry, 426 South Grand street, yesterday afternoon, when the sprinkling and steam system caught fire, Monroe police said, adding that the blaze was extinguished in a few minutes.

Firemen later extinguished a burning telephone pole at Calypso and Jackson streets. The pole, firemen said, caught fire from a nearby trash pile, and was brought under control in five minutes. Grass fires yesterday were reported at Park avenue and Willow street, Grayling and Jackson streets, 700 block of Mississippi street, and 1500 block of Spencer street.

Champion Holland Is Known In Army As 'Light Bomber'

They call him "Light Bomber" now that he is in the service, but Private Raymond Holland, 5th bombardment squadron, Savannah, Ga., who is temporarily stationed at Selman field, was known as "Papa Stopper" when he was a middleweight boxing champion of the South.

Holland's queer nickname developed from his habit of always referring to his ring opponents as "Papa." After he had stopped several fighters in succession, sports writers throughout the South began to call him "Papa Stopper."

Fighting under the name of Bobby Holland he lifted the crown by decision from Ray Lyle in 1938 at Fort Pierce, Fla., Holland's home town. Then, in succession, he defended his title against Lyle, in a return match, Joe Dundee, Billy Hood, Kenny LaSalle, John Chong, and Ralph Chong, the latter two the fighting Chinese brothers from New Orleans.

Holland entered the army last October, still undefeated and riding the crest of a victory string.

Since his enlistment in the service, he has successfully met several top-notch fighters. He has also been assistant coach of the boxing team at the Savannah army air base for the last ten months.

During that time he has added several victories to his credit. Most of the fights were with other army boxing teams. His furious method of boxing earned him the nickname of "Light Bomber." His name was born out at Camp Stewart where the "Light Bomber" was outweighed by 25 pounds. After hitting his opponent with everything but the ring posts, Holland scored a knockout.

Members of the 8th bombardment squadron claim that for a man who is a wildcat in the ring and carries dynamite in both arms, he is one of the most patient and gentle coaches in the boxing game today.

Sale of baby haddock, a practice recently started, is a serious threat to the valuable North Atlantic haddock fishery, the United States fish and wildlife service declares.

TAX ON MUSIC CLUB WILL BEGIN ON 1ST

Learning that the elimination of tax exemptions of the Monroe Civic Music association will become effective October 1, S. A. Moss, president, announced yesterday that remittances for membership may be mailed at once.

Mr. Moss received a letter from O. O. Bottorff, general manager of the Civic Concert Service, Inc., who said that "in the new 1941 federal tax law the present exemption from the admissions tax accorded to civic music associations, religious, educational and charitable organizations has been eliminated.

"Therefore, it will be necessary for your association to collect from each member, whether adult or student, an admissions tax of 10 per cent on all amounts paid on or after October 1."

Membership enrollment week is one month paid on another October 1," Mr. Moss explained. Remittances may be sent to Mrs. C. C. Colvert, association secretary.

its first start under Coach Frank Leahy, bounded Arizona all over the premises, 38-7, and uncovered a fine passer in Angelo Bertelli. Michigan, bereft of Tom Harmon, took the blankets off another Gary, Ind., star, Tom Kuzma, who scored two touchdowns and led the Wolverines to a convincing 19-7 triumph over Michigan State before 67,000.

Ohio State, with Paul Brown making his coaching debut, outfought Missouri of the Big Six conference, 12-7, as 50,000 looked on. Iowa had little trouble with Drake, 25-8. Oklahoma whipped Oklahoma A. and M. 19-0.

Duke's Blue Devils, hailed as perhaps the south's strongest team, pushed over four touchdowns in the first quarter and crushed Wake Forest, 42-14, in a Southern conference game. Clemson, defending champion, bowled over Virginia Military, 36-7.

In the Southeastern conference, Mississippi State, unbeaten a year ago, nipped improved Florida, 6-0, on Blondy Black's 45-yard run in the fourth period. Kentucky ran up a 37-14 count on Virginia Tech of the Southern conference.

Texas, touted as the probable Southwest conference champion, routed Colorado of the Rock Mountain Big Seven, 34-6, while Texas Christian nosed out Tulsa, 6-0. Other members of the Southwest conference, Texas A. and M., Baylor, Arkansas and Southern Methodist all won over minor opposition and without trouble.

On the administration side of the neutrality revision question, there were two separate declarations today that President Roosevelt should be given a free hand in dealing with foreign policy.

They came from Secretary of the Navy Knox and Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, a high-ranking member of the senate foreign relations committee. Knox, writing in the Foreign Commerce Weekly, said that this country was standing "on the threshold of world war No. 2" and added:

"I was against the neutrality acts at the time of their passage. I can only once again urge their repeal."

Thomas told reporters he did not want to "tie the hands of the chief executive in this time of crisis" and asserted that the president should be given "as much freedom as possible in handling our foreign relations."

STAGE IS BEING SET FOR WILD WORLD SERIES

YANKEES FAVORED TO BEAT DODGERS IN SIX CONTESTS

Stadium Expected To Be Sold Out For First Time In Series History

By Judson Bailey

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The stage is being set this week-end for what should be one of the wildest, most spectacular world series ever played, in which Brooklyn's bristling Dodgers confidently expect to ambush the powerful New York Yankees.

Nevertheless, the American league champions were rated 2 to 1 favorites today, and most observers conceded that they should be able to capture the world championship in five or six games.

The series will open Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. (eastern standard time) in the big, concrete confines of Yankee stadium, which is expected to be sold out for the first time in series history. This would mean an attendance of 70,000, or 4,000 more than saw the Yanks battle the New York Giants in the fourth game of the 1936 classic.

All reserved and box seats for the games at Yankee stadium have been sold out for weeks, but 28,000 unreserved and bleacher seats will be on sale on the day of each game.

Whitlow Wyatt, ace of all the National league's pitchers and a 22-game winner for the Dodgers, is fairly certain to pitch the important opening game for Brooklyn, with the veteran Charley (Red) Ruffing, a 15-game winner, on the mound for the Yankees.

Both Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers and Marse Joe McCarthy, bland, paunchy pilot of the Yankees, said they would not announce their selections until Tuesday.

But there was no doubt about their choices, or for that matter, no question about their lineups as a whole. The big question that had confronted the baseball guessers was whether Charles (King Kong) Keller, the Yanks' leading home run slugger, would be able to take his place in left field and this was settled by his return to the lineup today against the Washington Senators.

Keller chipped a bone in his right ankle sliding into second base within a few days after the Yanks had clinched the pennant and the injury took a long time to heal. His batting, which has produced 33 home runs and batted in 122 tallies, would have been missed sorely.

Third Baseman Red Rolfe, who had been out of action for a couple of weeks, recovering from an intestinal disorder, also returned to the Yankee lineup yesterday and showed that he was ready.

After Ruffing, they probably will pick their starting pitchers from Lefty Marius Russo, Spud Chandler, Ernie Bonham, Atley Donald and Vernon (Lefty) Gomez.

Gomez, who has won six world series games without being beaten, probably will not be used until far along in this year's classic, due to the fact that he was chosen to pitch today against Washington. Since the Senators knocked him out of the box in the first inning, he might not start at all.

Unless the series goes the limit, saving the 36-year-old Ruffing ample rest, no Yankee pitcher is likely to hurl more than one game. The Yankees have rotated eight starters during most of the season.

The Dodgers, after leading off with Wyatt, will give starting assignments to slender, silent Curt Davis, fast-talking Kirby Higbe, a 22-game winner, and Fred Fitzsimmons, the fat old knuckle-baller. Wyatt is almost certain to pitch twice.

The teams size up with the Dodgers having a slight edge in the pitching, and with the Yanks acknowledged as over and away the better defensively.

REDBIRDS EVEN SERIES WITH MONTREAL ROYALS

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Columbus Redbirds of the American association squared the little world series at one game each tonight by beating the International league's Montreal Royals, 8 to 5. The Redbirds were aided considerably by six Montreal errors, as Johnny Grodzicki set the Royals down with eight hits.

Little world series:

Columbus	111 200 102—8
Montreal	011 000 021—5

BROOKLYN DROPS 7-TO-3 CONTEST TO PHILADELPHIA

Dodgers Lose First Game As New Champions Of National League

BROOKLYN, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Playing their first game as the new National league champions, the Brooklyn Dodgers today dropped a 7 to 3 verdict to the last place Phillies.

This held up until tomorrow's final game the Dodgers' ambition to become the first Brooklyn team in history to win 100 games.

Manager Leo Durocher started his regulars, except for Centerfielder Pete Reiser, who suffered a twitch in his right elbow while throwing in practice before the game. But winning was not important enough to keep his stars on the field, and the reserves finished the game.

Rookie Ed Albosta started on the mound for Brooklyn and pitched no-hit ball until the sixth inning.

CUBS NIP CARDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs came from behind today to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 5, after knocking Howard Pollet out in the eighth inning with a decisive three-run rally.

The Cubs got only six hits off Pollet, but bunched three of them in the eighth. Babe Dahlgren hit his 23rd homer of the season with one on in the second. The Cardinals knocked both Paul Erickson and Vallie Eaves out, but Ken Raffensberger and Tot Pressnell finished up satisfactorily.

MEETING OF L. S. U. ALUMNI IS CALLED

Free tickets to four Louisiana State university football games for this season are to be given away at two meetings of the Ouachita parish chapter, L. S. U. Alumni association, it was announced by B. S. Hanner, president of the local organization.

The first of the special meetings will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the student social building at Northeast Junior college. The date for the second meeting has not been set, President Hanner said.

According to plans, two tickets to each of four games will be awarded at each meeting.

The games for which tickets will be offered are Mississippi State on October 11, Rice on October 18, Tennessee on November 1, and Ole Miss on November 8.

EASTERN ELEVEN SOUNDLY BEATEN BY GREEN WAVE

Difference Is Greater Than Score; Eagles Never Get Started

By Mortimer Kreeger

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—A Tulane football team that showed crushing offensive power, vicious defensive play and to the amazement of all even a vigorous passing attack, upset Boston college's Sugar Bowl champions 21 to 7 here today before 45,000 spectators.

The difference was even greater than the score indicated, for the Eagles were never in the ball game except for a few minutes in the third period when Tulane seemed to lose its poise and the Eagles helped themselves to their touchdown.

The Eagles' highly-touted backs got nowhere through the big Tulane line that outrushed the Bostonians consistently. Several times a series of downs found the B. C. offense five yards or more behind where it started.

Although fumbles and other breaks were conspicuous in almost all the scoring opportunities, the difference is shown in the statistics. Tulane in first downs 16 to 8, net yards rushing 144 to 35 and in yards by forward passing 113 to 29. Tulane completed ten of twenty pass attempts.

There were no stars—or they were all stars—in the Tulane lineup. All the backs took turns gaining, passing and intercepting passes and several linemen were usually in on a tackle.

Tulane did all its scoring in its inspired first half. The Green Wave could not get going in the second as fumbles and penalties stopped its drives. Rain during the intermission made the ground slippery.

Boston college got into a hole in the first couple of minutes when Mickey Connolly fumbled a punt and Bill Hornick recovered on the 15. The Eagles held that time but the Wave soon surged back on a 36 yard drive featured by passes and climaxed by Lou Thomas' 14 yard heave to Walt McDonald on the goal line. Thomas place-kicked the extra point.

Hornick's recovery of another Connolly fumble on Tulane's 38 started Tulane to its second touchdown. Passes by St. John Smith and Bob Glass gained most of the yardage and Glass scored on a nine-yard drive, right through Gil Bouley, B. C.'s much-publicized sophomore left tackle. Glass place kicked the extra point.

Tulane's charging linemen put the Eagles in another hole by dumping Connolly in his tracks as he received a punt on his 15 and on the next play Henri Wolbrette recovered Ted Williams' fumble on the 11. A penalty for excessive time out and two running plays brought another touchdown, Bernard Pracko ramming left guard for the last three yards. Glass again converted and Tulane was through scoring.

Boston college scored after Tulane's fumbles following the shower had put the Green Wave in the shadow of its goal posts. St. John Smith was trying to punt from behind his goal line and the pass from center was low. His hurried boot bounced off Bouley's chest and Ed Zabilski recovered in the end zone. Frank Maznicki place kicked the extra point.

Tulane missed two other scoring chances, once on a goal-line fumble and once when Ed Doherty took a pass out of Marty Comer's hands on the goal line.

MAROONS DOWN FLORIDA, 6 TO 0

Rugged 'Gator Eleven Forces Mississippi State Team To Limit

STARKVILLE, Miss., Sept. 27.—(AP)—After stumbling and fumbling through three quarters of ragged football, Mississippi State struck with a forty five-yard touchdown in the final period to defeat a rugged Florida team 6-0 before 13,000 spectators here today.

Florida never made a strong scoring threat, but the Maroons couldn't get their offense in gear for a sustained drive and the game seemed labelled a scoreless tie until Blondy Black's last quarter score.

Backed to their own four where a State drive had bogged, Harrison punted to Black on the Florida forty five and the 186-pound Black reversed his field twice before crossing into the end zone. Bruce went in to kick the point, and missed from placement.

Florida's passing attack, Tommy Harrison to Foudren Mitchell, kept the Maroons dizzy in the early stages of the game, but a fine State line smothered the 'Gators ground game completely. The Harrison-Mitchell combination reached the State 15 in the first quarter, only time Florida neared Maroons goal.

State lost the ball four times on fumbles to end nice drives, and kill their chances of running up the score.

Even in defeat, Florida showed the strongest team the 'Gator institution has sent against Mississippi State in many years. Tommy Harrison, Fondren Mitchell, and Red Mack, backs, and Peanut Hull and Forest Ferguson, linemen, turned in fine performances.

It was Mississippi State's superior reserve strength that made the difference.

GOLDEN GOPHERS TOP WASHINGTON

Bruce Smith Lives Up To Advance Notices As Minnesota Wins, 14-6

SEATTLE, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The boy they've been talking up as an All-America candidate, 193-pound Halfback Bruce Smith, lived up to all the advance notices today as he led the mighty Minnesota Gophers to a 14-6 victory over the University of Washington before 43,000 impressed spectators.

The intersectional gridiron opener, witnessed by Seattle's record crowd, saw Smith virtually alone carry on his team's offensive to score touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters.

It was the toe of Bill Garnaas, playing his first season, that made victory doubly sure, because the Gophers were leading only 7-6 up to the last two minutes of play.

Washington had made a ball game of it in the third quarter, aided by a break deep in Minnesota territory. From the 14-yard line, Washington Halfback Ernie Steele ran back to his right to pass, was cornered, reversed his field and ran down the left side lines to score, standing up, in the corner.

But the pass from center hopped and bobbled back to Steele, who was to hold the ball for Sub-Quarterback Elmer Berg, and Minnesota recovered the bounding porkhide to save its one point lead.

It was a rough, tough battle up front where the behemoths dig their bruising. The Minnesota forwards appeared tired when Washington was getting its score, and later didn't have the punch as the stalwart Washingtons held the Gophers for downs on the one-yard line, after four cracks from the eighth.

HOLY CROSS UPSETS LOUISIANA STATE, 19-13

CRUSADERS ROMP AT WILL, AVENGE PREVIOUS LOSSES

Fullback Grigas Conducts One-Man Campaign Against Bengals

By Norman Walker

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Holy Cross gained vengeance over Louisiana State with a 19 to 13 victory tonight in a hard-fought intersectional football clash that was punctuated several times by fist fights between opposing players.

Coach Joe Sheeketski's Crusaders from the East uncovered a brilliant All-American prospect in Johnny Grigas, 205-pound fullback with "blits" in his legs whose power and speed brought all three Holy Cross touchdowns.

Every one of the 25,000 fans must have left with at least one grey hair, since the ball game kept the stands in an uproar throughout. Costly fumbles, dazzling runs and passes by the score uncorked by both teams provided a thrill a minute.

Louisiana State pushed over the game's first touchdown on a long 74-yard march sparked by Fullback Walter Gorinski and Halfback Billy McKinney with Gorinski plunging over for two yards on the payoff play.

But after spotting the Bayou Tigers that touchdown and a conversion, Holy Cross went to work with Grigas on the loose. The giant fullback tore off huge gains starting a 68-yard scoring march climaxed when Halfback Frank Saba flipped a neat pass to Dick Gibson to L. S. U.'s one-yard line. There was pie for Grigas plunging over. By then everyone knew Grigas could hit the line, and plenty, but a few plays later, he surprised with a quick 56-yard touchdown dash outspeeding L. S. U.'s secondary defense.

The second and third periods went scoreless but Saba, a ball-hawk all evening, intercepted an L. S. U. pass and returned it 22 yards to start another touchdown jaunt, climaxed when Grigas raced 20 yards through tackle, wriggling tacklers off his hips, for the final Holy Cross touchdown.

L. S. U.'s midget sophomore halfback, Joe Giacone, went into action as the southerners made a belated effort to overtake the Crusader team it had conquered 26-7 and 25-0 successively the past two years. Running and flipping passes, Giacone finally shot the oval to Sophomore Steve Vanburen in a 12-yard touchdown pass.

Officials separated opposing players several times during the game. In the final few plays, with L. S. U. trying desperately for a long scoring pass that might have won them the game,

FISH HATCHERY BEING IMPROVED BY DEPARTMENT

State Agency To Raise Creel-Size Game Fish For Local Waters

Development of game fish in this area took a scientific turn this week as state conservation department officials arrived in Ouachita parish to begin reconditioning of the fish hatchery at the junction of Bayou DeSiard and Black bayou, which is being transformed into an experimental fish culture station.

Percy Viosca, Jr., fisheries biologist in charge of fish management operations of the state conservation department, arrived here the past week with Burt Oldham and Angelo Annino, field workers of the department, to begin their work in this area.

Two thousand and one hundred game fish were brought here and placed in the upper pond at the hatchery. Other ponds are being remodeled and more fish will be brought in.

"We have found that bass, raised under conditions now being used in culture stations, will reach a weight of one pound in seven to eight months," Viosca stated. "We are no longer stocking fishing streams with fingerlings, but the fish used for stocking purposes under present arrangements will be ready for the angler the minute they are released."

Fertilizer is playing an important part in the advanced methods of fish culture. Culture centers, such as that being constructed at the old hatchery here, are first drained to rid the water of the enemies of game fish. Fertilizer, such as that recommended by parish agricultural agents for farms and gardens, is then spread over the pond's bottom and desired water life, such as water fleas on which fingerling bass feed and minnows for larger fish, and vegetation are applied.

"Everything that goes into a culture station is weighed," Viosca said. "Improved methods of fish culture have proven to us that with proper fertilization fish will reach a given weight in a given length of time, and the number of fish to go into a pond for culture purposes is determined by the amount of fertilizer placed therein."

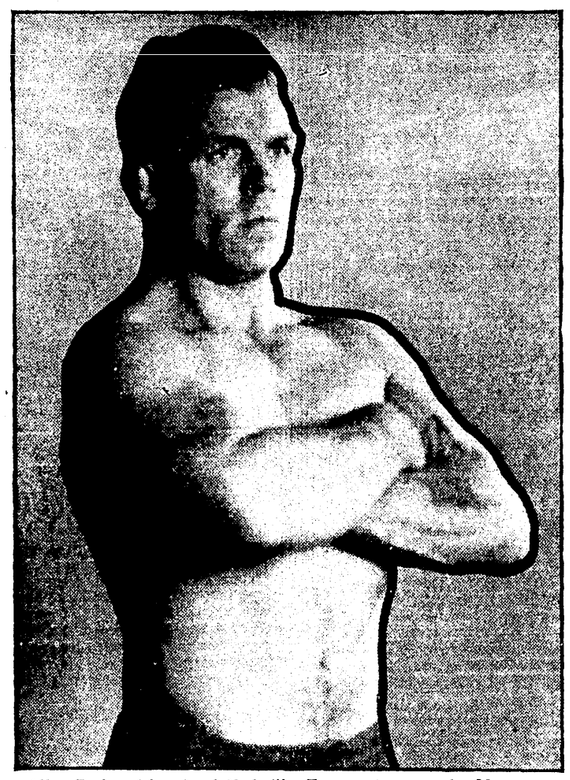
The old system of fish hatcheries has proven itself inadequate, it was stated, and no longer does the conservation department plan to refer to such projects as hatcheries—but as experimental culture stations.

Work on the culture station here will be completed within the next two weeks if weather conditions permit, and the sportsmen of Ouachita parish will not have to wait two or three years for fingerlings to reach creel size before they can go after them.

Several thousand fish will be stocked here and they will be ready for release in streams of this area late next spring.

The conservation department is also prepared to transfer game fish over long distances and insure live delivery. Field Workers Oldham and Annino recently transferred 23,000 mixed game fish from three to four inches long a distance of 100 miles and had them aboard their especially equipped truck from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m.

PARKER ON WRESTLING CARD



Allen Parker (above), of Nashville, Tenn., returns to the Monroe arena after an absence of about a year Tuesday night to meet Les Chapman, of Chicago, in the semi-final bout on the weekly mat program which will feature a non-title battle between Rex Mobley, world light heavyweight champion, and Herbie "Dutch" Schultz.

Dutch Schultz To Tangle With Rex Mobley Tuesday

Mat Fans Are Counting On 'Lawless' Scrap In Non-Title Affair

Herbie "Dutch" Schultz, the wrestling meanie of Milwaukee, Wis., will meet Rex Mobley, king of the world's light heavyweights, in a non-title match here Tuesday night in the main event on Promoter Gus Kallio's weekly mat program at the Monroe arena.

Both Champion Mobley and Schultz have about the same ring dispositions—all wild and rough, with disregard for ring ethics—and mat fans of Monroe and West Monroe are counting on seeing one of the most "lawless" scraps since the Schultz-Ellis Bashara battles of last spring.

Schultz is considered one of the most capable of light heavyweight matmen although he sometimes has difficulty making the weight as he is nearer the heavyweight ranks and wrestles in both classes. However, if he should conquer the champ Tuesday night he will, in all probability, be given a chance to face Mobley once more with the title at stake.

Although the Schultz-Mobley battle is slated as the main event, the semi-final is drawing the most attention since a title shot hinges on the outcome of the battle between Allen Parker, rugged Nashville scrapper, and Les Chapman of Chicago.

Parker has been after a chance at Jack Curtis' junior light heavyweight belt. He recently challenged Curtis only to have the Vicksburg battler refuse him a chance at the crown.

Curtis maintains that Parker is too heavy for the class, but the Nashville matman assured Promoter Kallio he could make the weight, and the local matchmaker in turn promised Parker that if he could beat Chapman in Tuesday's semi-final that a title bout with Curtis would be arranged.

Parker hasn't wrestled here in over a year and it is reported that he has greatly improved since his last appearance before Monroe fans.

The Mobley-Schultz battle will have a 90-minutes time limit, two falls to win, and the Chapman-Parker squabble will have an hour time limit route, two falls to win.

Aldin "Butch" Martin will referee both matches. The program will open at 8.30 p. m.

IRISH ROLL OVER ARIZONA, 38 TO 7

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A new era in Notre Dame football opened to the impressive blast of six touchdowns today as Coach Frank Leahy's initial Irish eleven routed the University of Arizona 37 to 7 before 35,000 spectators.

Notre Dame demonstrated that Coach Leahy in his first season has come up with an eleven capable of giving any club trouble, Owen Evans, Steve Juzwik and several reserves displayed speed and running talents, while in Sophomore Angelo Bertelli the Irish produced a passer who showed promise of developing into one of the best Notre Dame tossers in years.

It was Bertilli who started the Irish on their way. In the first period he climaxed a fine throwing exhibition by shooting a 16-yard aerial to Bob Dove for a touchdown. The Irish scored on a pass again in the second quarter, John Warner passing 22 yards to Bill Earley for the score.

A few minutes later Arizona broke into the scoring column. Bob Ruman hurled a long pass to Bob Johnson for a touchdown on a play good for 67 yards.

A 33-yard pass by Bertelli to Juzwik set the stage for Juzwik to race nine yards to a touchdown early in the third period. Later in the quarter, Evans broke off right guard, reversed his field and outraced the entire Wildcat team in a 78-yard touchdown sprint.

The final quarter saw the Irish score twice. From the 12 Don Hogan rounded right end for six points. Hogan passed to Tom Miller in the end zone for the last touchdown.

FIGHT TO TOUCH OFF BIG SPORTS PARADE IN N. Y.

Champ Rules Favorite Among Sports Writers And Betting Shops

By Sid Feder

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Touching off a loaded sports week that has Pa Knickerbocker's children going around goggle-eyed, Joe Louis and Lou Nova tangle in the Polo Grounds at 9 p.m., central standard time, Monday before what may turn out to be one of the top dozen fight crowds of all time.

Chortling over a combination of things that has brought the good old days back to the business of bashing beaks, Promoter Mike Jacobs officially estimated today he wouldn't be at all surprised if close to 60,000 customers chipped in to a gross gate within hog-calling distance of $600,000 to see what will be Louis' last fight for eight or nine months, possibly the last of his great career.

Leading off with the fact that there's a lot of ready money around, everything hooked together just dandy to make this the biggest financial affair since Louis put on his big revenge scene with Max Schmeling three years ago. Of course, $600,000 doesn't live on the same street with the $2,500,000 Dempsey and Tunney drew, but it's still a mighty nice touch in these times.

Heading the list of lures which have attracted the faithful is Nova, big, strong and determined as a horse-player putting his case-deuce on a three-to-five shot. He is rated by many experts as the strongest challenger to take a crack at the Brown Bomber since Joe climbed to the world heavyweight throne over gallant Jim Braddock's flattened form in 1937. Secondly, the World Series follows this nose-busting extravaganza into town by just two days, and hundreds of the fans with a little of what the boys around call scratch—and a few without this commodity—have moved in for the duration.

Finally, the lure of Louis still is box office magic. Up to this week, the fists with which he has stiffened 46 of 54 opponents and successfully defended the fight game's richest prize 18 times for an all-time record, have attracted 11 gates of more than $200,000. Except for any possible exhibitions that may come along, he won't do his stuff for the public again until next May at the earliest, when he may meet up with Billy Conn once more, or with the winner of a Conn-Nova get-together. Gus Fan and the missus, realizing he may even decide to hang the gloves up for good with a term in the army in sight, don't want to miss the finish.

As for the fight itself, Louis ruled a 5-to-12 favorite along the 49th street betting stores.

BRAVES BEAT GIANTS

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Boston Braves ripped into Rookie Al Feldman for four runs in the third inning today to beat the New York Giants 5 to 4.

A single by Paul Waner and a double by Eddie Miller gave Boston a run in the second and they got all the rest they needed in the next frame when Pitcher Manny Salvo singled, Gene Moore tripled, Buddy Hassett beat out a bunt, Waner walked and Max West doubled.

The Giants pestered Salvo for a pair of runs before Al Javery took over in the fifth and then rallied for two runs on four singles in the ninth inning before Dick Errickson stamped out the trouble.

REDS WALLOP BUCS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Elmer Riddle snared his 19th victory of the season against four defeats today as the Cincinnati Reds out-walloped the Pittsburgh Pirates 15 to 9—but the sensational rookie wasn't around when the game ended.

Riddle gave up three runs in the second inning but his teammates took him out of danger with a five run barrage that kayoed Johnny Gee in the fifth. The Reds then knocked home seven more tallies in the seventh frame.

The Pirates put on a push of their own in the seventh and chalked up four runs but at that point Joe Biggs took over the hurling duties for Cincinnati and carried through to the end.

Both Frank McCormick and Eddie Joost tripled with the bases filled and Vince DiMaggio hit his 21st home run in the sixth inning to notch his 100th run batted in.

LIONS TO TACKLE SMACKOVER HIGH THURSDAY NIGHT

Ouachita Eleven Faces One Of Toughest Squads In This Section

The Ouachita Parish High school Lions, who opened the season with an almost entirely inexperienced eleven, have shown considerable improvement in the past couple of weeks even in the face of defeat, but they go out again Thursday night against an eleven that is considered one of the best in this section of the country.

Smackover, Ark., with a powerhouse aggregation that was undefeated last season and has already displayed a tendency to repeat this year, will invade the Neville stadium here Thursday night for a crack at the O. P. H. S. forces.

The Lions, in their "green" state, weren't supposed to beat the veteran Ruston, Minden and Homer elevens, but they held Minden to an 8 to 6 victory and lost to Homer, considered one of the state's best teams, by a touchdown margin. Ruston took advantage of the Lions' inexperience in the opener to win 20 to 6.

Those games were all tough, but Smackover, if records mean anything, will be much tougher.

Smackover opened its campaign last week with a 43 to 12 victory over Hope, Ark., using three complete teams. Haynesville's Golden Tornado, a top-notch Class AA team, managed to beat Hope only 18 to 12, and the Tornado the past week was tied by Ruston.

Incidentally, Assistant Coach Mac Givens of Ouachita was head coach at Smackover last year, and he knows exactly what the Lions are up against.

Smackover has the same backfield that kept the Arkansas gridirons sizzling last season, and the forward wall is made up principally of the 1940 second team line but it is considered as good as any line the Arkansans have turned out.

The big gun of the Smackover backfield is Clyde Scott, 185-pounder, who needs no introduction to Monroe sport fans who saw him in action at the Ouachita Relay carnival here last spring when he proved a one-man track team, set three new records for the event, and walked off with individual high scoring honors.

Scott scored 136 points in eleven games last year and averaged only a quarter per game for the season. His punts for the year averaged 47 yards and he completed 54 per c[ent] of his passes.

All in all, Scott is considered [the] best high school back of the year [in] southern high schools and if his w[ork] is any better than it was a year [ago] he will probably gain natio[nal] recognition.

The Lions deserve a lot of cr[edit] for their work in holding Homer [to] close Friday night and it will be [a] moral victory for the locals if t[hey] can hold Smackover anywhere n[ear] as close. Although Homer won 7[-]0 Ouachita's offense showed surpr[is]ing force as it rolled up twelve f[irst] downs against nine for the Pels.

The Lions' offense, centered arou[nd] spinner plays, can be depended [on] to strengthen as the season progress[es] and the Lions will be tough custom[ers] to beat by the time they swing i[nto] their Class AA conference schedul[e].

VANDERBILT WINS OVER PURDUE, 3

Boilermaker's Never Cor[ne]r Close To Scoring On Commodores

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 27.—(A[P]—Jack Jenkins, a 200-pound back fr[om] Texarkana, Ark., booted a field g[oal] from the 20-yard line to give Vand[er]bilt's 1941 football campaign a triumphant 3 to 0 sendoff over P[ur]due's Boilermakers before 17,000 sp[ec]tators today.

Jenkins' placekick came in the fi[rst] period and climaxed just about [the] only offensive fireworks in a ga[me] that had been touted as a free-scor[ing] thriller.

Purdue, boasting an array of f[ive] veteran backs, never came close [to] scoring. Vanderbilt's three-poin[ter] came after the Commodores h[ad] smashed their way from midfield [to] the Boilermaker 15. The attack stal[led] and Jenkins dropped back to k[ick] his game-winning goal.

Today's contest was largely a d[uel] of kicking. In the first period John[ny] Galvin, Purdue's left-footed kic[ker] from Chicago, had trouble getting [his] punts away for any great distan[ce] and, as a result, Vanderbilt got [a] start.

The Commodores battered to [a] Purdue 35 and then John Burns [of] Nashville passed to Binks Bushma[n] of Van Buren, Ark., on the Boil[er]maker 15. On the second play af[ter] that Burns heaved one into the [end] zone intended for Julian Olsen [of] Pensacola, Fla., but a host of Purd[ue] players knocked it into the air. Bu[t] maier finally caught the ball but [it] was out of bounds.

It was immediately after th[at] Jenkins booted his field goal fr[om] directly in front of the goal post[s]. Purdue never got inside Vand[er]bilt's 35-yard line.

"DRIVER! Please Watch Out For My Child!"

Dear Driver:—

Next week my little daughter who is seven years old starts to school as usual. Her cocker-spaniel, whose name is "Scoot," sits on the front porch and whines his canine disbelief in the folly of education as she waves "goodbye" and starts off to the halls of learning.

At nights we talk about school. She tells me about the girl who sits in front of her . . . and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She'll tell me about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head . . . and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus.

She's back in the nursery now—sound asleep with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm. You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut, or her head gets bumped, I can fix it—but when she starts back to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands.

She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to swim and to take walks with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time—I have to work to pay for her clothes and education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive carefully, please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

Please don't hurt my little girl.

A Proud Daddy

UNIOR COLLEGE ELEVEN EXPECTS BITTER CONTEST

The Northwest Mississippi Junior llege eleven, defending champions of Mississippi junior college conference, invade Brown field here Friday ght when they meet Coach James Malones Northeast Junior college dians.

The Mississippi aggregation, a "farm" Ole Miss, is coached by Lloyd ully" White, considered one of the eatest tackles ever developed by ach Malone at the local institution. hite played as a member of the Inan eleven in 1934 and 1935. The next o years he performed for Ole Miss d made one of the All-American lections as a guard.

After graduating at Ole Miss, White ndled the freshman coaching duties ere until he was sent to Northwest unior college last season to develop e championship eleven.

The Tribe expects the Mississippians be as rough if not rougher than e Kilgore Rangers who defeated e locals, 14 to 0, at Kilgore Thursy night.

Coach Malone last night reported s team came out of the Kilgore me in good condition with the exption of Halfback Jo Jo Swanger, t Swanger's condition is not as ricus as it was first reported at Kilre. Reports received here soon after e game were that Swanger had fracred a leg, but Coach Malone, aditting that it was first feared the g was broken, said the Indian back ad suffered a pulled muscle in his g and that the bone had been badly uised.

Swanger is getting about on utches, and it is feared that the uscle injury will keep him out of tion for the remainder of the sea-n.

Just b re Swanger's injury he ced 70 rds for a touchdown that as called back because opposing ayers ignored Swanger when ey head n official's whistle blew. anger, however, was in the clear en the whistle "accidentally" unded, according to reports received re. One of the officials was said have been running with the whistle his mouth and unconsciously unded the whistle that stopped the ay.

Regardless of the outcome of the attle, the Indians turned in two reat defensive demonstrations late in e game, stopping two Ranger offenves on their one-yard line in the ming minutes of play.

But Kilgore is past history to the ribesmen who came home to go rough a long workout Friday in reparation for "Bully" White's Rangers, and yesterday Coach Malone ad his backs and centers out for anther lengthy drill.

In two games this season Northwest lississippi has totalled 58 points gainst none for their opposition. They pened with a 40 to 0 victory over nnessee Junior college and Friday ght stopped the Tennessee Teach-rs 18 to 0.

TALLULAH TROJANS DEFEAT NEWELLTON

Neither Team Punts Single Time In Game

TALLULAH, La., Sept. 27.—(Spe-l)—Outweighed but not outplayed, e Tallulah High school Trojans alked up their second victory of e season by defeating the Newellton gh school Bears 13 to 6, before a rge crowd in one of the queerest mes ever played here.

The odd quirk of the battle was that either team punted a single time roughout the game.

Newellton scored first in the open-g quarter after runs by Doyle and atts had driven 70 yards to the ven 14, where Watts took the ball ough the line to score. Hart failed add the point through the line.

A Newellton fumble which was covered by Tallulah on the Bears' 25 rted the Trojans on their first chdown drive with Pemberton ov-r over on a spinner from the five-ard line. Gilbert kicked the point r, put Tallulah ahead.

Pemberton intercepted a Newellton ss on his own 40 in the third period nd raced 30 yards to the Bruin 30. Curry and Williams powered the ball to the Newellton 20 for a first down, nd, after three line plays had failed gain, Lentz hurled a pass to Curl in the Newellton 10 and Curl sidestepped his way for the final touchdown. Boswell's kick for the point was bad.

Newellton drove to the Tallulah 35-yard line in the final period, but the Corals held for downs.

SENATORS ROUT GOMEZ, DEFEAT NEW YORK, 4-3

Ted Williams Drops Out Of .400 Class As Red Sox Down A's

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Lefty Gomez' chances of starting a world series game dropped suddenly today as the Washington Senators routed him with four runs in the first inning and went on to beat the New York Yankees 4 to 3.

This blow was offset, however, by the return of Charley Keller to left field for the Yankees after being out of action for three weeks because of an injured ankle. He made no hits but handled four fielding chances successfully.

The flurry that licked Gomez was started by George Case, who beat out a hit, stole second, and raced home on a single by Johnny Welaj. Cecil Travis singled Welaj home. Then with two out, Al Evans singled for two more runs and Gomez gave way to Ernie Bonham.

Bonham and John Murphy shut out the Senators after that, but the damage was done.

BOSOX DOWN A'S

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Ted Williams, starving to become the first major leaguer in 11 years to hit .400 for a season, made only one hit in four official chances today and dropped just below .400 as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Athletics, 5-1.

Swinging against Rookie Roger Wolff, Williams doubled once and was retired three times on a strike out. He walked on his first time at the plate. That trimmed his average from .4009 to .3996 with only two games left in which to register the select class.

Mickey Harris held the A's to seven hits, one of them Sam Chapman's 26th homer of the year. Wolff allowed 12 hits, three of them in the fourth inning when Boston scored four runs. The tallies were produced on Williams' two-bagger, a triple by Bobby Doerr, two bases on balls and Dom DiMaggio's double.

TRIBE NIPS BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—It's going to take the last day of the season tomorrow to decide who's going to finish third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh in the American league.

The Cleveland Indians beat the Browns today, 4 to 3, on Pitcher Al Smith's ninth-inning home run, and retained a chance to wind up in a three-way tie with Chicago and Detroit for third. Cleveland now is tied with Detroit for fourth.

The Browns, meanwhile, dropped to a tie for sixth with the Washington Senators. They failed to take advantage of seven Cleveland errors in losing to the Indians.

KENTUCKY CATS TROUNCE V. P. I.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The University of Kentucky Wildcats displayed speed and power today in easily overcoming Virginia Polytechnic institute 37-14 on a neutral battlefield here before 8,500 sun-bathed spectators.

Little Ermal Allen opened Kentucky's scoring on the third play of the game when he circled right end, followed powerful blocking and ran 53 yards to a touchdown. Junie Jones place kicked Kentucky's only extra point in six attempts.

A blocked V. P. I. punt led to Kentucky's second tally, Billy Kincer of Kona, Ky., plunging over from the one-foot mark. Kentucky climaxed a 43-yard march early in the second quarter when Phil Cutchin passed 22 yards to Carl Althaus, for a touchdown and marched 57 yards to another later, Claude Hammond Williamson, pounding across the pay line.

The Wildcats ran the count to 31-0 in the third when a fumble recovery sparked a drive from Kentucky's 45. The Gobblers' passing show started midway in the last period. Bill James, passing to Jim Lively and Elmer Wilson took the ball to Kentucky's 19. A short pass and two line bucks put the ball on Kentucky's 10 from where Lively raced around left end.

Kentucky steadied, drove from its 35 to V. P. I.'s 17, Cutchin again passing to Althaus for a score. Kentucky kicked off over the goal line and on the first play, John Smith, Beckley, W. Va., threw 15 yards to Lively who romped 65 yards unhampered to a touchdown.

FIRST DOG PARADE IS CALLED SUCCESS

Dr. H. H. Bass, chairman of the "National Dog Week" program in Ouachita parish, last night declared the first dog show and parade in Monroe had been a success, but that local dog fanciers were already planning an even bigger event next year.

"Dog owners of Monroe and West Monroe greatly appreciated the help received from local merchants and the police department in making the first event such a success," Dr. Bass said. "The help of Superintendent E. L. Neville, Henry Gibbs, H. L. Hipp and M. D. Ehrhardt was also appreciated."

NIMRODS TO TEST AIM ON RABBITS, SQUIRRELS FIRST

Season On Migratory Birds Will Get Under Way On November 1

The first phase of the 1941-42 hunting season in Louisiana begins Wednesday with squirrels and rabbits facing the opening barrages of sportsmen throughout the state.

After a month in quest of squirrels in the hickory hills, tupelo gum brakes and pin oak flats, and rabbit chases through swamps, hills and cotton patches, the hunters will be able to open up on migratory birds, ducks, geese and coot, on November 2.

The season on bear opens November 1 and the deer season begins November 15.

Sportsmen who desire quail and dove will have to wait until December 1. The season on wild turkey and snipe is closed.

State hunting licenses, in addition to being on hand at the office of the tax collector in the Ouachita parish courthouse, have also been distributed by members of the sheriff's department to 12 business establishments throughout the parish for the convenience of sportsmen.

Licenses are on sale at the following places:

Brownville—M. L. Owens store and P. L. Owens store.

Sterlington—Haddad brothers.

Resident Game Birds, Animals

Bob White (quail or partridge): December 1 to February 20. Bag limit, 15; season limit, 120.

Wild turkey: Closed season.

Deer (bucks only): November 15 to December 31. Illegal to kill does or fawns at any time. Bag limit, one daily, two a season. Night hunting with a headlight or camp hunting for more than three days is forbidden.

Squirrels: October 1 to January 15. Bag limit, 10; possession limit, 10.

Chipmunks: October 1 to January 15. Bag limit, 10; possession limit, 10.

Migratory Game Birds

Ducks: November 2 to December 31. Bag limit, 10; possession limit, 20. Hunters may have in aggregate three redheads or bufflehead, or three of these two species together in the daily bag. Hunters may also take one wood-duck in the daily bag to allow for accidental shooting of such birds which are technically still under protection.

Coots: November 2 to December 31. Bag limit, 25; possession limit, 25.

Geese: November 2 to December 31. Bag limit, three; possession limit, six. In addition hunters may take three blue geese a day, and they may have six blue geese in possession in addition to the general six-goose possession limit. If only blue geese are desired, the hunter may take six blue geese in one day or have 12 in possession if he takes no other kinds of geese.

Snipe: Closed season.

Doves: December 1 to January 11. Bag limit, 12; possession limit, 12.

Rails and gallinules: November 1 to January 31. Bag limit, 15; possession limit, 15.

Woodcock: December 15 to December 29. Bag limit, four; possession limit, eight.

General Regulations

Ducks, geese and coots may be hunted from sunrise to 4 p.m.

Doves, woodcock, rails and gallinules may be hunted from sunrise to sunset.

The use of bait and live decoys is prohibited. The legal limit of game may be possessed for 20 days after the close of the season. Hunters of ducks and geese must have a federal duck stamp attached to their state hunting license.

Migratory and resident birds and animals may be taken with a gun not larger than 10 gauge capable of holding not more than three shells. The use of rifles for taking migratory and resident game birds is forbidden.

Resident hunters, regardless of age, must have the state hunting license which sells for $1. Non-resident hunters may purchase licenses for $5 each for four days' consecutive hunting. Seasons licenses for non-resident hunters sell for $15 each. Federal duck stamps, on sale at postoffices throughout the nation, sell for $1.

HE OUGHTA FILL THE BILL

SLAPNICKA QUITS CLEVELAND CLUB

General Manager Says He Has Simply Decided To Make A Change

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Cyril C. Slapnicka, discoverer of Bob Feller and general manager of the Cleveland Indians since November, 1935, has resigned.

"The Cleveland baseball club officials and I are parting with nothing but the most friendly feelings," Slapnicka said tonight. "I simply decided that after six years on the job I would prefer to make a change."

Slapnicka submitted his resignation to President Alva Bradley last Wednesday while the Tribe, ticketed by many experts last April to lead the American league parade, was flirting with the second division. Oddly, his announcement came on the same day that Oscar Vitt, storm center of the Indians' 1940 season, disclosed he had quit as manager of Portland in the Pacific Coast league.

After attending to personal affairs at his Cedar Rapids (Ia.) home, Slapnicka plans a month's vacation and then hopes to find some job that will keep him in baseball.

RATTLERS BEAT SOUTHEASTERN

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The St. Mary's university Rattlers struck with equal deadly force on the ground and in the air here today as they defeated the Southeastern Louisiana Lions of Hammond, La., by 38 to 0 score.

BIG TEXAS TEAM WHIPS COLORADO

Longhorns Use Old-Fashioned Tactics To Down Mountaineers, 34-6

By Loudon Kelly

BOULDER, Colo., Sept. 27.—(AP)—A big Texas team adhering to the old-fashioned football virtues of hard running, crisp blocking and bone-jolting tackling, overwhelmed Colorado 34 to 6 today to pass the first mile-post in its drive toward national grid recognition.

Colorado, playing before a crowd of 15,500, held the orange shirted Texans to a 13-6 edge in the first half, but faded badly in the third period, when the Southwest conference eleven ran three touchdowns across.

The mountain team made a good fight until Paul McClung, its All-Big Seven kicking and passing star was carried off with an injured leg on the second half opening kick-off.

Cowboy Jack Crain, Texas' stellar sweep runner, sped through a wide hole opened by Tackle Bo Cohenour for four yards and the first touchdown in the opening frame.

This was made against Texas second stringers and they roared back with a running attack. In six plays Halfback Speck Sanders hit right tackle for Longhorn score No. 2.

Two Texas touchdowns in the first three minutes of the second half came about through the savagery of Texas tackling. Twice the Longhorns mowed down opposition ball carriers so furiously they fumbled in Colorado territory, opening the way for a pair of touchdowns by Fullback Pete Layden.

He made one on a seven yard trip through right guard and the other on a half spinner good for 12 yards.

Near the end of the third period after R. L. Harkins, Layden's understudy hurled five passes good for 53 yards, Sanders took the ball over on a reverse.

"Chiang Kai-Shek's general staff will have to show General Magruder his desperate position. Whether the American officer can help is a matter of little doubt—he cannot."

(President Roosevelt on August 26 announced that a military mission headed by Brigadier-General John Magruder would be sent to China soon to make lease-lend aid to China effective.)

The only official public observance of the three-power pact anniversary was a meeting in a Tokyo auditorium attended by 5,000 people who cheered a message from former Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, who negotiated and signed the agreement, saying that it was all Japan could have done at the time.

DEATHS

NAWADNY RITES

The funeral of Victor Nawadny, 44, who died in a United States marine hospital in Galveston, Tex., last Monday, was held in the Mulhearn Funeral home Saturday at 3 p.m., with Rev. Edward F. Hayward, Grace church rector, officiating. Interment was in Riverview Burial park, in the American Legion plot. Members of the post conducted the services at the grave.

Mr. Nawadny leaves his mother, Mrs. Betty Cooper, Route No. 3, Monroe, and the following brothers and sisters: William and Arthur Nawadny, Mrs. Louise Lyle and Mrs. Berta Ventrees, all of Baton Rouge; Mrs. Sadie Webb, Roseburg, Ore., and Miss Celestine Nawadny, Monroe.

MRS. DOCK GORUM

Funeral services for Mrs. Dock Gorum, Shreveport resident who died in this city Saturday morning, will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Ingleside Baptist church in Shreveport. Wellman's Funeral home of Shreveport is in charge of funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Gorum is survived by her husband and the following children: Mrs. Ruth Rawls of West Monroe; Eddie Gorum of Monroe, and Jimmie and Helen Gorum, of Shreveport.

PHILLIP CONCELLI

Funeral services for Phillip Concelli, 69, who died at the residence of his son, Charlie Concelli, 213 North 14th street, will be held at the St. Matthew's Catholic church at 2 p.m. Monday with Rev. N. F. Vandegaer officiating.

Interment will follow in the Catholic cemetery under the direction of the Dixie Funeral home.

The body will be at the home of his son, Carsina Concelli, 807 Mississippi street, until time of services.

TOWN KEEPS EVEN KEEL BY REMEMBERING PAST

NEW BRIGHTON, Minn.—(AP)—New Brighton is one defense boom town that is trying to keep an even keel under the impact of a $30,000,000 small arms plant by remembering three past booms. The town fathers hope it will remain just a typical American hamlet, as it did when a packing factory, a big pickle plant and a cast iron rolling mill each in its day brought prosperity and then passed.

The boll weevil of the southern United States never has been brought completely under control.

AVERAGE COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15-16ths inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was six points lower at 16.52 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 16.95; middling 7-8ths inch average 16.11.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Cotton prices continued downward today with quotations sagging to new low ground. Hedging against large sales of spot cotton in the south and out side liquidation, attributed in part to Bombay selling, outweighed moderately active New Orleans support and trade buying at the limits.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Stocks steady; leaders recover moderately. Bonds firm; speculative rails fractionally higher. Cotton uneven; hedge selling, commission house liquidation.

CHICAGO—Wheat higher; professional and mill buying. Corn higher; industrial demand. Cattle nominally steady. Hogs steady; quotable top $11.50.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The stock market shook off some of its fear complex today and leading issues managed to retrieve portions of the sharp declines suffered this week.

Rails were among the best performers, these having been resistant to the slump of the past few days. Steels, motors, mail orders and specialties gave a good account of themselves.

The principal cloud over the brief session was that dealings were relatively apathetic throughout. Transfers of around 200,000 shares were among the lowest for a two-hour stretch in more than a month.

Beach hen—Coast to parking space.

Broke to lead—Needs to be towed in.

Bull O' the Woods—Convoy commander.

UNDERGROUND NIGHT CLUB

BELLA VISTA, Ark.—(AP)—Five hundred feet beneath the Ozark mountains 2,500 people can dine and dance at one time in the world's largest underground night club. Wonderland Cave, mysteriously air-conditioned by nature, was once a hideout for Jesse James.

Navy Band's Appearance Here Grows In Interest

North Louisiana Record Crowd Is Expected To Attend Concerts

Interest shown in the appearance in Monroe, on October 17, of the United States navy band is growing by leaps and bounds and there is every indication that a record-sized throng will attend the two concerts given here, David C. Carter, publicity director of Teflis Grotto, which is to sponsor the concert here, said yesterday. This will be the first time that this nationally-known band has appeared in North Louisiana, and the Monroe concert will be the only one to be given in the state.

Plans call for a matinee performance in the Northeast Junior College stadium, Friday, October 17, at 3 p.m., and at this concert students will be admitted for 30 cents, which include the tax. The night performance at the Neville High school auditorium will be at 8 o'clock, and there will be but one price, a single dollar admitting, with the tax included.

Teflis Grotto has conducted an extensive campaign of billboard and other advertising in practically all cities and towns of North Louisiana, and through the schools, the P.-T. A. groups, and officials of the cities, there is being given away assurance that a big throng will come to Monroe for the occasion. Shreveport is expected to send a large delegation and the advertising of the concerts in that city is to be on an extensive scale.

The band members will arrive by bus from Hot Springs, Ark. They will be met by a delegation from Teflis Grotto beyond the city limits and escorted to the city. When in Monroe, they will be taken to headquarters at Hotel Frances. There will also be—in addition to the rooms and suites reserved for the players—a room set aside as an "exhibition room" in which there will be displays that will illustrate the band and the work of the United States navy. The public will be invited to inspect this room, and it is expected to prove popular with old and young.

From Monroe the band will proceed to Greenwood, Miss., for a concert the following night, and the second night after leaving Monroe they will play in concert at Nashville, Tenn.

A popular member of the navy band is Carmen Parlante, cornet soloist. He began his violin musical studies at the age of 10 years. After a few years he decided that he liked the trumpet much better, so he changed to this instrument, studying with his father, who was recognized as one of the leading trumpeters in Philadelphia.

In 1935, at the age of 17, he won a scholarship at the Curtis Institute of Music, when only two aspirants from a group of 22 were accepted. In addition to his work on the trumpet with Saul Caston, he also studied piano, ear-training and harmony. In three years he had advanced from fourth to first trumpet in the Curtis orchestra, under the direction of Fritz Reiner.

After graduating from Curtis, he accepted a position with the Baltimore Symphony orchestra, where he played for three seasons. During this period, he played first trumpet with Raymond Paige, who was then presenting his "Musical Americana" program over the NBC network from Pittsburgh each Thursday night. This was one of the busiest periods in Parlante's career, as he was also working at one of the NBC stations in Philadelphia, besides doing dance work and playing for the Philadelphia La Scala Opera Company.

"In the course of operations carried out with the closest collaboration of the army and air force, a total of 665,000 prisoners were taken, 884 tanks, 3,718 pieces of artillery, and unsurveyable quanties of other war material were captured or destroyed.

"The opponents' bloody losses again were very high.

"Thus a victory was won which is unparalleled in history. The exploitation of these successes is in full swing."

The German radio blared forth the communique with a flourish of trumpets, and the press rolled out its blackest headlines. The German public listened and read with stolid faces.

Informed Germans said the invasion had reached to the source of the Volga river, 200 miles southeast of Leningrad.

A Russian communique reported more than 4,000 enemy soldiers slain on the approaches to beleaguered Leningrad, with 66 planes and 34 tanks captured or destroyed, as well as local successes on the central front, scene of repeated Russian counter-attacks.

Authoritative military quarters in London said a German attack on the Crimean peninsula was developing into the biggest assault possible in the confines of the Perekop isthmus.

They expressed belief the Germans could not take the peninsula without destroying the Soviet Black sea fleet, however, and the Russian spokesman in Moscow, S. A. Lozovsky, said the Germans had not yet been able to set foot in the Crimea.

The British commander-in-chief for India, General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, arrived in Iran (Persia) Saturday on a mission of an admittedly urgent and secret nature. Having already conferred with the commander of the Middle East and with the British general staff, Wavell was expected to discuss defense plans thoroughly with the Russian military leaders in Iran.

The British moved to help Russia in another way by publishing a warning to Finland that she would be considered an enemy if she carried on an aggressive war on territory of the Soviet Union.

The Finns have won back virtually all the soil they lost to Russia by the peace of March, 1940. If they seek more, Britain will consider them Axis members, the foreign office warned.

Two more Frenchmen were shot in Paris for illegal possession of firearms, and the Brussels press reported execution of 20 "Communist" hostages in Belgium and northern France for stealing explosives with which to attack trains.

Two Germans were executed for listening to foreign radio broadcasts.

Reinhard Heydrich, chief of security and right-hand man to Heinrich Himmler in the German gestapo, was appointed Reichs protector of Bohemia and Moravia, replacing Baron Konstantin von Neurath. Ill health was the ostensible reason for the retirement of the chief of those remnants of the republic of Czecho-Slovakia.

In Italy, bread rationing was ordered effective next Wednesday, in addition to rationing of shoes and clothing. Spaghetti long has been rationed. Taxes were increased and the Mussolini regime took steps to weed out suspect Fascists from public office.

A British compilation showed Italy had lost 29 troop and supply ships in the Mediterranean in September, plus 30 badly damaged.

The R. A. F. also continued active blows at Germany, reporting destruction of 21 German planes in day-long sweeps over northern France, with a loss of 14 British machines. This followed bombings of the Rhineland and northern France Friday night. The Germans broadcast a loss of 17 British planes.

Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini exchanged telegrams of felicitation with Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye in observance of the first anniversary of the signing of the German-Japanese-Italian tripartite pact.

The Japanese observed the anniversary very quietly, and a prominent newspaper commentator, Teiichi Muto of Tochi, suggested that if the Axis aims for a "new world order" were to be realized Germany had better fix up a peace with Russia and turn all her energies against Britain.

The Japanese military command announced capture of Changsha, capital of Hunan province, in hand-to-hand fighting with the Chinese defenders. The city was the objective of a new Japanese drive after two years of comparative quiet since the Japanese suffered one of their worst defeats of the war in that area in October, 1939.

ARMY'S BIGGEST GAMES NEAR END

Two columns swept completely out of the maneuver area deep into Texas, and struck Shreveport from the west and north only to bog down against a barrier of lakes and rivers fully protected by anti-tank barricades, one 40 miles away, the other 15 miles away.

At nightfall, the tanks were in the vicinity of Caddo lake and Cross lake northeast of Shreveport, about 15 miles from the city limits and under stiff fire from anti-tank reinforcements brought up from the south.

A critique set for Tuesday at Leesville, GHQ, will write official finis to the war games, with Lieutenant-General Leslie J. McNair, chief of the general headquarters staff, pointing out the strong points and weak points discovered in the army during the summer of battle practice.

The 400,000 troops who participated in the maneuvers, meanwhile, will start for their home stations throughout the nation on Monday; movement will be a gradual one, with the divisions following in assigned sequence on the highways out of the state. Louisiana will not be clear of the out-of-state troops for fully a week.

For the citizen army which participated in the war games—most of the divisions are federalized national guardsmen and 75 per cent of the regular units are composed of selectees—the summer war games have served as a vast conditioning project, toughening them physically for actual battle and teaching them the art of warfare under conditions as near realism as possible without unduly endangering their lives.

In addition to the number of troops participating, the war games were the greatest in almost every respect ever staged on American soil. Some observers said the maneuvers surpassed anything ever attempted outside of actual farfare anywhere in the world.

The month of preliminary maneuvers in Louisiana and Arkansas and the June Tennessee war games served as warm-ups for inexperienced commanders, fresh from civilian life, to test their mettle, and they prepared the soldiers for the rigors of the greater war games.

With scores of war-wise British observers watching, virtually all of the United States army's newest instruments of streamlined warfare was brought into use this month.

Parachute troops, on maneuvers for the first time, made two major attacks and two minor ones behind enemy lines.

The nation's only complete armored corps worked as a unit for the first time; the new M-3, 30-ton medium tank was tested in action, 17 of them arriving from the production line barely in time to accompany the troops.

New tank-killer units, an innovation introduced by the United States during the maneuvers as a means of stopping tank columns, were put into action but the swamps and bayous made impassable by rains held armored troops to the highways. Thus, the mobility of the groups never got a chance to prove its worth. For the same reason, the terrain handicapped a full showing by the new armored force.

More airplanes than ever used in battle practice with ground troops, nearly 1,000, filled the air constantly except for a few days when they were handicapped by rain or wind. Almost every type of plane was used, including new dive bombers which brought to the American army the new technique of aiming a plane straight at a target and diving down thousands of feet out of the clouds.

Two systems of meeting enemy air raids were tested. The Second army used a radio interceptor system, much of which is still secret. The Third army employed a civilian spotter system, by which watchers telephoned warnings of aircraft flying over their territory.

Cavalry, with heavily armed mechanized forces replacing many former horse units, worked side by side with tanks, indicating that the biggest worth of the mounted troops to streamlined warfare is in swamps where motorized forces cannot operate; the old conception of horse warfare is sweeping charges across open prairies and deserts.

The deep, wide rivers in Louisiana and Arkansas provided a real test for the bridge-building ability of Uncle Sam's engineers. In one night alone—when the Second army crossed the Red river to start the war games—more pontoon bridges were built than in any single undertaking in the army's entire history.

Many drastic changes in the operation of the army and in some cases organization setups will be suggested, scores of army observers from Washington and army posts throughout the country watched the maneuvers with critical eyes.

Except for testing the ability of the troops to move and their vehicles to stand the punishment, the maneuvers offered little opportunity for the full use of fighting equipment. Even in the firing of blanks, the army was handicapped by lack of ammunition; scores of wooden guns and iron pipes took the place of .50-caliber machine guns, 37-mm. guns, 80-mm. mortars and 105-mm. howitzers and other such weapons introduced recently.

ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER CAPTURED

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Edmond Le Breton, Associated Press writer covering the war games with the Second army, was captured today by Third army troops.

He fell into enemy hands, after successfully eluding capture during the entire war games, at almost the same hour he was ordered to end his assignment and return home. The newsman, when last heard from, was at Longview, Tex., trying to locate Blue tank columns moving toward Shreveport.

ALABAMA GRABS OPENER, 47 TO 6

By LeRoy Simms

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide lived up to advance notices today with a smashing 47 to 6 victory over an out-manned eleven from Southwestern Louisiana institute, and gave scouts for rival Southeastern conference teams an eye-filling picture of a host of fast backs and rangy linemen.

The winners counted two touchdowns early in the first period to end whatever doubt there was as to the contest's final outcome and, except for a brief lapse in the second period proceeded to roll up scores with second, third and fourth stringers in the lineup.

Especially impressive to the crowd of 6,000 was the work of the Tide backs, who ran in mid-season form.

The Southwestern touchdown climaxed an 85 yard march featuring the passing and running of little Bobby Voitier, a 170-pounder from Opelousas, La. After banging out a couple of gains on slashes at the line, Voitier hurled a long pass to Selfro for a 5 yard gain to the 'Bama 12, and pitched another to Bandura for nine. Bernhard bucked it over.

Poor punts set up both Alabama early touchdowns, made by Spence and Nelson, but the Tide line was rushing the kicker all afternoon, and managed to account for one score in the fourth period, by blocking a punt and catching it before it hit the ground. Cloyce, a substitute guard, ambled 20 yards across the goal line for the score.

AMATEUR RADIO GROUP ON JOB

Renders Service To Marines When Storm Raged Last Week

The Ouachita Valley Amateur Radio club has not been faced with many situations of an emergency nature, but when an emergency does occur, the local hams, as radio amateurs are called, meet it in full stride.

On Wednesday, when the telegraph companies here were cut off from outside communication by the 48-mile per hour wind which gave Monroe residents a fright, the amateur radio club was asked to deliver a message of the utmost importance to the Marine hospital in the city of Galveston, which was entirely cut off from the outside world by ordinary means of communication.

Amateurs in both cities were on the job, with hams in intermediate towns standing by, and in a relatively short time the message was delivered to the proper authorities in Galveston and a reply received here in Monroe.

Though commercial telegraph companies are seldom without their normal communications facilities, when a severe storm or other act of nature puts them temporarily out of commission, they do not hesitate to call upon the radio amateur for they know a ham can be depended on to get the message through.

Soldiers and marines visiting Monroe during maneuvers have also learned what a radio amateur can do. The Ouachita Valley Amateur Radio club placed boxes in the USO centers of the Twin Cities with an appropriate sign announcing free message service for military men. Necessarily limiting messages to 25 words each, the hams offered to deliver via the ham bands radiograms to families, sweethearts and friends. So eagerly did the soldiers accept the opportunity to send a radiogram that the amateur radio club handled a total of 1,750 soldiers' messages in a period of 30 days. This free radiogram service is still being conducted by the local hams and will continue as long as the USO centers are open in Monroe and West Monroe.

To appreciate what the radio amateur really does, it must be understood that a ham is not permitted to accept any remuneration for his work He stands by in emergencies or handles soldiers' traffic just for the experiences, thrills, and fun in operating his radio outfit.

A lot of dollars are added to his electricity bill and many of the best sleeping hours are lost, but a true ham is repaid many times over in the pleasure his hobby affords through contacts with new-found friends who are perhaps many thousand miles away.

REVIVAL LEADERS

Rev. and Mrs. C. C. Knippers, above, evangelists of Jackson, Miss., are conducting a revival at the Church of the Nazarene, at Thomas avenue and Richmond street. These revival meetings will continue, with two services each day, through October 5 with morning service at 9:30 o'clock, and the evening meeting at 7:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend, stated the pastor, Rev. G. M. Akin.

CAUTIONS AGAINST FOOD PLAN ABUSES

Warning that the federal government will push prosecution of persons violating the regulations of the food stamp plan, E. N. Thompson, chairman of the food industry committee of Ouachita parish, yesterday urged retail grocers to "recognize the benefits which have been attained through the food stamp plan" and pointed out that flagrant violations of the rules established for operation of the Surplus Marketing administration's plan would result in wholesale denials of participation.

Evidence that the government will not condone any abuse of the provisions of the plan is shown by the report of the convictions of four persons in Mississippi for violations of the regulations, Mr. Thompson said.

The cases cited were those of the government against James Newton Weir, grocer of West Enterprise, Miss., and three negroes employed by Weir as "runners" to contact relief clients participating in the SMA's food stamp program. All four pleaded guilty to presenting false claims and conspiring to present false claims against the United States government.

Weir drew a three-year federal prison term and a fine of $1,000 from Federal Judge Sidney Mize of the Mississippi federal court and the negroes each received sentences of six months.

ITALY TIGHTENS WAR ECONOMIES

Weeds Out Luke-Warm Fascists, Boosts Taxes, Curbs Inflation

ROME, Sept. 27.—(AP)—The Italian government today announced a far-reaching series of measures designed to streamline the country's war effort, including bread rationing, increases in taxes, curbs on inflation, decentralization of industry and the weeding out of luke-warm Fascists from public office.

The cabinet, meeting under Premier Mussolini, approved the group of laws.

These measures revised and reinforced previous decrees intended to discourage Italians from investing their cash in property or industrial securities rather than in the government bonds with which Italy is paying for the war. Their aim is partly also to prevent an inflationary flight from the lira.

The cabinet, after hearing Il Duce himself report that the 1941 grain harvest "does not cover the needs of the population," announced that bread rationing would begin October 1. Cards already have been distriubted.

The basic daily ration was set at 200 grams (about 6 1-2 ounces). Workers are allowed 300 grams (10 ounces) and heavy workers 400 grams (13 ounces).

Pure white flour long has been unavailable in Italy, and bread has been adulterated with lower grade ingredients, in steps taken to stave off rationing. Spaghetti, a mainstay in Italian diet, has been rationed for many months. It likewise has been adulterated.

Mussolini reported to the cabinet that the grain harvest had been lower than the forecasts, although slightly higher than in 1940. He estimated the crop at 71,500,000 quintals, or about 262,000,000 bushels, as compared with 71,000,000 quintals last year.

The grain harvest, a communique said, "is very deficient as compared to last year's while the needs for the armed forces and the occupied territories have increased."

Italy, it was said, must send food to the occupied territories in the Balkans, particularly Greece.

LOUISIANA BOYS GRADUATE

THIS IS UNQUESTIONABLY THE FINEST CAR DODGE HAS EVER BUILT. IT CONTAINS THE NEW POWER-FLOW ENGINE FOR ITS ALL-FLUID DRIVE. WITH FULL-FLOATING RIDE, IT IS THE FINAL TRIUMPH OF THE FLOATING IDEA AS ORIGINATED BY DODGE. IT IS A CAR BUILT TO THE BEST OF DODGE TRADITION FOR DEPENDABILITY. IT IS AN ENDURING INVESTMENT, FOR AS MANY YEARS AS YOU WISH TO DRIVE IT.

The New and the Finest Dodge

EVERY MAN OR WOMAN who buys one of these new Dodges will get for his money the very finest car that Dodge has ever turned out. He will get it, of course, from a smaller total production, because the Government of the United States has first call upon Dodge factories and men. But, we repeat, every civilian buyer of Dodge motorcars will receive for his investment all of the traditional Dodge quality at higher levels of endurance, performance and economy than Dodge has ever supplied them before.

Power-Flow Engine—For All-Fluid Drive

He will get, literally, the climax value of twenty-seven years of fine car engineering. He will get the phenomenal success of Dodge All-Fluid Drive. He will get the new Power-Flow Engine, designed and adapted as the more powerful complement to the fluid smoothness of Dodge All-Fluid Drive. He will get a motorcar of lifetime lasting qualities, in which riding and driving have become almost the same thing—except that the driver gets the added joy of command.

Is This Asking Too Much?

People by the hundreds who have driven the new Dodge say almost the same thing. They say they could not, and would not, go back to the old way of driving. It is not asking too much, we believe, that you investigate these revolutionary Dodge qualities.

You should experience the ebb and flow of Dodge power, at any speed, in any traffic, with or without shifting gears as you may wish. You should measure its new economy against the old, and realize that Dodge, all by itself, has turned the corner into a new day of motorcar performance, long life, and Dependability.

Dependability—Forever the Watchword

It is unquestionably true that fewer cars will be built this coming year, according to your own defense requirements. But, above all, it is true that there can never occur any curtailment of Dodge motorcar quality—and no substitute, ever, for Dodge Dependability.

Eve Bradford's CHAT COLUMN

JUST one more week of lazy summer loafing—and then it's back to the Three R's—back to early rising, to the frantic rush for school books, and the hurried breakfast. The class room awaits the children of Monroe once more and the actual business of learning that "i" goes before "e" except after "c" begins. Some are eager to plunge again into the problems of long division—others doleful with memories of the sandlot, the swimming pool, the mountain camp and the beach.

The summer vacation this year will be even more delightful in nostalgic retrospect due to the additional weeks of play rendered necessary due to the crowded highways and war maneuvers in Louisiana. Teachers, however, have grown restless with the enforced idleness and are ready to get in harness again.

It is a consoling thought to know that our boys and girls, going to school more or less willingly, need have no fear of bombs and cannons. However, the catastrophe that has embroiled so much of the world will leave its mark here. This year it seems the schools will become one of the chief propagandist agencies in instilling in the minds of childen just exactly what democracy means. Every subject taught in the classroom will bear the imprint of democratic approach. By the end of the year democracy will really mean something to the children of these United States.

Free lunches to all the school children of Monroe is just about the grandest thing that has ever happened to parents. Absolutely without discrimination, children will be fed wholesome food. There will be no more wistful children casting envious eyes at the abundance of food others were privileged to indulge in. There will be no counting of pennies to see if a glass of milk will be possible. Some parents absolutely refused to accept charity and consequently the pennies had to be stretched to cover the needs of the family. This is certainly a long step forward in making children strong physically and serene mentally. Only the physically strong children will develop into men and women properly equipped to deal with the problems of reconstruction which will succeed the problems of national defense.

We doff our hat today to the master mind—the man responsible for sponsoring the free lunch project in Monroe. Whoever he is you can rest assured that he is a very superior person and one who will leave "footprints in the sands of time." In the words of the poet, such men, "while their companions sleep are toiling upward in the night."

The campus at Northeast Junior college presents a strange and slightly incongruous sight these days. Boys with painted lips and cheeks and garbed in their mother's big floppy hat and their sister's cast off summer dress are being put through the agonizing experience of fraternity initiation. If they can't "take it" the fraternity doesn't want them. For the bold in spirit it is just a lark but for the timid soul it is nothing less than torture.

Annie Lee West Stahl, a familiar figure on the campus at Northeast Junior college, is back on the job serving as sponsor for the Purple Jackets, publicity manager for the Pow Wow and instructor of English. Everyone is simply devoted to her—especially the co-eds who find in her a sympathetic listener in times of stress and a delightful companion for their lighter moments.

Morris Haas, Jr., left with his beautiful bride for Washington last week following the impressive ceremony at the Haas home. When champagne glasses were held high everyone drank to the health and the happiness of the young couple. Daisy Haas resolved that her son's wedding would be light and gay despite the fact that he was leaving for Washington to await orders from the United States government. Not a tear fell and everyone (on the surface) was as gay as could be. What happened after the bride and bridegroom left in a shower of rice, will always remain a secret in the heart of the bridegroom's mother. To be able to keep a stiff upper lip under such conditions takes a very stout heart indeed.

Each week brings its own thrill of satisfaction at the quiet, unspectacular way in which women's groups are going about doing many things in promotion of defense programs. That little group of women known as the Junior Knitters are clicking their needles to the accompaniment of bright conversation at the weekly meetings. This particular group of young women devote several hours a week to the great national defense program.

A conspicuous figure on defense programs is Katie Mae Thornhill, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Bridger Thornhill. Life at the Thornhill menage on St. John Drive continues in the old sweet way despite the absence of the head of the house. "Keep the home fires burning" is Mrs. Thornhill's motto. The presence of Martha Jane Hill, Mrs. Thornhill's lovely niece who was graduated from the state university last June, adds considerable luster to the household. Handsome young officers are continually draping themselves over the piano where Martha Jane brings forth sweet music "to soothe the savage breast." She is a brilliant pianist.

Mrs. Thornhill is back on the job of sponsoring the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. and what a splendid job she is making of it. This group of girls with their religious fervor, their clear vision and their high ideals, are the very cream of Monroe's younger set.

Juanita Hogge, whose marriage to Kenneth Holt took place yesterday, is treasuring one gift in particular. It is a miniature house—an exact replica of the one she and her husband will soon occupy. It is now under construction. A friend borrowed the plans from the architect and had it duplicated in miniature. Really it is simply charming—something to keep forever and ever.

Such thrilling news concerning Leila Dean Frazier. She has been named Louisiana Princess of the Rose Festival in Tyler, Texas, next month Needless to say, such an honor is enough to turn the head of any girl—even one as level headed as lovely Leila Dean. The girl who receives this mark of distinction is honored at social affairs during the festival and is the central figure at the grand ball, always a feature of this colorful event. She is spotlighted in the parade and a conspicuous figure from the time she arrives in Tyler until she leaves. It is most gratifying to know the perfect type of Southern girl, such as Leila Dean, has been selected to represent Louisiana at an event that attracts visitors from every section of the country.

Brown Paper Mill Gym Scene Of Dancing Party

A dancing party for soldiers stationed at the airport was held last week at the Brown Paper mill gymnasium. Considerable strategy was necessary in transporting the soldiers as the bridges were "bombed" and army trucks were unable to cross "the border."

Dancing started at a late hour but was thoroughly enjoyed by the soldiers and their partners.

During intermission, when cold drinks were served, a floor show was introduced, staged by pupils from the Turk school of dancing. The following numbers were presented:

"Baton Tap," Helen and Getrude Zurga.

"Tuxedo Junction," Helen Zurga, Gertrude Zurga, Lillie Lee Myers, and Roy Whittington.

At each of these weekly dances, splendid talent has been discovered. At this time a vocal solo by Sergant Harry Fellows was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. D. L. Nicol, president of the Ouachita Parish P.-T. A., states that General Chairman Mrs. John Young is cooperating beautifully and her coworkers are making these dances exceptionally pleasant. It is planned to continue them as long as there are soldiers stationed in this community.

INTRODUCING . . .

Mrs. A. M. Freeman, Jr., whose marriage was an interesting event of September 26. Mrs. Freeman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lide of Birmingham, Ala. Following the honeymoon Dr. and Mrs. Freeman will be at home in Monroe where Dr. Freeman is associated with the Conway Memorial hospital.

Many Popular Works Of Fiction At Library Here

Popular new works of fiction at the public library are: "Marriage Is a Private Affair," Judith Kelly; "My Friend Ficka," Mary O'Hara; "Shelter," Jane Nicholson; "Strange Woman," Ben Ames Williams; "Book of Claudia," Rose Franken; "One Red Rose Forever," Mildred Jordan; "Captain from Connecticut," C. S. Forester; "Louisiana Lady" Narena Easterling; "Thousandth Man," Ruby M. Ayres; "Death and the Dancing Footman," Ngaio Marsh; and "Above Suspicion," Helen MacInnes.

An entertaining and well-written novel is Judith Kelly's "Marriage Is a Private Affair," the Harper prize novel, 1941-42. The story is concerned with the marriage of two young people who thought they had a plan for life, and how that plan was interferred with. The theme is so representative of common experience that it is sure to strike home to a large audience.

Informative new non-fiction include: "Reveille in Washington, 1860-1865," Margaret Leech; "No Other Road to Freedom," Leland Stowe; "I Have Loved England," Alice Duer Miller; "Meet the South Americans," Carl Crow; "No Life for a Lady," Agnes Cleaveland; "Viking Book of Poetry," Richard Aldington; and "Reading I've Liked," Clifton Fadiman.

A valuable book recently donated the library by the Monroe Opera club is "Light Opera and Musical Comedy" by J. Walker McSpadden. Included in this volume are synopses of some 200 light operas. The arrangement is by Country, and data include short biographical sketches of the composers, listing of the best-known songs, and of well-known singers who have taken parts in the operas.

Because of recent movie adaptations, the following books have increased greatly in popularity: "Shepherd of the Hills," "Arizona," "When Ladies Meet," "I Wanted Wings," "Sergeant York," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Dr. Kildaire" (series), "For Whom the Bells Toll," "King's Row," "Prisoner of Zenda," and "Blood and Sand."

Ceremony Performed By Bridegroom's Father, Monroe Pastor, In Home Of Bride's Parents

Of interest to a wide circle of Monroe friends was the marriage Friday evening of Miss Kathrine Lide, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lide of Birmingham, Ala., to Dr. A. M. Freeman, Jr., son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Freeman, Sr., pastor of the First Methodist Church of Monroe.

Rev. Freeman officiated at the ceremony, which took place at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of close friends and relatives. Dr. Freeman and his bride left for a short wedding trip on the coast, and will come to Monroe Monday, where Dr. Freeman is a member of the staff of Conway Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Freeman attended Birmingham-Southern college where she was outstanding in her scholastic achievements. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi social sorority, Eta Sigma Phi scholastic fraternity, Mortar Board, and Phi Beta Kappa. After graduating from college, she received a fellowship in French at Northwestern university at Evanston, Ill., and completed work there on her Master of Arts degree.

Dr. Freeman also was graduated from Birmingham-Southern college, where he was affiliated with Kappa Alpha fraternity. He attended the medical school of Vanderbilt university in Nashville, Tenn., and received his M. D. in 1940. At Vanderbilt he was a member of Phi Chi medical fraternity and Witherspoon club. He has completed one year of internship at Hillman hospital in Birmingham and has just come to this city to continue his resident work in the Conway Memorial hospital.

Mrs. M. C. McDonald Entertains Complimentary To Miss Juanita Hogge

White Columns Scene Of Pre-Nuptial Affair

Highlight Of Occasion Is Presentation Of Gifts; Miscellaneous Shower Also Is Given

Mrs. M. C. McDonald wore a smart paprika red and white model when she welcomed a few guests during the cocktail hour in her home, White Columns, complimentary to Miss Juanita Hogge, whose marriage was an interesting event of Saturday afternoon.

The highlight of this charming occasion was the presentation of exquisite gifts of lingerie to Miss Hogge. The two lovely little daughters of the hostess, Barbara Louise and Dorothy, attired as Cupids, in pink and blue satin costumes, were privileged to present the gifts overflowing from a pink and blue tulle covered cart. One gift especially admired was the handsome pink satin gown and blue satin robe prescnted to Miss Hogge by her hostess.

Cocktails were passed by white-clad attendants in the dining room, where a luscious assortment of canapes and hors d'oeuvers were served from a beautifully appointed aperitif table.

Cocktails and hors d'oeuvers were passed in the Blue room of the Frances hotel last week when Miss Hogge stood in the midst of her coworkers of the Brown Paper mill, who entertained with a miscellaneous shower in her honor.

Miss Hogge wore a smartly tailored black model with close-fitting hat of black and beige accessories. Her corsage of purple clover was a gift from the hostesses.

The presentation of gifts wrapped in the most attractive manner engaged the interest of the honor guest, who found in the collection articles of a household nature.

The hostess obtained the services of a professional fortune-teller for this occasion and every one passed forward to learn what the future had in store for them.

Present in addition to Miss Hogge were Miss Beverly Russe , Miss Mays McKnight, Miss Doris Laycock, Miss Sorena Rinehardt, Miss Pauline Wadsworth, Miss Katherine Smith, Miss Grace Hogge, Miss Wilma Nobles, Miss Faye Curry, Mrs. M. C. McDonald and Miss Maude Leigh Taylor.

Mrs. F. C. Shelton's conversational honoring Miss Hogge was another delightful interlude in last week's activities. Beautiful flowers, delicious refreshments and a program of bridal significance introduced by the hostess for diversion were the highlights of the evening's courtesies.

Mrs. Phillip Lynch, co-hostess on this occasion, assisted Mrs. Shelton in serving a variety of sandwiches and pastries and English tea.

Federated Music Clubs' Directors Will Meet

Spurring the members of the Louisiana Federation of Music clubs to intensive activity along defense lines, a meeting of the state board of directors has been called for October 11 in the home of Mrs. O. B. Owen, regional chairman, of Pineville, La. The meeting will be attended by several prominent members of the federation of this city who are serving on the state board.

The official call has been issued by Mrs. Luther Beene of Shreveport, state president

Important business will come up for discussion at this time, according to Mrs. Beene, and every officer and state chairman is urged to attend. In the event that any officer or chairman cannot be present, Mrs. Beene requests that they send an outline of their plans for the year to her for presentation at the meeting.

Mrs. Beene has just returned from a meeting of the board of directors of the National Federation of Music clubs held in Cincinnati September 10-14, and will give a report of proceedings of this meeting to the state board. Mrs. W. Carruth Jones of Baton Rouge, national board member from Louisiana, was another state representative at the Cincinnati meeting. Dr. William Van de Wall and Miss Helen Gunderson of Baton Rouge, national chairman, were unable to attend.

The subjects of national and hemisphere defense were much to the fore at the national meeting. Mrs. Beene stated. While not neglecting the routine business of the organization, representatives of 48 states concentrated major attention upon the role which a primarily cultural organization can play in an all-out defense effort.

Taking the lead in spurring the federation to intensive activity along defense lines was Lucy Monroe, director of patriotic music for RCA Victor, known as "the Star Spangled soprano," and Mrs. Vera Micheles Dean of New York City, research director of the foreign policy association.

Miss Monroe, who has temporarily deserted the field of concert and opera for a coast to coast tour to spread the gospel of song as a medium of defense, gave a patriotic song demonstration at the first general meeting. Mrs. Dean, who has just returned from South America, gave an address entitled, "The Western Hemisphere Looks to the Future," at a luncheon meeting. Mrs. Edgar Stillman Kelly, honorary and past national president, presided. Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Maine, newly-elected president, spoke briefly on "Mobilize For All-Out Defense," the slogan of her administration.

Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober of Norfolk, immediate past president, now chairman of the federation's defense commission, accompanied Mrs. Gannett on a visit to various defense agencies in Washington to study the role the federation might play in bolstering morale.

The official call to the meeting of the State Board of Directors of the Louisiana Federation of Music clubs has been issued, the meeting to be held in the home of Mrs. O. B. Owens, regional chairman, 1931 Military Highway, Pineville, La., October 11, 1941 at ten o'clock.

Miss Juanita Hogge, Kenneth Holt Married

Ceremony Takes Place Here Saturday; Honeymoon In Orleans And Florida

Sincere and affectionate interest is centered today in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Juanita Hogge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hogge, and Kenneth Edward Holt, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Holt of Fayetteville, Ark.

The ceremony, characterized by simplicity, took place Saturday morning, September 27, at the Presbyterian manse, with the pastor, Rev. Ernest Holloway, officiating in the presence of a few close friends and members of the family.

The bride wore a distinctive, advanced fall model of goal post brown with accessories of the same shade. Her hat, a Studio model, was small and close fitting with shoulder length veil of brown Chantilly lace. A corsage of orchids created a contrasting color note. For something old she carried a Mexican hand-made lace handkerchief.

An informal reception was held following the ceremony. Later, the bride changed for a smart tailleur of olive green with short, gold-colored coat and brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt are spending their honeymoon in New Orleans and Florida. When they return, they will be established in their beautiful new home at 2503 North Eleventh street, McGuire addition, West Monroe.

Mrs. Holt is a graduate of the Orange, Tex., high school and the Monroe Commercial College. For the past few years she has been associated with the Brown Paper Mill in a secretarial capacity.

Mr. Holt is a graduate of the University of Arkansas, where he pledged Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is associated with the Brown Paper Mill here.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mrs. Dolly Lewis and daughter, Theda Bly Lewis, of Beaumont, Tex., Miss Billie Scales of Little Rock, and Earl D. Holt of Fort Smith, Ark.

Defense Chairmen Meet In Monroe October 7

"The most vital thing in America today is education for defense," according to Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, state chairman of national defense of the Louisiana Federated Women's clubs.

An important meeting of the fifth district chairmen of national defense will be held in Monroe, October 7 and will be attended by Mrs. Eunice Hood of Lake Providence, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, West Monroe, Mrs. Carrie Hennington, Rayville, Mrs. C. L. Crigler, St. Joseph, Mrs. Clayton Gunter, Oak Grove, Mrs. C. C. Miller, West Monroe, Mrs. W. M. Murphy, Tallulah, Mrs. Carl Shipp, Jr., Wisner, Miss Janet Hixon, Mangham, Mrs. J. A. Guss, Jonesville, Mrs. Walter McBride, Ruston, Mrs. W. C. Simonton, Ruston.

Under the leadership of Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, national president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, women will play just as important part as anything that can be done by the United States army, navy, marine corps, or coast guard, according to Hartford Powell of the United States treasury department.

Fairbanks P.-T. A. Has First Meeting Of Year

The meeting was opened with the P.-T. A. song. Budget for the year was adopted. Main project is to purchase books for the school.

Officers are: Mrs. O. A. Sinquefield, president; Mrs. H. P. Fizer, vice-president; Mrs. R. N. Lanningham, secretary and Mrs. L. C. Gill, treasurer.

Mrs. Chapman Entertains With Breakfast-Bridge

The breakfast table, silver serviced and covered with handsome damask, was florally adorned with a wide-spreading bowl overflowing with pink Radiance roses and fern.

Following the serving of the delicious, three course breakfast, bridge was introduced by the hostess. Tables were grouped in the reception suite, where beautiful fall roses were arranged with artistry in the background.

Mrs. E. M. Hammond and Mrs. Dhu Thompson received beautiful gifts of rosepoint pottery for high scores, and for remembrance Mrs. Hardeman received a beautiful gift of china.

Literary Club Meets In Edwin Byrd Home

Mrs. M. L. Padgett Has Charge Of Program, Discusses 'Women In Art'; Mrs. Tisdale Speaks

Mrs. D. C. Barron, president of the Monroe Literary club, presided over the meeting in the home of Mrs. Edwin Byrd last week. Following reports submitted by the club officers, a constructive talk was given by Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, state chairman of national defense.

Mrs. P. E. Massey, club chairman of national defense, urged cooperation with all phases of the work. The following committee was appointed to plan the Red Cross work for the year: Mrs. A. B. Colmer, Mrs. W. M. Mitchell, and Mrs. H. A. Scott.

She said, in part:

"It's a kind of sentimental legend that women are 'clever with their hands,' and, like all legends, there's considerable truth in it. All through history you will come across pleasant and romantic tableaux of women working with the proverbial patience of Penelope at their looms and shuttles sewing fine seams, making frothy laces and gay-patterned quilts.

"Consider ceramics, a very interesting branch of art. One of the most active women ceramists is Mrs. Lillian B. Wamsley, who besides being an artist in her own right, is also co-director of the Arts and Crafts guild, New York City, where she also conducts classes. She designs charming accessories, such as vases, bowls, statuettes, garden ornaments and cigarette boxes, which she executes in a wide variety of plastic materials, including enamel and metal. Mrs. Wamsley mentioned a few women workers whom she considers outstanding artistically and professionally. One is Martha Davis, who comes from Connecticut but works in New York. She, besides being successful in ceramic work, also designs batiks as a sideline and sells these just as profitably as her pottery.

"Then, there are Dorothy Warren O'Hara and Maud Mason; Marion L. Fosdick, who is head of department of ceramic art at New York State College of Ceramics, Alfred university; Mrs. Aimee Le Prince Voorhees, director of Inwood Pottery; Mrs. Eleanor Rose, who combines business with social service by teaching the art of pottery to blind students at the New York Lighthouse; Maija Grotell and Beatrice Tracy.

"One of the most talented ceramists working in what is known as the modern manner is Vally Wieselthier, who comes from Vienna. She is well-known in Europe, and now she is becoming popular in this country. Jean Manley and B. Lundy are two young women from California who have found a market for their delightful and whimsical ceramics within the last few years. They sell to smart gift shops in large cities. Miss Hanley's charming little goose girls, cocky peasant boys and her groups of not-too-exhalted choirboys are notable for their fluid composition and lovely pastel colors.

"The New York Tomorrow committee of the now-wrecked and dismantled World's Fair showed excellent judgment in designating Georgia O'Keefe, painter of beautiful flower studies and stark landscapes, as one of the twelve most outstanding women of the past 50 years. She was born at Sun Prairie, Wis., of Irish and Hungarian ancestry, and descends from a line of artists. The index of Twentieth Century Artists says: "The reserve and controlled emotional intensity which are basic elements of Georgia O'Keefe's character, together with her choice of subject, have led her critics to indulge in a flood of heavily ornate works embellished with personal opinion in evaluating her work. This has led to a confused impression of a painter whose art is singularly devoid of confusion. Her best-known and most highly regarded studies are of flowers, greatly enlarged, with startling use of contrasts and relationships.

"When she went to Taos, N. M., to visit Mable Dodge Luhan, she returned with bare unadorned landscapes of desert country, fine studies of twisted trees and bones of animals bleached white by the blazing sun. She also painted many abstractions, attempts to express emotion in terms of paint.

"Visitors to New York World's Fair no doubt noticed in front of the contemporary Arts building a piece of black stutuary in the shape of a huge harp, an outstretched arm and hand forming the base and the strings tapering down from the heads of singing negroes. Kneeling in front of the harp, a negro youth was holding out a placard with a few bars of music on it. The stone, 16 feet high and made in the semblance of black basalt, was designed to commemorate the negro's contribution of music to the world. Augusta Savage, the negro sculptress who executed this work, was one of four women sculptors to be given commissions by the World's Fair, the others being Malvine Hoffman, Brenda Putman, and Gertrude Whitney. She took for her theme the so-called Nengro National Anthem 'Lift Every Voice and Sing' by the well-known poet, James Weldon Johnson, which begins: 'Lift every voice and sing, Till earth and heaven ring, ring with the harmonies of liberty.'

"The strings represent negroes of every type and age, who are lifting their voices and singing, the sounding board is the hand of the Creator, the kneeling youth offers the world the gift of song of his people.

"Augusta Savage was born in West Palm Beach, Fla. She was interested in sculptoring even as a child, and used to model shapes from red clay found near her home."

HOSTESSES AWAIT GUESTS . . .

Sherrouse P.-T. A. In First Meeting Of Year

The Sherrouse P.-T. A. met Wednesday at 3:15 p.m. at Sherrouse school for the initial meeting of the year, with the president, Mrs. W. W. Stevens, presiding.

The meeting was opened with prayer, after which a welcome from the national office and from Mrs. Fagan Cox, state president, was given by Miss Eleitha Edwards.

Mrs. Harold Riggs, program chairman, led an informal discussion on "Cooperation," dividing it into two distinct phases as follows: "As a Parent, What Do I Expect of Teachers?" "As a Teacher, What Do I Expect of Parents?" Parents felt free to discuss the question openly with the teachers, taking the attitude that every worth while effort was crowned with success only after understanding and cooperation on the part of all concerned were assured.

Mrs. C. L. Dillingham ably led the discussion of "What Membership in a Parent-Teacher Association Means." She said that such membership offers each adult a way to stimulate interest in community responsibility for the best interest of children and youth, in general, a way to utilize the experiences of other communities in meeting the needs of the local community; a way to share one's own child's school life; a place for comradeship and understanding among other parents; and a way to understand the relation of my own home to the school and to the community.

Mrs. C. C. Lindley read the by-laws of the organization. The goals chairman, Mrs. C. F. Horton, informed the group of the obligations imposed upon each chairman and urged each one to check with his committee on the work assigned in order that the goals set might be reached.

Announcements were made by Mrs. Wade Cotton of the membership drive which is to begin on October 13 and of the district meeting to be held in Sterlington on the same date.

After the reading of the minutes by Mrs. A. T. White, a social hour was held. Refreshments were served by Mrs. L. Batten and Mrs. John Hunt.

Banquet Here To Honor State P.-T. A. Leaders

A banquet will be held by the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council at the parish house, October 13, at 7 p.m. to honor Mrs. Roger Sharp, first vice-president of the Louisiana P.-T. A. and Mrs. Cecil Brown, second vice-president.

Mrs. Brown will speak on "Consumer Education." Mrs. Sharp, state membership chairman, will also deliver an address and will initiate the membership campaign of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council which will start at this time.

Mrs. Fagan Cox, president of the Louisiana P.-T. A., is making a tour of the state with Mrs. Sharp and Mrs. Brown, and is attending the various district meetings. They will attend the Fifth district meeting at Sterlington, October 13.

Parent-Teacher Board Of Managers Will Meet

A meeting of the board of managers of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Association, will be held Saturday, October 4, at the Bentley Hotel, Alexandria.

Mrs. Fagan Cox, president, will preside, and reports will be made by the membership, legislation, citizenship, by-laws, parent-education and survey commission committees.

Mrs. Cox states that the program of the parent-teacher associations in Louisiana has not had to be changed in order to conform to the national defense program, and P.-T. A. organizations all over the state are cooperating with this activity.

Board members from Monroe, who will attend the meeting in Alexandria, are Mrs. Cox, Miss Myrtle Rodgers, Miss Kate Perkins, Mrs. Nell Grigsby, Mrs. G. B. Wilson and Mrs. Aylmer Montgomery. Mrs. W. E. McCoy, president of the Twin Cities' Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, will also attend.

Safety Campaign Urged By National Congress

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers today called upon its 2,500,000 members throughout America to mobilize themselves on an emergency basis for action to reduce the nation's accident toll.

While the P.-T. A. board of managers held its annual September meeting in Chicago, a new 56-page safety manual was sent to the 28,000 parent-teacher associations from coast to coast.

"This is our reply to President Roosevelt, who has proclaimed a safety campaign to be vital to the national defense," declared Miss Marian Telford, chairman of the National Congress Safety committee, adding:

"Since the nation's safety is actually a community problem and each parent-teacher association is concerned with its own community, this is in large measure our responsibility.

"In addition, while traffic deaths in 1941 have increased 17 per cent, the increase in the preschool age group up to four years has increased 33 per cent—the largest increase of all age groups."

Regional conferences, study courses, and activities in every community where there is a parent-teacher association will press the P.-T. A. safety campaign, Miss Telford said, pointing out:

"For 20 years, parent-teacher associations have dealt with the safety problem. Now that problem is aggravated by the defense emergency, and our program will be intensified in accordance with the techniques and procedures which our experience has proved to be best."

For example, Miss Telford explained, the manual urges that every P.-T. A. appoint a committee of three to secure data on the most hazardous places for drivers and pedestrians in a 30-mile radius of the meeting place of the association. At meetings, each of these locations should be named and the hazards specifically described.

"This technique will be applied most vigorously because the United States public roads administration estimates that 91 per cent of motor vehicle trips are under 30 miles from home," Miss Telford said.

The manual contains a 12-page section on "Teaching Another How to Drive," which will also be distributed as a separate publication. Other divisions of the pamphlet include: "Safety at Home," "Can Children Reach School Safely?" "Rules for Drivers and Pedestrians," and "Safety Education in Schools and Colleges."

President Roosevelt's safety proclamation was issued on August 18 and was followed by a meeting of 125 organizations at an emergency safety conference held on September 9 in New York by the National Safety Council, of which Miss Telford is a staff member.

Mrs. William Kletzer, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, attended the conference and was a member of the resolutions committee.

In a foreword to the P.-T. A. safety manual, Mrs. Kletzer declares:

"The appalling and increasing toll of catastrophes will be lowered only when people become conscious of their personal and social responsibility. This responsibility . . . must condition our conduct in all undertakings; it must be based on a deeplying respect for the rights of others; it must become a consistent day-in and day-out attitude."

Club Hears Scouting Talks At Alto Meeting

Leader Mrs. W. T. Sartor, Jr., at the meeting of the Alto Cultural club, presented to the members Rev. W. G. Wise, pastor of the Alto Presbyterian Church who discussed "American Citizenship."

He said that 56 per cent of our youth today are influenced in the home; 44 per cent influence comes from Scouts, public schools, churches and other places, so that America needs more Christian homes, and Christian leaders to help build character in its future citizens on whom America of tomorrow depends.

Scout Dan Sartor discussed the importance of being a scout, giving the Scout oath, law and the four principal duties of scouts and the pledge of allegiance to the United States flag.

Miss Wilma Adams Will Marry James M. Smith

Of interest to relatives and friends in St. Joseph and throughout this section is the announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Wilma Ann Adams and James Merrick Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustine Magruder Smith of St. Joseph. The ceremony will take place October 14 in the chapel of St. Michael and St. George, Episcopal church, in St. Louis, Mo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Adams of Minneappolis, Minn. She is a graduate of Stephens college, a member of Zeta Phi Delta sorority. Mr. Smith is a graduate of Louisiana State university.

The bride will have as her attendants Miss Elna Kleven and Miss Ann Schoonover. William Preston Barnes, III, of Baton Rouge, will serve as best man. James Davidson Harmon of Kansas City, Mo., will act as groomsman. After the honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be at home to their friends at No. 5 Del Lin drive, University City, Mo.

Miss Evelyn Lazette Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Petty of Tallulah, and Mr. Silas L. Cummins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cummins of Columbia, Miss., were united in marriage at the Tallulah Baptist church Sunday afternoon with the Rev. Clarence Crow performing the impressive ring ceremony.

The chancel was attractively decorated with flowers with white floor candelabra holding white candles placed in the background. Floor baskets filled with fern and gladioli in pastel shades flanked the altar.

The bride had as her only attendant Mrs. Stanley Harmon who wore an early fall model of navy blue with black accessories with which she wore a corsage of chrysanthemums and Talisman roses. Cary Croxton of Columbia, Miss., served as best man. The ushers were W. C. Workman and J. E. Manis of Tallulah.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a costume suit of wild olive green with wine accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations and rosebuds.

Preceding the entrance of the bridal party Mrs. J. C. Sherwin played "Claire de Lune" by DeBussey and "Liebestraum" by Liszt. The wedding march from Lohengrin was used as the processional and Mendelssohn's wedding march for the recessional.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Fay Watts presided at the bride's table centered with a beautifully embossed wedding cake surmounted with bride and groom figurines. Mr. and Mrs. Cummins left for a wedding trip in Hot Springs and Fort Smith, Ark. They will make their home in Tallulah, where Mr. Cummins is employed by the Magnolia Oil company.

The bride is a graduate of the Tallulah High school and attended Louisiana Polytechnic institute. Mr. Cummins is a graduate of the Columbia, Miss., high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leland Hunt of Leesville, La., announce the marriage of their daughter, Fay Evangeline, to Mr. William H. Norsworthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Norsworthy of Bastrop.

The civil ceremony was solemnized at the First civil registry at Monterey, Mexico, at 4 p.m., Thursday, September 11, and was followed by a church service at the First Baptist Church of Monterey. Rev. Porfirio Garcia, pastor, officiated at the church ceremony.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Thorne of Durango, Mexico, and Mr. David Le Breton, of Monterey, American vice-consul.

The bride, former member of the News-Star editorial department, is a graduate of Louisiana State University school of journalism. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rice Institute.

Mr. and Mrs. Norsworthy will make their home in Maracaibo, Venezuela, where Mr. Norsworthy is a chemical engineer with Lago Petroleum Corporation.

The sincere interest of friends is centered in the approaching marriage of Dr. Arthur Merrimon Freeman, Jr., to Miss Katherine Lide of Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Lide, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin James Lide, is being extensively entertained with prenuptial affairs all of which are listed in the social calendar of the Birmingham Herald.

Dr. Freeman is the son of Dr. and Mrs. A. M. Freeman of this city.

Federation Head Will Be Here In November

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst Prominent National Figure, Attacks 'Sixth Column' Group

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, who will arrive in Monroe in November to speak before members of the Louisiana Federation when they convene at the Frances hotel for their state convention, is one of the most prominent feminine figures in the country today.

Mrs. Whitehurst recently lashed out with a stinging attack on the appalling apathy of the American people toward the dangers confronting democratic governments and institutions. She said:

"Out of the war in Spain came the term, 'fifth column,' as applied to spies and traitors. I would like to coin another term, the 'sixth column,' for those who, innocently or otherwise, contribute toward America's greatest enemy today, apathy. Sixth columnists include those who are Nazi propaganda by listening to its 'softening up' phrases and then asking, 'Why fight?' by fostering racial and religious discrimination; and, through lack of interest and understanding, widening the breach between capital and labor.

"Senator Wheeler and Mr. Lindbergh and others who are vocal on the side of isoltaion, are, I believe, honest in their conviction. They cannot be classed as fifth columnists and un-American because they speak their minds. When free speech is no longer possible, we will not have a democracy to fight for. However, I believe that those men and others who believe as they do, have no idea of the irreparable damage they are doing. I have heard many remarks of disloyalty toward our government and our leaders, following radio speeches by Senator Wheeler and Mr. Lindbergh. I cannot think that they intended to divert our people from their allegiance to our form of government and our elected leaders. But they did. Isolationists should be able to air their views without criticizing and belittling those in power and without stirring up racial and religious hatred. When will we awaken to the fact that in order to sell democracy we must praise it—not criticize it, appreciate it—not denounce it, and then bestir ourselves in order to fight for it, yes, die for it if necessary.

"Another group of sixth columnists is our luxury-loving people, who are unwilling to exert themselves to defend the very democracy which made possible their luxurious tastes and habits. Still another group of sixth columnists are those who lack in patriotic fervor. Instead of being taught the fundamentals of patriotism, many children hear nothing but criticism of our government and its leaders in their homes. Recently in a motion picture theater the president of the United States was delivering one of his most vital speeches, when a 15-year-old girl seated near me said: 'Who is that old guy and what is he croaking about?'

"Another group which should be listed in the sixth column are those political candidates who try to convince the people that everything is wrong with the government and its leaders, and then after election, stating that 'it was simply campaign oratory.' No activity is of greater help to Germany than this practice of seeing how many condemnatory utterances can be made about an opponent in a contest for public office.

"My appeal is for unity. Even in our effort to dispel apathy we must not create such differences of opinion as will divide ourselves. Such a division of opinion will divert our attention to local problems and make us forget the paramount job ahead of us—the defense of ourselves from the greatest menace the world has ever known—Hitler.

"Women have worked for peace and prayed for peace for so long that they are reluctant to give up the idea of peace and to settle down and prepare for defense, which in their minds means war. Women are the homemakers and the home-keepers of the country, they have the greater contact with young people. Women suffer the most poignant grief when war comes to a country, therefore it behooves the women to leave the production of armament and other defense goods to the men and to take care of the health, morale and spiritual welfare of our people.

"We women must prepare to meet the challenge with Christian fortitude and with the spirit of our pioneer settlers. I feel sure that the American people will eventually develop that love of country and that enthusiasm for its defense that will spell success for the 'all out' effort we are trying to make.

"Let us stop talking about the fifth column and rid ourselves of that larger and more threatening force—the sixth column of apathy."

Welcome Branch Club Meets In Faulk Home

Mrs. J. R. White Speaks On 'Timely Topics' And Mrs. Ralph H. B. Gibson Reviews 'Oliver Wiswell'

Mrs. W. C. Faulk offered the hospitality of her home to members of the Welcome Branch Book Club last week. Co-hostesses at this time were Mrs. Fred Tesche and Mrs. J. D. Petty. In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. T. Eubank, vice-president, presided.

Two excellent papers, beneficial to every literary-minded woman, comprised the afternoon's program. Mrs. J. R. White spoke on "Timely Topics," and Mrs. Ralph H. B. Gibson reviewed "Oliver Wiswell," by Kenneth Roberts. This historical novel concerns the Revolutionary war and places Mr. Roberts among America's outstanding historical writers. He pictures the Revolutionary war as a civil war as well as a war against England, with the Loyalists heroes instead of the Rebels.

Mrs. Gibson said in part:

"The Loyalists are pictured as a gentle, scholarly lot who looked for a friendly adjustment of America's difficulties with England. Oliver Wiswell from Milton sums up the Loyalist point of view: 'I found it impossible to think of the king's troops in Boston as sons of tyranny; and I knew beyond all question that my father and the other thousands who had been driven into the city by mobs were certainly not villains, scoundrels or monsters. They were the most peaceful of men. We'd have escaped all that war, all that misery, all that death and destruction if it hadn't been for the persistent demagoguery of just one man—Sam Adams.'

"The Rebels, on the other hand, according to Mr. Roberts, were a ruffianly, scurrilous lot who roused the rabble against their own countrymen.

"In the opening scene of the book Tom Buell, a printer, is being tortured by a mob of Rebels when Oliver Wiswell comes to his rescue. For this act of mercy Oliver and his father and Tom are forced to flee to Boston, where they find sanctuary under the protection of British troops. After his father's death Oliver and Tom join up with the British, first as contact men and later as officers in the army.

"Their adventures are many and include a perilous sailing voyage to Halifax and the capture of a Rebel ship; a confidential trip to France and England; a foraging expedition on the James river; a visit to the wretched Loyalists hidden in the swamps of Long Island; a search for Burgoyne's captive army through Virginia and the Carolinas; a first hand view of the crucial battles.

"The love interest, which is slight, concerns Oliver's affections for Sally, his childhood sweetheart, who is the daughter of a Rebel. After many vicissitudes, they are finally reunited at the end of the war.

"The most interesting parts of the book are those dealing with the actual battles. Mr. Roberts has spent long hours of research on British and American strategy, and his gifts as a story teller enable him to recreate the battle scenes in such a manner that the layman can visualize the movement of the opposing troops.

"In analyzing the victory of the rebel army over the British, Mr. Roberts comes to the conclusion that it was British stupidness rather than rebel acuteness that won the war. Time and again, at the battle of Bunker Hill, at the battle of Long Island, at the battle of Saratoga, the British army had it in their power to crush the rebellion. Each time, through delay, or through stubborness the British refused to follow up the advantages they had gained.

"British 'stumblebum' diplomacy is likewise blamed. On his trip to England Oliver finds the English arrogant and shortsighted in their contempt for the colonies. In spite of the fact that he has thrown his lot in with them, he protests angrily against their smugness: 'The rebels were enemies, mine and Buell's even more than England's, but they were no poltroons; they were no more cruel or depraved than any similar group of ignorant fanatics would be. They were as valuable to the world, if wisely governed, as spindleshanked English naval lieutenants with a fondness for whipping seamen'."

Mrs. White's remarks were most opportune. She said:

"By conserving and reducing waste we will be of greater help to our country. Support national defense by buying defense bonds; by buying carefully, and keeping what you buy. Do not return goods except if imperfect or incorrect size. Carry small purchases and demand less service."

Mrs. White closed with words from Elbert Hubbard, "Let us be proud of our country, and not spatter her men of mind with mud. It is time to build. It is time to unite. It is time for faith. It is time to for brotherhood. Let us be glad we are Americans, and stand together for American institutions."

Refreshments were served during the social hour to: Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. Harvey Collender, Mrs. Sam Campbell, Mrs. P. B. Collier, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. J. T. Eubank, Mrs. W. C. Faulk, Mrs. Ralph Gibson, Mrs. M. R. Hausherr, Mrs. Everett Lawson, Mrs. A. E. Loyd, Mrs. Hilton Osterman, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. George Phebus, Mrs. J. S. Pickard, Mrs. W. E. Sandel, Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. Adair Smith, Mrs. Albert Speer, Mrs. Fred Tesche, Mrs. J. R. White, Mrs. Joseph Winkler, Mrs. Paul T. Wright, Mrs. C. A. Young, and Mrs. F. H. Peterson, a guest.

'Navy Blues' Opens Engagement At Paramount Today

Ann Sheridan is stirring up something of a hullabaloo on the beach at Waikiki in good old Hawaii . . . and in the manly bosoms of sailors Jack Oakie and Jack Haley, attached to the visiting United States fleet. The picture, "Navy Blues," opens today at the Paramount with the above three stars, plus hilarious Martha Raye. The famed starlet sextet, six of the most beautiful future screen heart breakers, are prominently featured.

"Smiling Ghost," the Paramount attraction for Friday and Saturday, stars Wayne Morris, Brenda Marshall, Alexis Smith, and Alan Hale in a delightful comedy full of laughs and surprises.

Olivia de Havilland, Charles Boyer, and Paulette Goddard are co-starred in the magnificent "Hold Back the Dawn," playing the Paramount midnight show next Saturday night.

"Meet John Doe," featuring Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck, plays at the Capitol Friday.

Star Cast Is Featured In Musical

Ann Sheridan, Jack Oakie, Jack Haley, Martha Raye In New Hit

FORSAKING fight and frenzy for fun and frolic, "Navy Blues," Warner Bros. picture coming to the Paramount theater today, will uncork a barrel of mirth and music as Ann Sheridan, Jack Oakie, Martha Raye, Jack Haley and the Navy Blues Sextet outdo themselves in a comedy of errors.

The only battle in this battleship picture is a battle of wits and wisecracks and the guns constantly roar out salvos of frivolity even in target practice.

The story is the amusing tale of two slap happy gobs on the U. S. S. Cleveland who get into double trouble in Hawaii by trying to evade two gallivanting gals, and by trying to filch their shipmate's pay.

The gobs are played by Jack Oakie and Jack Haley, the girls by Ann Sheridan and Martha Raye. In the picture Martha, as Haley's ex-wife, is trailing him in quest of alimony. The last time she caught up with him was in San Diego where he swore she was an international spy and had her thrown in jail.

To win more navy cash the gobs are in search of a way to assure the Cleveland's winning the fleet gun target title. They bump into Herbert Anderson, playing a quiet, corn-fed little tar from the U. S. S. Wisconsin, who has been transferred to the Cleveland. When they discover that he happens to be the world's greatest gun pointer, they take him in charge, hide his identity, and bet the Wisconsin sailors 15 to 1 that the Cleveland will win the target championship.

In need of ready cash to press their bets the gobs hit up a hard-boiled petty officer (Jack Carson) for some front money with the promise he'll get it back with plenty of interest the next day. They then pawn the ship's trophies for additional coin.

When the two Jacks learn that Herbert's enlistment will be up the day before the target contest and that he will not reenlist because he's homesick for his farm in Iowa, they grow frantic. To recoup their lavish bets they parade Herbert around the island revealing his identity hoping that the Wisconsin boys will call off their bets. The gobs find out, however, and let the bets ride.

When Carson discovers he is being hilked and the sailors learn their ships trophie shave been pawned they chase Oakie and Haley into a fashionable luau where Ann Sheridan is dancing. They grab a couple of spare grass skirts and join the chorus.

Begging the furious gobs for another chance to get back the money and redeem the ship's trophies, they prevail on Ann to play up to Anderson to get him to reenlist. Ann consents and pretends that she is a farm girl. After learning that Anderson holds a number of hog calling titles she waxes enthusiastic over his prowess. He has just about fallen in love with her when some of the Wisconsin sailors tip him off.

From then on the plot gets even more complicated until Ann realizes she actually is in love with Herbert and she has to hog call and hog collar him to prove it. The Cleveland wins the target championship and everything ends in a nautical shipshape fashion.

Davis And Cagney In Capitol Hit

'The Bride Came C. O. D.' Is Amusing Story Of Spoiled Debutante

"THE BRIDE CAME C. O. D." opens at the Capitol today. James Cagney and Bette Davis are co-starred in the new Warner Brothers comedy, the romance between an aviator and an heiress, a frothy story sleekly modelled along streamlined laugh lines.

"The Bride Came C. O. D." tells the amusing tale of a spoiled young debutante with more dollars than sense and an aviator with just the opposite combination. She is about to elope with a self-infatuated bandleader, who hires Cagney to fly them to Las Vegas. But Cagney, desperately in need of funds in order to keep up payments on his plane, decides it will be more profitable to deliver the bride back home to her doting papa. He gets her father on the phone and clinches the deal. He will be paid ten dollars a pound, C. O. D., for delivering the would-be bride, unmarried. By a simple ruse, he gets Bette in the plane first, and flies off, leaving the bewildered bridegroom gaping on the ground. Positive that she is being kidnaped by a desperate criminal—an illusion which Cagney does nothing to shatter—she attempts a parachute jump and lands safely but painfully in a bed of cactus. Cagney makes a forced landing, and knocks his plane out of commission.

The two get to know each other rather well during the next few days. Near their landing place, they discover an abandoned mining town, with a population of one. He is, handily, the hotel-keeper, a delightful old fellow, who gives credence to Cagney's story of their being lovers who have quarreled, rather than Bette's story of being kidnaped. From here on, it's a battle of wits between the pair, with Bette trying to get back to civilization and her bridegroom, and Cagney trying to keep her there until he can fix his plane, fly her to her father, and collect ten dollars a pound for her.

Matters go on somewhat in this fashion: Bette sees some army planes flying over the desert, signals to them with a mirror held up to sun. Cagney, seeing that her signal has succeeded in attracting attention, lures her into an empty mine tunnel. Trying to get out, Bette knocks down some of the rotting wooden supports, causes a cave-in. They believe they are trapped. Cagney, however, soon locates a way out through the hotel kitchen, helps himself to some food, then comes back to report dolefully to Bette that they are indeed lost. Believing that the end is near, she throws off all pretense, admits that she cares for him. There is a clinch, then Bette tastes mustard on his lips. His ruse having failed, he has to take her out of the mine.

A small army is waiting for them. Bette's fiance, a sheriff, reporters and photographers, and a justice of the peace. Cagney's game seems to be up, and he pretends to give in gracefully. He even acts as best man at the ensuing wedding. But not until he has secretly ascertained that the justice of the peace is from Nevada, and the ghost town is in California. The wedding is, of course, illegal, but Cagney bides his time about letting the bride know that. The ending is cleverly handled, maintaining the suspense right up to the last minute.

Australia has its first gasoline production plant in operation, the motor fuel being refined from shale.

BRIDE FROM THE SKY

BY HELEN WELSHIMER

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER XVIII

Judy pulled on the parachute with all her strength as she came down, the rising sound of the motors following her. No, she decided, she couldn't bear to the south enough to save herself.

Sandy had done this to her . . . Sandy whom she hated.

A great silver light picked her up then, and she realized she was being placed in the center of a searchlight to call the attention of the oncoming pilot to her fate.

She watched the strange plane start down the runway, turn, come to a sudden halt that rolled it over on its side, crashing a little dizzily as it took this unexpected and undeserved punishment. Two men, bewildered and bruised, climbed from the injured airplane.

And she, Judy Allen, associate editor of Under Twenty, was floating down to earth like a white moth or an angel.

She wasn't afraid suddenly. She didn't mind descending from the purple sky in her wedding dress, clinging to a parachute. When she touched the ground, she became aware that one white satin slipper was gone. Lost in the flight. Or maybe left in Sandy's plane. She was glad that the train on her wedding dress concealed her unslippered foot. The earth was cold, though.

She must look funny—a bride who took to hurtling earthward. She started to laugh and could not tsop.

Why, there were hundreds of people at the airport to watch her. Yet there was an air of unreality about the scene.

A dozen hands had released her from the parachute as it touched earth. Amazed voices began an artillery of questions.

There was a newsreel truck present, too, and the operator was just winding up the crank. Looking around more carefully, Judy realized that a dozen news cameramen had been on hand to make her arrival everlasting.

Judy found her voice. It sounded strangled, though she fought for a casual tone. "Who told you I was taking off from Capricorn?"

"Nobody told us. We've all been waiting around for a couple of movie stars coming in from Hollywood."

"It's a bridal couple. Maybe she jumped, too," somebody else said as his flashlight exploded.

"You're aces, sister." Another voice cleared itself of the motley tones. "Come on, give us your name and town and why you made your flying leap."

Judy ignored the questions. Her wide brows were drawn into a sudden, startled line. She would be in the tabloids and the movies now instead of the rotogravure section where Judy Allen belonged. Phil would wipe the grounds up with Sandy. Or maybe it would be the other way.

It would be best to get Sandy behind four strong walls as quickly as possible. Not the kind of walls that made a home, either.

The wide field, the darkness pierced with tall balls of guiding lamps, the murmur of the water in the distance, the people who kept appearing from everywhere—all this made Judy feel that she had dropped down to a strange, weird place.

Her bronze curls blew around her shoulders, her eyes smoldered with purple fire, her white dress was thin and it was fragile.

"Is there a phone near?" she asked, all the haughtier because her stockinged foot stood partly in a mud puddle. "And I want to swear out a warrant for someone's arrest."

Everybody laughed at that except a heavy-set man who had elbowed his way through the crowd. "Can't give you the second request, sister," he stated bluntly. "But you can't get away with a phony la ding."

"That's the idea. It's your own arrest that's taking place. We're taking you to Headquarters now, this minute."

The whole crowd of people seemed to have taken the incident as a public show by this time. People were following Judy, pushing against her, tearing pieces of lace so lavishly that at last she turned to one of the officers and let him clear a path.

The siren on the police car sounded eerie and dangerous as the patrol rushed through the streets of the town. A crowd collected quickly when the patrol wagon drew up at the station. Judy hung back.

"Disperse the audience, please," Judy moaned. I invited my own fiends to my wedding."

"When was that?" another officer asked. "Everybody come?"

"I don't know. I couldn't make it." She didn't let a tear trip her sweet, husky voice.

A moment later she realized the seriousness of her offense. The airport police charged that she had been endangering lives and holding up transportation.

"We've had enough outrageous pranks of this kind," the desk sergeant explained. "This morning a debutante got hold of a fire engine and went with her gang for a joy ride. You need a lesson—you and your kind. Holding up real aviation."

There were more words. Something was said about Judy's bail being arranged at the police court in the morning, and suddenly she was placed in a cell, the barred door closed, and the jailer turned his rusty key.

THE CAPTIVE CAVE MAN — CRAZED BY HIS FIRST SIGHT OF FIRE, THE STRANGE CAVE-DWELLER WAS SUBDUED BY BULL MOOSE WHO BOUND HIM HAND AND FOOT WITH HIS AND CHESTER'S BELTS —

YUM! THIS ROAST IS GOOD! HE DIDN'T KNOW WHAT A GOOD COOK HE IS WHEN HE DROPPED THE MEAT IN THE FIRE —

OUR ADVENTURERS HAVE AN UNEXPECTED FEAST ON THE PIECE OF MEAT THE CAVE MAN ACCIDENTALLY DROPPED IN THE FIRE —

GO ON, MISTER CAVE MAN — EAT! NOT BE AFRAID —

I HAVEN'T HEARD YOU SAY ANYTHING, MISTER — CAN'T YOU TALK —?

WOW! IS IGNORANT, SURE! LISTEN, MR. WILD MAN — BECAUSE YOU WAS GOOD TO CHESTER, I BE NICE TO YOU — I TEACH YOU TO TALKING GOOD ENGLISH, NO?

GOSH, BULL MOOSE — THE FIRE IS DYING OUT, AND WE HAVEN'T ANY MORE BRANCHES AND TWIGS!

AN HOUR LATER —

G-GOSH! BULL MOOSE HAS BEEN GONE AWFULLY LONG! I'D BETTER GO SEE IF — IF ANYTHING'S WRONG!

BULL MOOSE! BULL MOOSE! WHERE ARE YOU?!

HERE, CHESTER! BROKE ANKLE, MAYBE —

BULL MOOSE BE FINE — YOU GO BACK IN CAVE —

"BACK IN CAVE!" THAT'S IT!!

YES, WHAT A PITY.

LADY P. HAS A SURPRISE FOR US.

ICE CREAM AND CAKE?

NOT YET — MAMIE, BRING ME THOSE NEW RECORDS I BOUGHT!

THANK YOU, MAMIE

JUNGLE JIM

BY ALEX RAYMOND

THEY ARE BLINDED BY A SEARCHLIGHT BEAM--AND A GUTTURAL VOICE SAYS, "AH, GENTLEMEN! I WOULDN'T MOVE, IF I WERE YOU! I'M A CRACK SHOT!"
THORSON CONTINUES--
"YOU SEE, THESE STEPS ARE EQUIPPED WITH AN ALARM DEVICE WHICH FLASHES A WARNING IN MY STUDY. YOU ARE THE GENTLEMAN MY SECRETARY HAS BEEN MEETING IN THE GARDEN, ARE YOU NOT?"
"I DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT!" ANSWERS JIM.
"WE'LL SEE!" SNAPS THORSON, "YOU, BOBO, WERE SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR DESERTION AND YOU ESCAPED, DID YOU NOT? WELL, ESCAPE THIS!" AND THORSON'S GUN ROARS--
"YOU YELLOW DOG!" HISSES JIM, "I'LL---"
"YOU'LL COME WITH ME!" THORSON SNARLS, "OR GET A BULLET THROUGH YOUR HEART TOO! COME ON!"

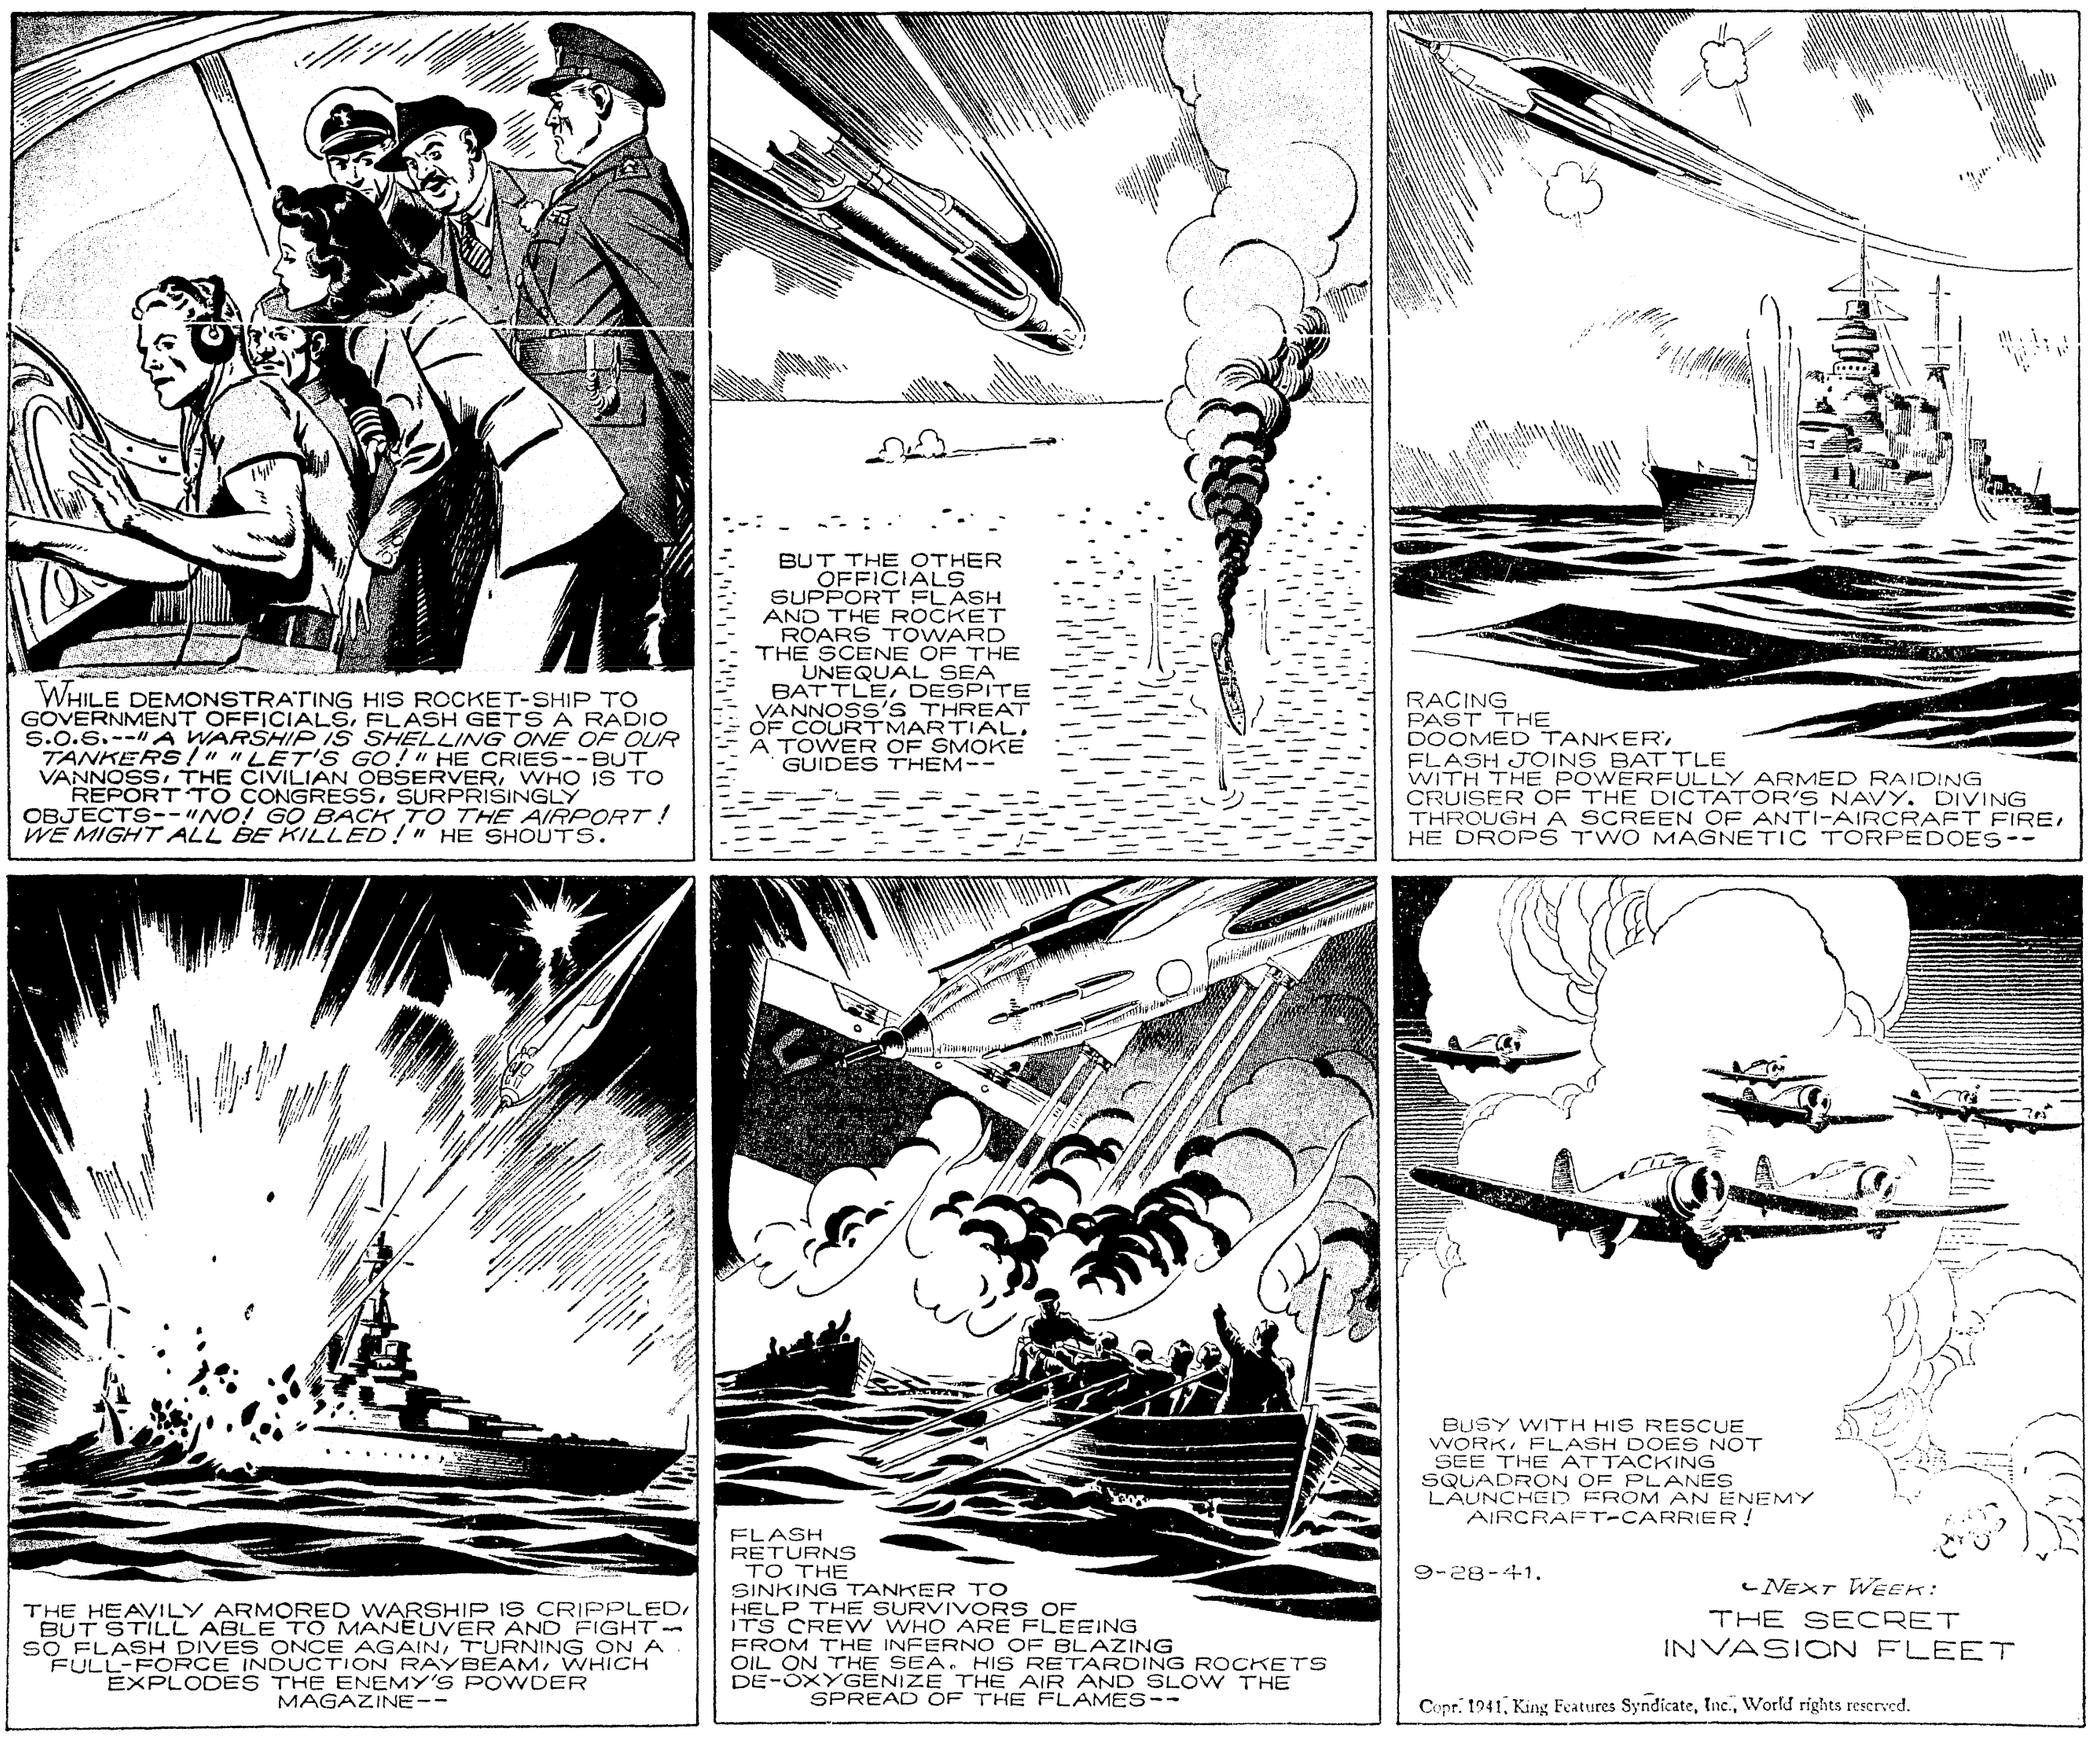
Flash Gordon

Registered U. S. Patent Office



WHILE DEMONSTRATING HIS ROCKET-SHIP TO GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, FLASH GETS A RADIO S.O.S.--"A WARSHIP IS SHELLING ONE OF OUR TANKERS!" "LET'S GO!" HE CRIES--BUT VANNOSS, THE CIVILIAN OBSERVER, WHO IS TO REPORT TO CONGRESS, SURPRISINGLY OBJECTS--"NO! GO BACK TO THE AIRPORT! WE MIGHT ALL BE KILLED!" HE SHOUTS.
BUT THE OTHER OFFICIALS SUPPORT FLASH AND THE ROCKET ROARS TOWARD THE SCENE OF THE UNEQUAL SEA BATTLE, DESPITE VANNOSS'S THREAT OF COURTMARTIAL, A TOWER OF SMOKE GUIDES THEM--
RACING PAST THE DOOMED TANKER, FLASH JOINS BATTLE WITH THE POWERFULLY ARMED RAIDING CRUISER OF THE DICTATOR'S NAVY. DIVING THROUGH A SCREEN OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, HE DROPS TWO MAGNETIC TORPEDOES--
THE HEAVILY ARMORED WARSHIP IS CRIPPLED, BUT STILL ABLE TO MANEUVER AND FIGHT--SO FLASH DIVES ONCE AGAIN, TURNING ON A FULL-FORCE INDUCTION RAYBEAM, WHICH EXPLODES THE ENEMY'S POWDER MAGAZINE--
FLASH RETURNS TO THE SINKING TANKER TO HELP THE SURVIVORS OF ITS CREW WHO ARE FLEEING FROM THE INFERNO OF BLAZING OIL ON THE SEA. HIS RETARDING ROCKETS DE-OXYGENIZE THE AIR AND SLOW THE SPREAD OF THE FLAMES--
